"4:21 P.M. - WWL-TV Reporter quotes officials as saying there may now be 60,000 people in the Superdome and that more people are still being urged to go there."

Official spokesmen are now denying the numerous reports this morning from National Guardsmen and others that New Orleans is under martial law. But that is exactly what NO and southeast La. are under as the governor demands the entire city be evacuated..

Numerous media reports indicate that refugees are not allowed to leave the Superdome. The Superdome is now a prison. Tens of thousands of Americans, trapped in a 21st-century FEMA concentration camp.

LUXOR writes: "could be slight overreaction in saying its a concentration camp....but people can't leave? doesn't sound good...."

It doesn't sound good at all. Eventually people will get tired of being imprisoned and having to eat MRE's. When they bust out, look for a "Mad Max" scenario in NO.

Why are they still taking people to the Superdome.. Why aren't they transporting them to a hospital ship anchored in the Gulf?

With all the raw sewage, chemicals, bodies, and animals(whose habitats were likely destroyed as well), you don't want people just walking out, picking up diseases and spreading them across the country. And where are they supposed to go if they just up and leave?

You're right, it is idiocy. And agree or disagree, I am having a hard time mustering up any sympathy for the current residents of NO. I suspect they will be resorting to cannibalism before long.

David Duke wrote an article saying that the predominantly White neighborhoods, while also hard hit, weren't resorting to savagery.

At this point, Im beginning to think that all of the recent dire predictions eg- dollar collapse, $5 gallon gas, etc, are about to come to fruition. As someone stated on another thread, this disaster really points out the soft underbelly of America. Add to that the up-coming Race riots and you have a recipe for chaos.

Prepare yourself.

They have reason to feel uneasy in a ship on the river now. All the navigational aides have to swept away, there's high water and unpredictable turbulence and lots of big stuff floating free. I'd rather be in a jon boat with an outboard.
