BALI "SUICIDE-BOMBERS" CAUGHT ON CAMERA... PIC

Posted By: FarSight3

Date: Monday, 3 October 2005, 9:15 a.m.

In Response To: WAS "777 MASTERMIND" ASWAT "WORKING FOR BRITISH INTELLIGENCE" ?? (FarSight3)

Investigators are hunting right now for the "masterminds" of three bombings - conveniently labeled as "suicide"-bombings - on Bali hoping to identify the bombers using photographs of their severed heads circulating in newspapers nationwide.

Do you have some heads on stock?

Besides, one of the bombers was caught on camera by a tourist who was filming the events at the steakhouse in Kuta. It shows a man with a rucksack, passing by the guests, adjusting his sack and disappearing out of view.

Than a bang.

Another suspect went - and this is strange - towards the lesser crowded space to the backside of the restaurant where his bomb exploded too - killing only one person - probably a waiter. Why didn't the alleged "suicide-bomber" stay where he could have made much more atrocities? Didn't he knew of his "heavy burden" in his rucksack?

Quite possibly this was a similar proceeding as those bombings in London on 777 where most probably the "suicide-bombers" didn't knew of their fate as well - before it was too late.

According to AP - "...Mbai also said police believe the bombs, which were packed with ball bearings to inflict maximum damage over a wide area, were detonated by mobile phone..."

As you can see from the previous articles (links below) the mobile net was shut off on Bali immediately after the first explosions - so preventing additional blasts...

Mr Owl is Confused

by MrWiseOwl on 04.10.2005 [05:36]

Indonesian police already said the bombs were detonated remotely by mobile phones, and that is why they hastily shut down the mobile networks. Why would you need a suicide bomber if you can detonate remotely?

Come on Mossad or MI6 or CIA or whichever assholes set this up. Please have some respect for our intelligence (or in my case, birdie brains!)

How is the tourist?

by pdove on 04.10.2005 [05:42]

It appears to me that british reporters are "luckily" happen to be on the scene?

But a CIA/Mossad operation to stir support the self-perpetrated "war of terror", and trying to get an excuse to "help" Indonesia and get a foothold on the area.

They tried with Tsunami already.

detonation by mobile

by Mike-Malaysia on 04.10.2005 [07:26]

This is a much flaunted method of (officially) committing terrorist attacks. It is a reason given why the Malaysian authorities want to make registration of 'pay as you go' (currently with pleasing levels of anonymity) but I feel its a false argument. There are many cheaper ways (and actually more reliable ways) to detonate a bomb, and a suicide victim isn't needed.

How do the Indonesian authorities know that a mobile call was used. They cant - unless they were part of the plot or there is a mole inside the bombers organisation.

I cant believe the mobile story.

by Mike-Malaysia on 04.10.2005 [07:30]

All I see is some people aparently havin a drink in a bar.

u dont need to see the bombers by adil_nazeem on 04.10.2005 [08:32]

they mention bali and islamic terrorism so most people know that the muslim fundamentalists have done it.

thats the whole point.

most people will not question that the poctures are not clear. even if they are shown they will readily digest the info. most info from these newsmedia is spoonfed and custom made for these brain dead people.

here is the video

http://www.ogrish.com/archives/2005/october/ogrish-dot-com-bali_suicide_bombing_video_2005.wmv

the video has two parts, in the first the whole footage is show as-is (without editing) in the second the suspected individual is highlighted as he moves across the restaurant ... he appears to carry a backpack and appears to be young and asian

Anyway, you can follow the guy's movements until he goes out of sight, then a couple of seconds later the exlosion happens... judging by the speed of this guy and the direction of his movement, the explosion appears to be too far back in the restaurant for this guy to actually be the perpetrator... look and judge!
