Covert ops to overthrow Iran's gov

9/26/2005 6:00:00 PM GMT

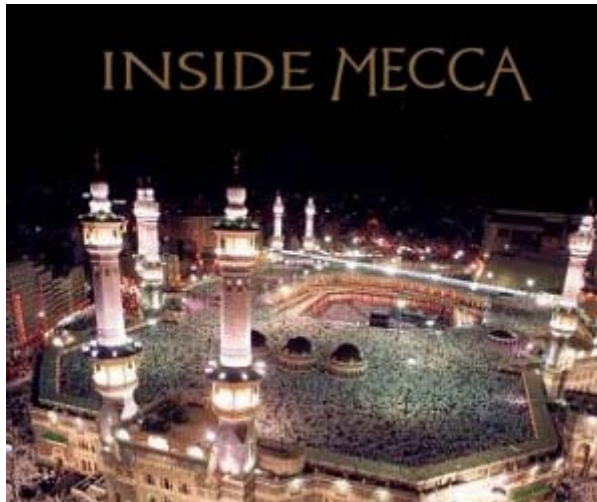

By: Trish Schuh

Like the color-coded terror alert system, the Technicolor Velvet Invasions blink warning. Despite receiving an ugly bruise in Uzbekistan, the CIA and its NGO regime change industry hope to stage another cardboard coup in Iran. But it could be a Black & Blue Revolution.

Citing a 'mission accomplished' in Iraq, President Bush told 25,000 soldiers in Fort Hood, Texas; "The establishment of a free Iraq is a watershed event in the global democratic revolution. That success is sending a message from Beirut to Tehran."

Tasked by the Bush administration with sending that message from America to Tehran, and "winning hearts and minds" is 'swift boat veteran' author Jerome Corsi. On May 16, Corsi's NGO The Iran Freedom Foundation, inaugurated a 12 day "Iran Freedom Walk" from Philadelphia's Liberty Bell to Washington, D.C.

Dipping two fingers in red paint, Corsi waved a peace sign in solidarity "with the blood of oppressed Iranians" and called on "the spirit of Mahatma Gandhi and Martin Luther King." He declared; "I love the Iranian people. America does not hate the Persian people. We love the Persian people. We want peace and we love the Persian people." Corsi's voice then hushed to a whisper; "We stand here today and we pray in the name of the Gods. I

- Comparing Islam to a disease

But Corsi has expressed very different opinions on Islam in the past. According to his own postings on FreeRepublic.com, on November 18, 2001 Corsi used a racial slur to define Arabs; "Rag heads are Boy-Bumpers [sodomizers] as clearly as they are Women Haters- it all goes together." In November 2002, Corsi said; "They think the liberals will never let out that these two were lovers... typical Islamic boy-bugging. Older man with younger man- black Muslims..." Using the incendiary style he perfected for

'swiftboat veteran' TV attack ads, Jerome Corsi continued; "Islam is a peaceful religion as long as the women are beaten, the boys bugged, and the infidels killed." Comparing Islam to a disease, he added; "How's this for an analogy? The Koran is simply the "software" for producing deviant cancer cell political behavior and violence in human beings" and "Islam is like a virus. It affects the mind. Maybe even better as an analogy: it is a cancer that destroys the body it infects. No doctor would hesitate to eliminate cancer cells from the body." In April, 2004 Corsi added; "Let's see why it isn't the case that Islam is a worthless, dangerous, satanic religion. Where's the proof to the contrary?"

Surrounding Corsi at his 'Freedom Walk' were three dozen Los Angeles Iranian dissidents and pro-monarchists interviewed by an Orthodox Jewish journalist and by the CIA-backed Voice of America and Radio Free Europe/Radio Farda. The Los Angeles Times of March 20, 2005 revealed that 'Tehrangeles' has become a crucial recruiting ground for Iranian expatriates who gather information for the U.S. intelligence community. Also providing assistance are various Farsi language media who broadcast messages against the Iranian government into Iran.

According to the March 4, 2005 Los Angeles Times, the U.S. currently spends $14.7 million a year on Farsi "opposition broadcasts" into Iran. The Voice of America's Farsi service reaches an estimated 15 million Iranians with news programs and websites, and the Bush administration has recently requested an additional $5.7 million in 2006 to expand the hours of transmission.

- CIA's 1953 overthrow of Iran's Mossadeq

Los Angeles Farsi radio station KRSI noted the similarity between current U.S. efforts and the CIA's 1953 overthrow of Iran's democratically elected Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadeq. When asked if he was CIA affiliated, Corsi claimed; "No I'm not. I've never held a government position, never had any government position at all. I've been in universities. I'm an author. I'm in business. I'm not related to the

CIA. It's just not true."

But when later asked how he became so committed to Iranian liberation, he said; "When I was a young man I was an expert in antiterrorism and political violence. I had a top secret clearance when I was in universities and I worked to assist the State Department and the government." Corsi's publisher, Cumberland House, states in his biography that Corsi's top secret clearance came from the government agency USAID. USAID has often served as a conduit for American covert operations funding, under humanitarian auspices.

This writer then asked Corsi about the Iran Freedom Foundation's funding. He said the money came from sales of his book "Atomic Iran" and from private donations, adding that the IFF would apply for government funding when it became available.

That government funding may be on the way. On February 11, 2005 a promoter of the Iran Freedom Foundation, Worldnetdaily.com announced that Corsi had helped Republican Senator Rick Santorum write the Iran Freedom and Support Act of 2005. The legislation was to authorize $10 million in assistance to pro-democracy NGOs that challenge the Iranian regime. Corsi called that figure a "starting point."

It was an accurate projection. According to the May 5, 2005 Financial Times article "U.S. offers grants to help oppose clerics," Guy Dinmore reported that lawmakers demanded a bill aimed at overthrowing the Iranian government be increased to $50 million. This did not include the millions of dollars provided by the State Department's Middle East Partnership Initiative. "We have turned opposition into a profession," commented Ray Takeyh of the Council on Foreign Relations. "This money is going to go up."

Such "soft power" opposition activities are escalating. In May 29, the New York Times quoted R. Nicholas Burns, under secretary of state for political affairs, as saying the Bush team was "taking a page from the playbook" of colored revolutions where the U.S. funded pro-democracy NGOs helped nonviolently overthrow noncompliant governments.

The Iran Freedom Foundation lists several such activities on its website. Corsi's book "Atomic Iran" is being translated into Farsi for clandestine distribution in Iran, there is an online petition targeting the mullahs, IFF university associations are mobilizing college students, and a national speakers bureau to educate Americans on Iranian alleged "atrocities" has been deployed. The IFF is also filming a documentary and has begun running TV ads entitled; "An Atomic 9-11: When Evil is Appeased" accusing Iran of plans to detonate a 150 kiloton nuclear bomb in New York City. According to Israeli Knesset documents, Corsi was formerly with the Israel Atomic Energy Commission, and when I reminded Corsi that it was the U.S. who began Iran's nuclear program in the 1970s, and that Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld sat on the board of ABB (which sold North Korea its nuclear reactors in the 1990's), he refused to comment.

The IFF's efforts are supplemented by an array of related sister organizations such as Regime Change Iran, Alliance for Democracy in Iran, Iran of Tomorrow Movement, The Iran Accountability Project, The Initiative for Democratic Change in Iran, the Iranian Opposition Council, and "The 70 Million People of Iran" who were organizing an election for a secular interim government in exile "ready to assume Iran's governmental functions by June 10, 2005". The group had also issued an ultimatum letter to world leaders, demanding they void all contracts with Iran by June 16. (Halliburton contracts in Iran were not mentioned). This small U.S.-backed group, presuming to speak for 70 million Iranians, even borrowed State Department lingo urging "the removal of the Islamic Republic to win the 'War on Terror'."

Corsi's IFF has also endorsed the Free Iran Project, an enterprise created by Reagan Doctrine policy architect Dr. Jack Wheeler. In January 2005, Wheeler advocated that President Bush use nuclear weapons to destroy Mecca if America is hit by another terrorist attack. Wheeler bragged on his website "To The Point" that Osama Bin Laden is "playing poker with a Texas cowboy holding all the nuclear aces."

The goal of these strategies, Corsi announced at his event, was to incite mass protests against Iran's June 17th presidential elections and thus destabilize the regime. Iranian dissident Ghassem Sholeh Sadi agreed. In the NY Sun article, "Iranian dissidents asking aid from Bush," Sadi explained; "After the events in Kyrgystan, there is an idea to try to turn the elections into a referendum and uprising."

As early as 2003, Reuters printed allegations that the U.S. had infiltrated several million dollars into the country to bribe officials and pay protestors.

- Is America pulling the strings?"

Economist of June 13, 2003 headlined; "More unrest on the streets of Tehran. Is America pulling the strings?" America is pulling strings, with Israeli assistance. The former head of Mossad's Foreign Intelligence Division Uzi Arad told Worldnetdaily.com; "Support of Iranian opposition by the international community could be an effective way to handle the current regime" and that "its stability can be greatly reduced by the people themselves." Pro-Israel lobbyist Michael Ledeen wrote for the neoconservative American Enterprise Institute; "Mr. Bush is correct that we should actively help the brave Iranians who are leading demonstrations against the regime..." Voice of Israel's Iran expert Dr. Menasha Amir warned in a Knesset briefing on Iranian regime change that "the west should be careful not to make it look like a foreign takeover" and Knesset Minister Yuri Stern added; "Let's send them orange ribbons- we have plenty!"

- Support of MEK

Israel's Student Solidarity Movement and The Jewish Agency recently staged protests at Iranian embassies worldwide. The Israeli newspaper Ha'aretz reported "AIPAC [American Israel Political Action Committee] spurring Congress to pass a sanctions bill against Iran." AIPAC is also pressuring the U.S. to support the Iranian Mujahedin-e-Khalq (National Council of Resistance of Iran) for use against Iran's leadership.

MEK was legally designated a terrorist organization by Congress in 1997 for killing US citizens, for its role in the 1979 seizure of the U.S. embassy in Tehran, and for attacking coalition troops in Iraq.

The Pentagon also has MEK members on its payroll, despite President Bush's rhetoric in 2002; "This administration will route out terror wherever it exists, and will hold people accountable if they harbor terrorists."

The Israeli Communication Ministry's R.R. Sat provides transponder capability to the MEK to broadcast programming on its two channels. Iran-interlink.org even hints that Ariel Sharon personally approved funding for the broadcasts, because of his alliance with MEK founder Maryam Rajavi.

On May 28, The Iran Freedom Foundation's 'Freedom Walk' reached the White House. The closing rally featured Richard Perle, former Assistant Secretary of Defense and pro-Israel architect of Bush's Middle East policy. Jerome Corsi then phoned the White House where President Bush congratulated the marchers and offered support. Vice President Cheney's office also thanked the IFF. Corsi vowed; "If we can find sufficient monetary resources, we plan to send funds inside Iran to support those oppressed."

In response, USAToday reported, the Iranian Ambassador to the UN, Mohammad Javad Zarif denounced these types of U.S. measures as a violation of the Algiers Accords. The Algiers Accords freed 52 American embassy hostages in exchange for a U.S. promise "not to intervene directly or indirectly, politically or militarily, in Iran's internal affairs." Iran may file a complaint with The International Court of Justice in the Hague to stop U.S. interference.

According to Reuters, Iran's Foreign Ministry spokesman Hamid Reza Asefi threatened; "Iran has always defended its interests with full power and will continue to do so. It won't hesitate even for a fraction of a moment to defend itself" and Iran's government has pledged harsh resistance. With Iran's oil reserves wedded to nuclear capability, those 'orange ribbons' could become a noose round the neck of the west.

iran has been at war with the united states for decades. iran financed terrorist attacks against us military bases in europe, and has organised and financed terrorist attacks against israel through hamas for decades. iran has secretly pursued nuclear weapons technology for over 15 years. iran has repeatedly lied about the purpose of it's nuclear program. iranian funded and lead terrorists continue to attack iraqi and american soldiers and civilians in iraq. iran has developed offensive missles in conjunction with it's nuclear weapons program. iran is lead by a minority of insanely anti-western clerics, who have vowed to israel and the united states off the map. neither the us or israel will allow iran to possess nuclear weapons, and by pursueing these weapons, the iranian government is digging it's own grave. some of you rabid anti-american f.o.o.l.s. think that the united states would lose a war with iran. iran will be destroyed without one u.s. soldier ever setting foot in iran.

one way to keep the terrorists from the usa outside of your country is simply to shoot every single american citizen inside your country. else you are in danger that the usa starts another occupation claiming it want to free its citizens. if they want it or not. look at the grenada operation under reagan. history has repeating patterns. remember that. and just as they "free" their citizens you will get a new puppet government for free which is on usa payroll.

abo wake up iran is playing both sides against the middle. they give finacial and logisticakl support to radical clerics like sadar, while at the same time providing the, wahabists with their operating capital and a safe haven for terrorist operations in iraq and world wide. and when it all falls apart they want to step in and pick up the peices. a free moderate arab state is a grave threat to the reactionary, fundamentalist regime to its east. a successful iraq will pull the economic heart from out of iran. iran thru their support have declared war on all moderate arabs who, wish democracy for the me. abo america does not target the civilian populatiojn of anyone to acheive its political ends and thats the definician of terror. please look closely at who your real enemy is?

joe from america my ignorant american neighbour. canada's solution for iran is let democracy breed from the inside. it takes time but it involves the natural evolution of iran. maybe you havent been watching the news faulk but you have made a complete mess of iraq. that should tell you that "doing something" the american way doesnt work. and lets talk about human rights. your country spearheaded the sanctions on iraq in the nineties that keeled over half a mi ion iraqis, not to mention the over twenty three thousand your military murdered during the current invasion. toad the us is never going to leave me, caspian area, central america, and is pushing into african lands more so evry day. why? to instill democracy? get real! name one caspian sea country that is a good example of democracy. you either have a theocracy, oligarchy or outright dictatorship. the balkans are still fully under controll of european and us interest and how many years we been there.no american would be happy living in any of the so called liberated countries our industry backed by military now controls. why? the truth is americans have run out of enough domestic wealth, to support the one percent who make over two hundred thou a year, now depend upon controlling rest of worlds resources. we will leave when we deplete them. we out source jobs, food production, and flat line wages of over ninety-nine per of our people to do so. the spread, rich v. poor in us is worst than in most third world countrys. the one per will demand we stay.

americans have no right to be in iraq or afganastan. since they are there for the sole purpose of invasion and occupation, they do not deserve to breathe, and the afgans and iraqis have a duty to kll any of them. this has always been the right way, because all people deserve to be free, not occupied. the french, italians, and others have fought for liberation and freedom from foreign invaders, and its every mans right to fight by any means necessary to protect their land and families. since americans went to these countries and kllled their wives and children, they dont deserve to live. maybe the insurgents will get lucky and kll bush, as he deserves to die from global march dat org, according to the council of europe,roma children are smuggled into italy from the former goslavia to work as forced labourers in gangs where they trained and then sold into crime rings in large cities. trafficking in women and girls for prositution and forced labour to italy is a growing problem. they are usually from albania,nigeria and est europe. there are more than 8000 albanian prostitutes found in italy, 30 percent under the age of 18.also, there is an estimated 30,000 illegal chinese working in sweatshops near florence with many minor children

carlo i to disapoint you but i have just visited the for the city of washington dc. it seems that the permit required to hold the demonstration is in fact a free permit. you dont need to pay money to protest, but you do need to have a permit. in addition, if you are not intending to stay in one spot, you dont even need a permit. sheehan was arrested because they sat down on a asidewalk in a high security zone. in fact these rules were in place and everyone knew of them. a new law exists in dc requiring the police to warn the people prior to arresting them. those waraning were given. the truth is, if i were a tax payer in dc i would sue sheehan for deliberately wasting the resources of the dc police by deliberately not appying for a permit. this spectacle of sheehan's circus likely cost the tax payers of dc some fifty thousand dollars. they should make her pay it back. by the way it makes perfect sense to need a permit to demonstrate in dc, where demonstrations are held daily.

i lived in winner south dakota in recent years, and recently sold my house, in which i am in now. i returned to the us less than a week ago, because my niece was shot in the hed four times by a street gang. however, i didnt expect to even see my house again once sold. however, the new owners were living in beaumont texas, and were going to rent the house to whoever. i called them to say hello and asked if they moved in yet, and they said no, that they were caught up in the katrina hurricane, which took the life of one of their relatives. then they explained about renting the property out. i asked them if i could stay at the house for a few days, and they said yes. i was shocked to see that mu computer service was not disconnected, and a final notice in the mailbox. i paid it my sympathies go out to cindy for her loss, but cindy shehan is a grief stricken who has actually lost her mind. technically it is called pts denial, she simply can not deal with her loss. the woman needs professional help and does not need to be made the poster child for supporting me terreorists, as those from the meedle east have claimed her for thier own. no in her right mind would ever blame anyone who keieled her son or daughter, other than the perpetrators themselves, or in this case me terreorists her son was fighting. sad, but true.

as usual, americans do not like when they have been proved wrong, or when something makes them look bad. as for cindy sheehan, the newspapers were very clear about her arrest. they said she was protesting without a permit. the permit has to be paid for in advance and sufficient notice given as to exact times of protest. she didnt have her permit, which to me is ridiculous, as its only a way to deter protests in washington, and to earn revenue for the government. thats all the government thinks about is their revenue, and the heck with the people, as they proved in new orleans, and leaving the homeless behind to absorb the blunt force of rita thats ok , you people dont have to worry about me after wednesday, as i will return to my house in italy, and you wont have to worry about me. you can have the us, as i want no part of it. at least in italy, my niece would have been safe, and would not have been shot four times in the hed. the sad part is, she wanted to visit her uncle, next month. which is me. americans stopped her from her dream, because of the type of society they have and way of life filled with violence. she was a beautiful girl of 17 and just a month shy of her birthday the intelligent people can see the iddiotic remarks made by chippewa, gold, lara, two cents, and others. your comments speak for themselves. i dont make childish remarks like americans do. your inept attempt at trying to make people believe italy is bad only serves to prove americans iddiocy, and lack of education. i believe its better if you people dont ever speak, rather than make yourself look stewart to educated people around the world. you americans are the ones who killed my niece. it was american terrorists, not ic as you always claim. her dream was to see italy in just a month and was a birthday gift from myself and her father.

iran is a great country full of wonderful culture and has a respectful society unlike the us. the us has not been credible for many decades and is now at an all time low. what the us promotes and wants to bring to iran and the rest of the world is freedom us style, which equals 2000 lb democracy bombs, smart bombs that kill all the women and children, and capitalism to steal the wealth of other countries. it is time for those 2000 lb democracy and smart bombs to rain down on the us and give them a taste of their own freedom and democracy. what goes up must come down, and by its own hands and its corruption, capitalism, greed, and immorality the us is falling fast. the us is a garbage can full of immorality, which comes from carlo, arturo,cheryl, i have never said italy is a bad place, i think it is beautiful country with wonderful people, obviously you are the one who lacks the ability to understand the point of that whole discussion. my point was that the situations you describe occur in every country across the globe. just because italy has some of their own issues does not make the country as a whole bad. the same holds true for america,britain and many others. "it is a thousand times better to have common sense without education than to have education without common sense."

sweet from dream, there is no doubt that god will desatroy the united states. however, he will do it in his own time, when americans are unaware of his presense, and while they are arrogant and boasting of wealth and power. god will show americans that there is only "one" super power on earth, and its god himself. the arrogance of americans are coming to an end, and then the world can rejoice and thank god, for he is good. it is clear that god sent the hurricanes to prove that he has more power than anyone, and yet, americans defy his power. the first people to reenter new orleans were strippers. that tells you what kind of morals, and society americans have and why the hurricanes were sent iranian is not genuine eslaam, it is an extreme form of it that is created during 7th century when shiaisim formed. iranians are peaceloving people and khomainee forced his ideology on iranians. rest assure that original is is not extreme but moderate and scientific and it does not provide any dress code for women or men and also it does not make men wear turban or beard. islaam is most modern but unfortunately fundamentalism is destroying its image. iranian molas must be overthrown by covert operation and let iranians free and enjoy life. god loves all mankind and eslaam is word of god and loves all too. it is just that molas mistranslate it due to their narrow perception to it.

hey iran, how is hamas doing? they received their wish to become their own nation and as soon as possible they fire rockets into israel, a hostile act by a foreign power against a sovereign nation, an act of war. the people of iran that are educated and wise do not want a war with america. they waqnt regime change and freedom to say they do not like their government. ak.bar ganji and his suffering at the hands of the ayatollahs is but one example. why else would they imprison someone for wanting to write the truth about iran in the form of press? rise up iran. your freedom is near. the lamps of liberty lit in iraq are there for you too.
