HCC Insurance/ Stratesec Links Marvin Bush & WTC

by MARGIE BURNS

Another agenda behind the White House's frenzied drive against Iraq, along with control of Iraq's oil reserves, must be to distract attention from 9-11.

The destruction of that day, along with the human cost, included hundreds of companies thrown out of business or damaged.

For years, Wall Street had spent billions trying to safeguard the World Trade Center (WTC).

The mass crime which succeeded in bypassing all those systems led to billions lost through security firms and insurance companies alone.

The more information comes to light about the fallen WTC, the more some of the behind-the-scenes dealing and connections look odd.

A brother of George W. Bush was connected to at least three companies did business with the WTC, although the White House has not mentioned that fact.
