Total411.info has obtained video of an ABC News report featuring an earwitness to explosives used to destroy the Industrial Canal in New Orleans. Here's the video, and here's the transcript:

DAVID MUIR, ABC NEWS: This is the actual levee that runs along the canal on the eastern side of the city. And when the hurricane hit, the water came through at such force, it was apparently too much. You can see the massive breach here, and when you look around the corner you can see what the water did to the Lower Ninth Ward. It completely destroyed neighborhoods.

JOE EDWARDS, JR., 9TH WARD
RESIDENT: I heard something go BOOM!

MUIR: Joe Edwards rushed to get himself and as many neighbors as possible into his truck. They drove to this bridge, where they've been living ever since

EDWARDS: My house broke in half. My mother's house just disintegrated. It was a brick house. All the houses down there floated down the street like somebody's guiding 'em

MUIR: Was it solely the water that broke the levee, or was it the force of this barge that now sits where homes once did? Joe Edwards says neither. People are so bitter, so disenfranchised in this neighborhood, they actually think the city did it, blowing up the levee to save richer neighborhoods like the French Quarter.

MUIR: So you're convinced . . .

EDWARDS: I know this happened!

MUIR: . . . they broke the levee on purpose?

EDWARDS: They blew it!

MUIR: New Orleans' mayor says there's no credence to this.

NEW ORLEANS MAYOR RAY NAGIN:
That storm was so powerful and it pushed so much water, there's no way anyone could have calculated what levee to dynamite to have the kind of impact to save the French Quarter.

MUIR: An LSU expert who looked at the video today says, while the barge may have caused it, it was most likely the sheer force of the water that brought the levee along the Lower Ninth Ward down.

(NOTE: It is not clear at all that blowing the Industrial Canal could have "saved" the Quarter, or that the Quarter was in danger at all.)

Comments:

This is very serious. But will the mainstream media, beyond this ABC report, pursue this story? Odds are they won't. Here we are on the fourth anniversary of 9/11 and still no serious reporting regarding the anomalies related to that event.

The city? Out of their league. But not so for the Feds.

PS: Wonder if Muir of ABC may have been improvising saying "city" when folks really might have been saying 'the government' blew the levee.

Yeah, it was the Army Corps of Engineers and their "contractors" crawling on the canals, earlier this year, not "the city."

one should think in terms of hydrodynamics when considering the catastrophic failure of a reinforced, recently upgraded levee (17th street canal). Water seeks the path of least resistance. How does water traveling parallel to the levee walls apply sufficient hydraulic or perpendicular force to compromise grade 1 concrete, given three important factors:

1. There was no storm surge applied.

2. The Hurricane had passed

3. This is an open air canal.

Excess water would simply spill over the sides, not cause a physical breach.

It looks increasingly as though what the MSM continues to describe as a "bungled response" to the N.O. catastrophe was purposely inept. Total chaos and confusion was FEMA's intent. FEMA was created to provide "Continuity of Government" in the event of a national emergency that would render the normal machinery of government inoperable. FEMA's future, ( very near future) role will be to provide a dictatorial, tyrannical form of government when when the Constitution and Bill of Rights are abrogated and martial law is imposed upon the people of the United States. FEMA can now point to the overall lack of communication and co-ordination between the various arms of the rescue effort, (while they were at the same time rejecting and sometimes ruthlessly obstructing a whole range of initiatives from other sources, both private and official. Will FEMA now claim that, come the next, and sadly inevitable national emergency, they will require total authority over all aspects of the emergency response, and thus be given carte blanche to put the full reange of "emergency powers" into effect?

With the truth about 9/11 emerging at an ever-increasing rate, it will soon be like a volcanic eruption. It will be unstoppable. The only means then available to this utterly wicked administration to keep the lid on it will then be another emergency, when FEMA will have the power to commandeer all means of communication, along with just about everything else. So what is it going to be? A "terrorist attack on Seattle, using radiological weapons? I wonder if we'll make it to the end of the year without the next, seemingly vitally necessary earth-shaking event hitting us?
