Notes on Naor Gilon

The man in the Israeli Embassy in the AIPAC/Franklin Scandal. Speculated to be Larry Franklin's handler. As the story broke Naor Gilon fled to Israel to prepare his and Israel's defense. Naor Gilon fled to Israel to prepare defense

Naor Gilon works at the Israeli Embassy in Washington DC. He is listed as "Minister for Political Affairs" but it appears that he is actually the Mossad Station Chief. In addition to handling Larry Franklin it is very possible that he is running Ramesh Sepehrad.

It is being reported Monday morning that the FBI has been following Naor Gilon, the diplomatic adviser in the Israeli Embassy in Washington, in connection with its investigation into an alleged leak of classified material to the pro-Israel lobby, AIPAC.

Newsweek reports that the FBI monitored a lunch meeting in 2003 between Gilon and an AIPAC lobbyist, which was joined by Pentagon official, Larry Franklin, who is suspected of leaking information to Israel via AIPAC.

The report claims that FBI agents saw Franklin attempt to transfer a classified U.S. policy document on Iran. Newsweek says Franklin, who is not Jewish, did reserve duty at the U.S. Embassy in Tel Aviv
