WTC Wreckage Tests positive for Thermite and Thermate. BYU Physics Prof Steven Jones' New Evidence

GLP Independant News

New evidence: Thermite and Thermate found in WTC Wreckage

In the fall of last year, BYU Physics Professor Steven Jones, who did research in cold fusion for the government, Wrote a paper about the World Trade Center collapse showing it was unlikely to be caused the way the official story told.

Now Jones has new evidence. Visual Evidence of the towers before collapse plus the fact that the steel was white hot for weeks suggested thermite. Jones was able to obtain a sample of WTC Wreckage from a memorial built out of the Wreckage and it tested positive for not just thermite but thermate, a specific substance used in cutting charges.

Steven Jones appeared on the Alex Jones Program June 7th and discussed this and other evidences such as the beams being cut in angle. The program can be downloaded here and here
