Cuba Hosts 118 nation "Axis Of Evil" / Anti NWO Summit This Weekend - - -

Quote

Non-aligned, or 'axis of evil'?

Havana (dpa) - Barely 150 kilometres from US soil, Cuba will play host to many of the leaders from what Washington terms rogue states, and might well even consider adding to its "axis of evil."

Heads of state and high level delegations from North Korea, Iran, Syria, Venezuela, Zimbabwe, Burma and Belarus will arrive Friday and Saturday in Havana for the conclusion of the 14th Non-Aligned Movement (NAM) summit.

Cuba has declared Havana the "capital city of the Third World" as it gets ready to host presidents including Iran's Mahmoud Ahmadinejad and Venezuela's Hugo Chavez.

The attendance of President Fidel Castro will be doubtful until the very last minute, but the possible presence of the host country's 80-year-old revolutionary leader has also raise expectations.

"When I read some news coming from regions other than ours, I am left with no option but to imagine that the 'axis of evil' is growing, and if we go by some press reports it will soon include 118 nations, namely those that make up NAM," Cuban Deputy Foreign Minister Abelardo Moreno joked this week in Havana.

NAM is currently made up of 116 countries, with Haiti and St Kitts and Nevis set to join the bloc later this week.

The United States was invited to the summit as an observer, but unsurprisingly declined. The invitation issued by the communist island of Cuba had of course been less than enthusiastic - a formality given the US had attended the last NAM summit, in Malaysia in 2003.

Still, some allies of Washington are also expected in Havana, among them Pakistani President Pervez Musharraf and Indian Prime Minister Manmohan. But the NAM summit at the very least has an anti- US flair, hiding with varying degrees of success under the bloc's defence of "multilateralism."

The meeting's current draft declaration, to be approved by leaders on Saturday, contains abundant, more or less explicit criticisms of Washington's foreign policy.

NAM leaders "reject the use of the term 'axis of evil' by certain states to stigmatize other states with the pretext of the fight against terrorism," the draft says.

Close US ally Israel does not escape unscathed either. NAM, which counts among its members such prominent Israel critics as Iran, Syria and Lebanon, condemns the recent "merciless aggression against Lebanon."

It further rejects "the imposition of unilateral measures and plans aimed at allowing Israel, the occupying power, to impose an illegal unilateral solution" in its conflict with the Palestinian people.

The draft also stresses the "unconditional support (...) for Syria's just demand to restore the full sovereignty of the occupied Syrian Golan Heights."

On the other side, the draft speaks in favour of fiery opponents of Washington like Iran, Venezuela and, of course, Cuba.

On Teheran, NAM "stresses the inalienable right of developing countries to take part in the investigation, production and use of nuclear energy for peaceful ends," the draft says.

NAM also expresses its concern over "agressive" US policies against the government in Caracas, and "the increase in the actions of the US aimed at affecting the stability of Venezuela."

As usual, the Non-Aligned Movement draft demands the lifting of the US trade embargo on Cuba, in force since 1962.

"I would not say that the draft has very strong elements ... They are simply the NAM principles of international law, principles contained in the UN Charter," Deputy Foreign Minister Moreno said this week.

In a clear reference to the US, Moreno added that anyone who considers the draft too strong disagrees with the principles of international law.

Given the high number of leaders that have confirmed their attendance at the summit, analysts in Havana consider it highly likely that Fidel Castro will make an effort to appear, as he recovers from surgery undergone six weeks ago.

Castro is bound to enjoy the opportunity to appear in a "family picture" with such enemies of the US as Ahmadinejad or Syria's Bashar Assad.

That "non-aligned" crap was always a joke. His economy was more than half funded by the Soviet Union while he tried to claim being "non-aligned".

I just don't understand why we never dealt with Cuba the way we have with China.

now if all the NWO and ANTI NWO folks stood together and fought for a FREE world.. that would really be something

but those days are long gone or are they?

we shall see if the human spirit makes a final stand in this epic battle maybe god will grace his children with his mercy once again....

if they are strong enough and stop turning their backs..

stop being angry at their creator for letting them feel the PAIN of being human..

each day man makes a choice to embrace or reject his creator..

maybe enough will embrace that which is divine in them... maybe...

just maybe...

If Japan news covering any of this, I will try to get translations. They do a pretty good job of covering events around the world. Have seen some news footages here not seen on USA TV. Especially a few clips from Katrina. Heh. The JP reporter & camera crew got harrassed (sp?) and I remember him going on about it and the JP anchormen being "shocked" over such treatment.

Interesting times. NWO vs non-NWO.

Heres to Truth & Freedom (not the MSM kind either).

Why not email the White House that question? See if you get a response? or a knock at your door. Then again, if a child of God, you do not need to worry of it. And you know your response to a NWO "law" of being more than just a SS number.

FWIW I listen to a PBS station that rebroadcasts the BBC World Service and they mentioned the meeting, in passing while making a statement about Castro's health.

Very interesting. I'm trying to figure out what I think about this.

The NWO or NAM. I wish there was a 3rd choice.

Maybe, they'll both beat each other to a pulp and then a 3rd choice will step in (and it will most likely suck worse than the other two, so I guess I should be more careful about wishing for a 3rd choice).

Well, the horse is already out of the barn. We've gone global. We've got a global economy; we've become interdependent and all that jazz. So this has created an opening for a new position of power that all the powermongers are just itching to fill. Hey, why settle for ruling a nation, when you could be emperor of the world?

Things are going to get very ugly. There's just too much up for grabs now.

well I will tell you something most people.. (and it happens to everyone)

When you are a child you are born innocent.. (you know, trust, and believe in your connection to god instinctively) but then one day something happens.. something causes you to realize the world you live in is not all love like you thought it was...

one day in your childhood you ALL lost your innocence some how...

well.. on that day your EGO or lower self or human mind - turned its back on its creator.. turned its back on god.. turned its back on YOU!

most people are angry at god for the pain of losing their innocence as a child but what they all fail to realize is.. it is not GOD that caused you to lose your innocence... it was a HUMAN exercising free will...

not god...

people must learn again that they are indeed 2 beings.. they are a human / a meat sack with a brain that has a consciousness but they are also a sentient "light being" that is co-inhabiting this body for awhile...

the brain stopped listening and trusting the soul when the innocence was lost as a child

we have to retrain ourselves to trust our TRUE immortal selves.. (or the voice of god within us) we have to embrace our souls again...

embrace that which is GOD in US...

This is some big stuff and stuff I'll ponder on, when I cut and paste into a document.

I love your thread and it's very interesting, but what you say reminds me of what I heard on TV on 911. I listened to people talk about how they lost their faith in God. Truth be told, the events of the past five years have pretty much done me in, in that department too. At any rate, thanks for sharing your insights. They are truly worth pondering.

And now, back to our regularly scheduled programming :) I'll stop derailing your thread.

perhaps that was the most important part of the attack...

yes it is not limited to that ONE event in childhood.. it is constantly reinforced after that through media schools etc...

you are programmed to be confused.. because you are much easier to control when you are confused and need to be TOLD WHAT TO DO to feel OK and SAFE..

see?

because if you maintained that FAITH in god / yourself you had as a child.. you would not be confused and always know exactly what to do!

that my friend.. would make for an impossible to control society...

Yes. And more people need to figure that out. TPTB can't do anything we don't allow them to do. Our numbers are great, and their numbers are small.

All they have is threats and fear and violence and maybe a few measley carrots to dangle in our faces. Their methods could not work if people refused to cower in fear, refused to sell-out, and refused to be easily provoked to hatred/anger.
