"My Uncle was murdered" Layla Asamarai, MA Doctoral Candidate in Clinical Psychology, January 7, 2005

"I received an e-mail today from a dear friend in Minnesota who is grieving the death of her uncle in Iraq. Her heartrending personal account of his murder deeply saddened me and I include it for all those who wish to read it. Afterwards, please read a passionate appeal to the American people by Cindy Sheehan, a tireless crusader to bring an end to the war in Iraq. God Bless.

"I wanted to share some really sad family news that we were just stricken with yesterday. My uncle Abdulrazaq (my father's younger brother who is 50 years old) was in Iraq (in our local city of Samarra Iraq) on Thursday January 5th, 2006 and at 8pm went to go meet with his business partners to finish financial exchanges and on his way back he was killed by American troops.

Upon stealing the $10,000 that were in his coat pocket the troops that the Americans are so proud of and support, found that he did not have any weapons or explosives and then they dumped his body at the local hospital and walked away with his money.

My cousin is a resident physician at the local hospital. The Americans had notified them that they were bringing in a dead body and to come and receive it. Upon going to receive the body from the Americans outside of the hospital he was shocked to find that this is his uncle. At home his wife was very worried as he was extraordinarily late for dinner. She called other family members who called the hospital (which is something people typically do since so many people are dying since the U.S. invasion) to see if he had an accident at which point my cousin answered informing them that his body was just dumped at the hospital.

Our family was contacted and they came to receive his body. He was shot in the head, abdomen, and in one of his kidneys and it is believed that he died immediately, though the details of whether they robbed him before or after they killed him and when decided to dump his body are unknown. He left behind a wife and two daughters age 4 and 5. They are still not sure how to break the news to his daughters.

My uncle had spent 16 years as a prisoner of war in Iran. He was freed on April 9th, 1998 (even though the Iran/Iraq war ended in the late 80's). Upon starting his life again in 1998 he married and had two beautiful daughters. Although it was always hard for him to talk about the torture in the Iranian prisons, his daughters Shayma (5 yrs old) and Yamama (4 years old) always had a way of transcending words such they seeped into his heart in the most natural and miraculous way and when he played with them he was free from his tortured thoughts and pains.

My uncle Abdulrazak is not the only one, there are thousands that have died in this way. This is the face of American terrorism. Our family is so numb. Our hearts are swollen with grief, resentment, and sorrow.

American soldiers sign up to risk life and death and when one of them dies it is though the earth stops its rotation, but when an Iraqi civilian who is working hard to support his family and is forced to live his life in the midst of an American occupation is murdered and robbed by sweet American boys, he is dumped like road kill.

What makes their lives more worth living?? Is it the blue eyes and blond hair? or is it the cross that hangs on their necks?? I wonder what defense they have for this one. Did he part his hair on the wrong side? Did he wear the wrong color? Was he driving "suspiciously"? What would they say he did to deserve being murdered? How about robbing him? It must not have been a robbery. Maybe they were afraid that a doctor would steal his money so they kept it for safe keeping.

Maybe they wanted to take the money and buy a gift for his daughters. Whatever it is it must be good because they are Americans! In fact as they provide this hypothetical justification (assuming they would be prompted to do so- which wouldn't happen because Americans answer to no one) I can just hear the national anthem playing in the background.

My uncle's murderers will come home to their families one day to tell of the heroic stories but humbly refuse to be called heroes and instead insist that they were merely doing their duty, but in their soiled hearts they will carry the ugliness of what they have done and who they became and it will eat at them until it destroys their lives and the lives around them. This email will not have an end-just as these killings do not..... "

Keep fighting. Keep resisting. Don't give the invaders one night of sound sleep. This has to end, one way or another. The 'murkan military/industrial complex must be destroyed.

- * 1 in 20 Americans are in prisons
- * 1 in 4 americans have no health insurance.
- * The US spends more on military hardware, than the rest of the world, combined.

This is a recipe for disaster.

"Keep fighting"

I don't see any Americans fighting against Bush and the Zionists controllers. All I hear is Americans moaning.

"Keep resisting"

Where are the resisters? Americans are still paying voluntary taxes to help fund Bush's illegal wars.

"Don't give the invaders one night of sound sleep"

I can assure you, Bush and his Zionist handlers sleep very sound at night, knowing that the American people are too afraid to do anything to him or them.

"This has to end, one way or another"

It will not end as long as good American people do nothing other than moan. Do you really think that when the next election comes around and you vote in who ever the opposition is to Bush, there will be any change in US policy towards its people and the rest of the world. The face may change but who ever gets into power will be under the same controllers.

"The 'murkan military/industrial complex must be destroyed"

There is only one way that can happen and that is for the American people to pick up their guns and organize, then take back the power. But that will not happen because American people are living in FEAR.

I believe it is too late for you and your countrymen and women. Get used to being abused.
