10-year-old boy prisoner of Guantanamo Bay -- found innocent after two years of detainment

February Sunday 19th 2006 (05h00) : 10-year-old boy prisoner of Guantanamo Bay -- found innocent after two years of detainment 23 comment(s). From: Eric Smith> Date: Thu, 1 Apr 2004 02:10:46 +0900 To: <http://www.thenation.com/outrage/in...> (hyperlinks also follow story.)

You're kidding, right? That's it?

After holding Brits in our extralegal dungeons for two years, one day we just let 'em go?

We've still got more than 600 people imprisoned in our Halliburton-built prison camp at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, where for more than two years we've been interrogating them, denying them lawyers, denying them any kind of judicial review, hinting quite bluntly that they could all remain in limbo like this forever, and trying to put a brave face on all of the suicide attempts.

And every now and then, without comment, we bundle a few of them onto international flights and dump them out on a street somewhere -- and suddenly it turns out that this dangerous menace was just a bewildered Kabul taxi driver, or a 10-year-old.

What the heck is that about?

I mean, if the argument is that these people are too horrifically dangerous to ever risk granting them access to the American judicial system, how can you just up and cut them loose?

And if they're not dangerous -- well, how can you hold a man in a Kafkaesque jail for two years, slapping him around, denying him sleep, asking him randomly desperate (and therefore asinine) questions like "Do you know Mullah Omar?"; and then one day open the door, shake his hand and wave goodbye, without even the slightest blush of shame, the most sheepish of apologies?

One of the first of five Britons released this week from Gitmo was one Jamal al Harith of Manchester, a website designer and a father of three.

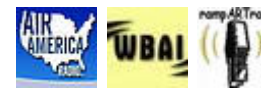

"After a while, we stopped asking for human rights -- we wanted animal rights," Harith told Britain's Daily Mirror. "In Camp X-Ray my cage was right next to a kennel housing an Alsatian dog. He had a wooden house with air conditioning and green grass to exercise on.

"I said to the guards, 'I want his rights' and they replied, "That dog is a member of the US army'."

This man, Harith, wasn't held but a few hours by British police and security services before they had shrugged and let him go free. There's no case, apparently.

> 10-year-old boy prisoner of Guantanamo Bay -- found innocent after two years of detainment 19th February 2006 - 12h28 - Posted by 4.***.84.** Why is it so hard for Whitey to admit that s/he is against Islam and Muslims? Oh, I know many of us say we are for freedom and for equality and other falsehoods, but why can we not say verbally the visceral thought? I know that subconscious thoughts about "those people" is always there. How many times during the day I meet Indian/Pakistani Muslims at work, during meetings, during lunch, walking in the corridors and the thought of how "different" they are... And yet, I don't have balls enough to even try to understand why I think this...

Yet, when asked, or when a situation arises, I am ready to verbalize all the clichés about how equal we are here and the wars are not against Islam/Muslims, etc., etc.

Anyone? Anyone else feel a little like this and want to vent?

People have no problems adapting to foreigners or their customs once they take the time to spend an hour with them, people understand each other, we are not the problem. The problem lies within the governments of the world and the people who control them. This is where the real terror emanates from

It is not rich versus poor in this case. (While "rich" versus "poor" may play a role in a comprehensive or otherwise some other way). I can assure you that I nor my team members of IT professionals are rich. I can also assure you that the church that I attend and its members are not rich. If anything, the people in the church are less well off due to age/retirement, and other professions, like car mechanics, bicklayers and an auctioneer. All of which are highly against Arabs and

What you are saying, in effect give weight to my argument. You are deflecting it onto another part of society -- that of the government. But ask yourself where did the members of the government come from, but from the people like you and me. And even if the government says things, ask yourself why we accept that negative description?

I know it happens with me... And I see it happening with my peers. And I wonder why it is that I appear to be admitting this, whereas no one else around me does so. Sometimes I see this (verbal admission of hating Muslims/Arabs) as my weakness; that I am letting down my Whitey American brothers and sisters.

You may deny in print what I am saying... But, really look into yourself... As I have -- We Whitey Americans really detest these peoples. Try to imagine what you felt when you (if ever) have seen a White woman in company of a non-White man.

Think of that moment and recall the talk that makes it super easy for us to accept any negative thing said about these people.

It is not a rich versus poor issue. It is Whitey versus Muslims/Arabs issue.

Not at work. Not on the train. Not in my dating scene. Not at church. No where I have gone to over the last four years. Oh, not on vacation.

As I look further in my past and my daily encounters, I find the biased attitudes were there before nine eleven. And I find that why I detest the blacks and latino are part of the same spectrum of hate in me and all the other Whitey Americans I know. (Simply, that they are not White).

Anyway I do not see any change in Whitey attitude -- we will be in this war for the next 900 years if not more. We will buy into all the negative and condensing things said about Muslims and Arabs and as a Whitey, I will get spooked and I will lash out with weapons and have my boys kill.

I see this reaction in me as clear as day -- and I see it in all my friends. It appears that I am the only one who expresses it,

We seem to be drifting a little off topic and the issue is scrolling off the primary screen... In my experience, once it gets off the first screen folks stop reading/responding to the articles...

Well, whether its 10 or 100,000 people who are controlling is not really the issue; Whitey America is beyond hope -- in education, self-respect, respect of other peoples and cultures, respect for value of humankind/animal-kind/plant-kind... It is going to be this way until as such time as the Divine Hand put a stop to it... (Perhaps, your creator/nature/or chance, what ever you believe... puts a stop to it...)

Mark my words, it does not matter whether it is Bush or Clinton or Kennedy, Whitey is Whitey... Check out what Clinton was doing to Iraq or what JFK did to S. Vietnam's president when Diem went ever so slightly made a peace offer to the N. Vietnamese... (Kennedy had Diem assassinated..)

BTW, I don't believe it will hit the fan; the poweres that be are better than letting that happen... And if it did, it is easy to get Whitey looking at the next boogyman to get his mind off the fan and the fertilizer...

Whitey will never change.

As a white woman, I suppose it's why I rarely date white men anymore. Dark-skinned men know what discrimination looks like (as do I as a woman), and they know what's going on politically and culturally, unlike most white men. They treat me better, and I like their looks. And they know to be outraged by a child being held for two years in a prison. They are close to humanity. Has white supremacist patriarchy blinded white men to that part of themselves?

When you mention that you invited someone to your church, that explains alot right there. You and all the moral majority types manufacture fear for your gain. Also- do I have a problem with mixed-race couples? Not at all! That's good ol' Christian tolerance and understanding for ya!

Agree, with most of the posts, people are turned against other people whether its religion , black or white, or even which football team you support. Theres no denying it's happening. Don't forget the world was polarized 15 years ago, between the ideologies of capitalism and communism. Capitalism won. Mainly by enticing the population they need to 'own' and buy things. Capitalism rules brutally by dividing people, even better by getting people to fight amongst themselves. People fighting amongst themselves are easy to dominate, by the few at the top, and the fans that fuel the conflicts are waved.

Why Guantanamo? This is enabled by the governments monopoly over violence. It is only legitimate when exercised by their lackeys.

No!!! Capitalism did NOT win! The Soviet Union was NOT Communist except in name alone. Was the production controlled by the workers? No, it was controlled by the government. In short, the Soviet economy was the end product of unchecked capitalism--a la the robber barons of the late century. The American economy, by contrast, contains a LOT of Socialist concepts, like rules against monopolies and other forms of unfair competition, labor unions, etc. Things that level the playing field so that competition can ensue, allowing higher quality products at more reasonable prices, with relatively happy workers. For a better explanation, check out NelsonLeith.com and look at the right side of the screen for the essay "The Free Market Cannot Be 'Capitalist.'" (Sorry, cannot link directly to the essay itself.)

America (and to a lesser extent, Britain) welcomes people from every background to its shores. Arabs and Muslims have assimilated well in the US but not so well here in Britain and other European nations. America is familiar with Muslims, Christians, Jews, Hidus, Zoroaster and every faith. They live and work in the US and are happy to have been welcomed. Militant islamists, on the other hand, wish to end the culture of the west. No solution except for the end of Israel and to capitalism, democracy, consumerism, freedom, etc will suffice. Some of these people are willing to end their life, even if the remote chance of killing or even hurting ONE Jew exists. Terrorism has existed since the beginning of civilization but EXTREME attacks against Americans and American interest over the last 30 years have culminated in the ultimate response to finally try and put an end to this trend. Arabs and Muslims are respected. Militant Islamists and Militant Islams itself are the targets of this.

Yeah, there is 'militant' Islam just as there is militant monetrisism. The 'militant' Islam isn't as big, or as large a majority,as the media would have us believe.It serves their interests to show that so we assume they're all like that. The root of the problem is in power being in the hands of a few. Whether its Tony Blair or Sheik Al whatsisname. Yet the irony is both talk the talk of absolute right. "You're either with us or against us", or the "West is all bad". Both are childish, and deny that we as human beings have the ability to rationalise. Agree with the woman poster that the media is doing a good job of stereotyping Islam as the metaphorical black man of 1950's USA, whipping up fear. -even though I consider islam ridiculous.

You are naive to think that all white people are racist, I am white, yet some of my best friends are black, latino and muslim. How dare you think you speak for everybody with your racist commentary? It is not a matter of being honest with oneself, I always have been honest. These people are my brothers, more than white racists like you. Perhaps you are a bigot, and that is good you can admit it, but do not assume all white americans are like you. Im truly sorry if that has been your experience. I agree that governments create these conflicts, not because they are racist because they use the old divide and conquer methods. Keep the stupid populace ignorant and suspicious of each other while you steal their money, their liberty and their souls. Sorry man, I dont think we are all like you, no matter how you might try and ease your racist concious.

Or are you talking about MEK, the new version of Al-qaeda helping to win the freedom in Iran by terrorizing?

Oh wait, your talking about those pesky terrorists that didn't destroy the statue of liberty, a symbol of liberty and freedom, they destroyed financial centers and military establishments. Sounds like an attack on the military industrial complex, not the American people or freedom.

You would think the statue of liberty, all by it's lonesome, would of been a much easier target.

Perhaps your speaking of those craaaaaazy muslims that held candle light vigils for the victims of S11...in Tehran.

Imagine if those militant christian fundamentalists wanted to destroy those militant muslim fundamentalists...I bet those leaders in those wacky muslim countries could say something like this:

"Those militant christians want to take away our Islamic way of life, look at what they did to secular Iraq, you don't want the Americans to come here and do the same do you?????"

The only people who benefit from war are those who make the profits, like me. The rest is noise. But please don't stop on my account, the longer you do it, the more I make....$CHA-CHING$

Instead of actually trying to get to the bottom of these issues we instead fight amongst ourselves. You must realise that this plan is so perfect. We actually end up 'policing' ourselves. Wake up and smell the roses. This planet is ruled by the Illuminati and your wonderful president Bush and Cheney have become almost completely possessed by Reptilian entities. Do your research if you want to wake up before it's too late.

> 10-year-old boy prisoner of Guantanamo Bay -- found innocent after two years of detainment 5th March 2006 - 18h48 - Posted by 24.***.116.*** The plan is nearing completion, 220.178. Wait, wait. Catastrophe awaits on us all. We must learn to ride even the most monstrous of waves out to their completion, until they crashingly bottom out. And we must learn quickly, before the deep plunge. Divide and conquer works this way; misinformation, lies, twisted half-truths are given to one side, and the opposite information, often just as inaccurate as the first, is fed to the other side. Result: Since neither side bothers to make a critical analysis on the information they have obtained, such as finding out about its veracity, asking crucial questions such as 'is the information logically consistent with most of what we know of the real world?' or 'who has the most to gain from the course of action advocated by this argument?' questions that the majority of us don't have trouble asking when we are in a business meeting, but apparently do when discussing far more serious matters, such as the fate of the world; since no one bothers to ask critical questions such as these, all that remains as possible courses of action for most bloggers are the ridiculous name calling tactics, insults, unfunny one-liners, and out & out rude behavior found rampant and unchecked in most 'political' blog-holes. Most of these bloggers exhibit through their writing behavior most of us would never even think of doing in public, out in the real world, for fear of having our noses broken or being shot.

This is the major reason why I like to respond to comments posted on blogs long after the article has been published. Most blog writers rarely if ever go back to an old article to see if anyone else has posted a response to their often uncivilized & rancid comments. The Blog-universe is a virtual wasteland of vicious comments and postings, a giant desert of recriminations and lambastings, never to be visited again by their writers after only a week or two of their verbal jousts. I sometimes feel like a large bird of prey when I go back to a very old posting, with a whole world to feast on, with hardly a predator in sight. I have no qualms when I dive into an attack, since most of my prey are barbarically ignorant and incredibly stupid writers one would never wish meeting in the real world. And to drive another important point home; just because an article is more than 2 or 3 weeks old doesn't mean that it no longer is topical or valid. I have found many two or three year old articles that are more informative and insightful than the majority of the articles I've read in the last 3 weeks. And to top it all off, I have the last word, at least so far, 100% of the time. Winner, winner, gets chicken dinner. But I digress, which is of course, my prerogative. How to disable this method of attack, this ancient tactic of divide and conquer, older by the way, than Caesar, a tactic that remains a favorite with all those who wield power? We must learn to use your own intellect, not just in school or at our jobs, but even more importantly applying this gift to vital issues that are affecting our world, relying on our own powerful minds to reason and work things out. We must do your own homework, find out more about other cultures, find out more about ourselves, learn to revel in our wonder and curiosity about the miraculous nature of existence itself. We are living in a time where a great deal of knowledge and information is at our fingertips, we no longer have any excuses not to be the best human beings we can possibly be, not here in America. Our ancestors did not have any of the information technologies that most Americans have at their disposal. To be an ignorant American in the early 21st Century is to be an intellectually lazy American, a person who ultimately does not deserve to have freedom, security nor prosperity. To be an intellectually lazy American is to be a pawn for those in power. People who live in fear through their own ignorance are the most susceptible to the divide and conquer tactic. People who live in fear through their own lack of curiosity are the most gullible and therefore the most easily controlled by entities more powerful than they. To be free, one must be able to think clearly & quickly, without support if need be. To be free one must learn to be guided by certainty, logic, and the truth, one's own moral code, and not by individuals, especially if those individuals have displayed logical inconsistencies, lack of honesty and lack of integrity in their past. You can have all the money and power in the world, but if in the final analysis, if you cannot think independently on your own, you are no freer than the poor wretches in Guantanamo Bay. Your prison may be far more pleasant, but pretty prisons are still prisons, since someone other than yourself holds the key to your destiny.

> 10-year-old boy prisoner of Guantanamo Bay -- found innocent after two years of detainment

13th March 2006 - 16h35 - Posted by 81.**.57.***

Well it just shows how out of controll the usa are,How can a ten year old boy be a danger to the good old usa.I Know if i was a ten year old boy who was held for two years,or any other person held for two years and was innocent ,I would want revenge on any and all Americans .And i suspect that a lot inoent people who have been released will want revenge or who are planning revenge,cos the good old usa have driven them to it.and who can blame them ,if you were locked up for two years,abused you telling me you would not want some payback.if any Americans are reading this in the years to come you are going to get Blowback from the innocent people you have fucked over>YOU HAVE BROUGHT THIS ON YOU SELFS

This is the Crusades...Read about the 9 previous ones. Read about the 500 years of the Spanish Inquisition, read about the Dark-Ages when the church ruled. America has been conditioned, very easily I might add, to hate the next "enemy" the next "immagrant" people, the next "sub-human".....They're called TERRORISTS, you know those arabs and muslim people, nobody else is called a terrorist just them. Just like history before it: Give them a degrading name, tell demonizing stories about them and the Christians (and americans easily influenced with racism and propaganda) will Torture and Kill them.....Heathen, Savages: N/S American natives, Witches, pagans: devil-worshippers, Communists: evil and on and on and on and on....

Yet every american is an immagrant, except the original owners of course.

TORTURE is Okay, they're just Terrorists ;) ;) and not a peep from the sheep, they must have their blessing on these acts upon other humans.

Oh and read about how governments get their people rallied to fight a war, the same tried and true methods still employed today.

"Forget about the crimes of history...as you sit and watch the same crimes in the present", me
"History is hard to see when you're sitting in the middle of it", me
"...and if you don't know, now you know nigga..", Notorious B.I.G.

I DO NOT APPROVE OF OR CONDONE THIS CRUSADE, THESE WARS, THIS TORTURE, BEING SPIED ON, INTEGRATING YOUR RELIGION WITH OUR GOVERNMENT AND BEING LED BY A BRUTAL DICTATOR (not elected but appointed by the rich, "elite")... I will pay my taxes like a good slave, but this statement will be included. The Buck does not stop here.

America looks like the Communist Russia that the propaganda told me about. That was the previous enemy: Commyies, Reds...kill a commy for mommy....rah! rah! rah!

Peace and may the propaganda not persuade your views.

"I am prepared to wager that well within twenty-five years the Americans themselves will have realized what a handicap has been imposed upon them by this parasitic Jewry, clamped fast to their flesh and nourishing itself on their life-blood. It is this Jewry that is dragging them into adventures which, when all is said and done, are no concern of theirs and in which the interests at stake are of no importance to them. What possible reason can the non-Jewish Americans have for sharing the hatreds of the Jews and following meekly in their footsteps? One thing is quite certain -within a quarter of a century the Americans will either have become violently anti-Semitic or they will be devoured by Jewry." -- Adolf Hitler, Transcript XIV, 24th February 1945
