The "Live Free or Die" State?

...from the Union Leader:

"University of New Hampshire administrators are standing behind a tenured professor who has publicly theorized that the U.S. government orchestrated the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks, even as Gov. John Lynch condemned his remarks.

Calling psychology professor William Woodward's theory 'completely crazy and offensive,' the governor said in a statement yesterday that he plans to address his concerns with the University System of New Hampshire Board of Trustees.

'Although academic freedom is important,' the governor said, 'if the UNH professor is promoting that view, it reflects a reckless disregard for the true facts and raises questions as to why such a professor would be teaching at the university in the first place.'"

The Union Leader itself is also calling for "an investigation".

Honest to God!

It's took us longer to get the Bushling to agree to an investigation of the "true facts" surrounding September 11th, 2001, and we still have too many unanswered questions!

The only ridiculous conspiracy theory is that 20 guys in loincloths can shut down North American air security and Norad.

Also there are no Democratic and Republican melting points of steel. There is only one. And burning jet fuel can not reach that temperature.

And even if it could - it can not account for WTC7 which was not involved with jet fuel at all

The official story is a crock of baloney.

If the American public could just snap out of their main stream media mind control for a minute they'd see that the official story is a really huge conspiracy. Wake up folks

In 1400 AD I suppose people who said the world wasn't flat were extreme and outrageous. However, they were correct.

On September 11, 2001 I watched, on television, three controlled demolitions. I knew what they were then, and I know what they were now. I do not know who did it (I have my suspicions) but I KNOW that they were controlled demolitions, and so should anyone who looks at them.

By the way I read CNN was going to replay the television coverage of the 9/11 attack. I will be waiting to see if they edit out all the references to bombs going off.

I have never heard of where these hijackers names came from. On the first day or two they released names of people on the planes. There were no arabs or middle eastern names. Then all of the sudden on the second day they had a whole list of names. Where did they come from? Did they suddenly get their intelligence? They also said they used fake id's - Why make a new ID, just the same ethnicity etc. as your old one. It all seemed so fake those two days that I taped everything on videotape.

The Hijacker names supposedly came from Atta's suitcase, which conveniently did not make it on the plane. It was very considerate of him to provide all the names in luggage which miraculously did not end up on the plane.
