Russian Defense Minister Sergei Ivanov has said that Ukraine had supplied cruise missiles to Iran and China, the RIA-Novosti news agency reported Friday.

"In 2000 and 2002, Ukrainian company Progress which is a daughter company of the Ukrspetsexport holding, supplied Iran and China with batches of six K-55 cruise missiles (these are air-based long-range Soviet missiles). A criminal probe has been started into these deals and official instances have been informed," the Russian minister said at a press conference in Moscow.

This fact is a blatant violation of the missile technologies nonproliferation control, Sergei Ivanov added.
