EXPOSED: UPDATE - MPACUK Digs & Finds Israeli Zionist Axel Owns German Newspaper!

Rating: ★ ★ ★ ☆ ☆ / 60%

TELEGRAPH journalists could have to adhere to a string of publishing principles -- including registering support for the state of Israel -- if German publishing giant Pro Israeli Axel Springer takes over the newspaper.

Springer whose executives visited London yesterday to quiz Telegraph managers about the paper and its stablemates, the Sunday Telegraph and the Spectator -- includes the Israel pledge on its website under "publishing principles".

The group says it is determined "to promote reconciliation of Jews and Germans and support the vital rights of the State of Israel".

A biography of the company's eponymous founder notes that he made his first visit to Israel in July 1966, a year before Israel seized the Jordan-controlled West Bank territory.

As usual Zionists have been quick to stoke the flames and add to the insult. It was an alert member of the public, who posted on our comments section that first tipped us off to the Israeli connection to the attacks on the Prophet PBUH. The brothers name is Bilal Patel and his comment is tucked away in the hundreds of comments and emails we have had on our site. We thank him for being vigilant in this Jihad! Here MPACUK exposes for the first time in Britain the Zionist owner of the German paper which reprinted the highly Islamophobic pictures of the Prophet PBUH. Once again MPACUK are the first Muslim group to get to the truth. Imagine readers if only our mosques were as vigilant and active, 2000 groups would be protecting the Ummah instead of one.

Journalists on one of Springer's titles today confirmed there was a statement in staff contracts referring to Israel.

Springer is making its bid for the Telegraph's parent company, Hollinger International, in conjunction with the Israeli billionaire Haim Saban, who is believed to have his eye on another of the company's assets, the Jerusalem Post.

The Telegraph became notably pro-Israel under the chairmanship of outgoing proprietor Conrad Black, whose Jewish wife, Barbara Amiel, left, has written trenchantly in support of the Israeli cause.

But its present editorial stance on Europe may be affected if Springer is successful in taking over the group for a reputed £700m.

The Berlin-based company's website says the firm vows "to uphold liberty and law in Germany, a country belonging to the Western family of nations, and to further the unification of Europe".

In common with much of the rightwing press, the Telegraph has been persistently Eurosceptic, with the Sunday Telegraph including a weekly column by Christopher Booker devoted to vilifying EU policy.

Proving once again that Zionists are the biggest cause of Islamophobia in the world today. Please do not fall into "non Muslims hate us" trap that they want you too. Blame the perpetrators of the attack and wake up to their evil. The general European is as ignorant as you are of who and why the paper is attacking the Prophet PBUH.

Fund or join MPAC, we cannot forever fight such a great enemy on such meagre resources. Protect the Prophet PBUH now and in the future.

THE GAME IS TO PIT MUSLIMS & EUROPEANS AGAINST EACH OTHER. DONT FALL FOR IT!

The company's website also states it is committed to the "transatlantic alliance", adding a pro-American clause to its list of principles the day after the terrorist attacks on the US on September 11 2001.

The following year the company even endowed a "George H W Bush Fellowship", enabling US political experts to engage in research at the American Academy in Berlin.

Under Lord Black -- who filled his board with American neo-conservative hawks such as former secretary of state Henry Kissinger and Richard Perle, the former chairman of the defence policy board -- the Telegraph has been pro-American in outlook.

When Lord Black stepped down as Hollinger's chief executive in November, the former Sunday Telegraph editor Sir Peregrine Worsthorne complained he had cut the Telegraph adrift from traditional English conservatism.

"He's turned the Telegraph into an American-propaganda and Israel-propaganda sheet, which I don't agree with," Sir Peregrine said.

"I think his doctrinaire, almost blind support for America in the Iraq war has given the Telegraph a narrowness of vision that makes it a less impressive newspaper than it should be."

Whatever its politics, the ambitions of the Springer group -- which owns Die Welt and the mass-market tabloid Bild -- are not in doubt.

"In the sixth decade of its existence, Axel Springer Verlag is transforming itself from a German print publisher to an international media company," the company's website says.

The group already publishes more than a hundred newspapers and magazines and various special issues outside Germany.

It has interests in France, Switzerland, Spain and Portugal and has expanded eastwards -- to Hungary, Poland, the Czech Republic and even Bulgaria.

Springer even has a subsidiary in Russia, while in Romania it has a stake in the country's second largest magazine publisher.

Behind this huge empire is the figure of Friede Springer, the 61-year-old widow of the founder, who controls 55.4% of the company's voting rights.

She met Axel Springer while serving as an au pair for the Springer household and went on to join the company's board in 1984, a year before her husband's death.

Her say will be crucial in deciding the strategy adopted by the chief executive, Mathias Döpfner, as he attempts his most spectacular move yet, one that would see Springer make its first leap outside continental Europe.

Caricature of hate

Written by Riju on 2006-02-02 13:29:46

This vindictive assault on our religion and our beloved prophet seems to have become much larger. Seven publications in France, Germany, the Netherlands, Italy and Spain carried the vicious attack on our faith; designed to cause maximum offence to us all.

As someone mentioned on a different board, the Editor of France Soir is someone called ARNAUD LEVY of Israeli background. Apparently he was sacked by the owner of France Soir who is an Egyptian Christian, Raymond Lakah. The sacked editor is not Jacques Le Franc as News 24 and others mentioned.

I'm in a bit of a dilemma; should we boycott European goods when the actual crime was committed by an Israeli?

For the sake of the Prophet, and all the injustices that he fought against, GET OVER IT!!!! You bunch of pathetic Muslims are getting all upset over some stupid drawings, but when actualy Muslims are getting killed in Russia and Israel, you couldnt pull of a decent boycott, or any form of solid response.

A picture is worth more than a life? You have Islam all wrong. Shame on you all!!!

Funny how your anger is reserved for that article which criticises the zionist influence on the whole episode.

Your nothing but a zionist in a beard. You sell out snake!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

The issue is not that its a few picture it is the actual image of the prophet as a terrorist with a bomb as a turban. This is nothing but Islamaphobia if this picture had been released about the Jewish religion it would be called anti semitic.

Yusuf give it up your fooling no one

Written by Riju on 2006-02-02 19:43:56

To ignore or brush aside this grotesque attack would be a foolish response from the Muslim community. After all, Muslims are supposed to love the prophet more then themselves. How can we possibly accept prejudiced depiction of our Noble Prophet without showing our total disapproval of such hatred. Yes, maybe it is pathetic that all we could do is talk about boycotting Danish products. The Muslim world is totally unprepared on every aspect; this is why they find themselves with missiles and bombs dropping on them without regard to civilian casualties.

Our books and our Prophet is not a source of amusement. The Danes or anyone else is entitled to mock their own religion, but let their freedom of speech not encroach on our freedom. If the Danes or anyone else writes a respectable article without resorting to animosity or prejudiced views against Islam, outlining their disapproval to certain aspect of Islamic belief or all; we would have no complaints against that. There is no compulsion in faith. Non-believers have a right to disagree with Islam but at the same time, let their rights not a bit of common sense

Written by UK dave on 2006-02-02 22:40:59

at last - a bit of common sense from Riju perfectly reasonable and civilised arguments you have there.

i think the folks running mpacuk forget that Denmark is a Christian country, so it's entitled to mock Mohammed. Different matter entirely if i went to say, Saudi or Kuwait, and distributed the cartoons. Quite rightly I should be arrested. Different culture, different system, and also an Islamic country.

Of course, Islamic countries are perfectly entitled to take the p out of Christianity. Oh wait,. no - we do that ourselves anyway...

UK Dave

Written by NA on 2006-02-02 23:38:50

UK Dave, let me inform you that Hazrat ISA (Jesus PBUH) is one of the most revered messengers in islam, one of the mightiest and held in high esteem by God and all muslims. so for you to state because denmark is a christian country shows how limited your knowledge of religion is. no matter if was jesus who was being depicted in this way, the response would be the same. besides, The christians always make the mistake of portraying jesus in pictorial form - which is also wrong. but we respect the christain faith no matter how fallible it is. So if islam doesnt allow picturising of the noble prophet Muhammed PBUH then it should be fully respected. this is a secular country, the right of religion to be respected must be upheld at all times, even by the media. there are many examples of how the ruling bodies of the UK control the media - like the issue of blair trying to refute bush to bomb Al-Jazeera need for actions

Written by nuri on 2006-02-03 02:27:22

well obviously, drawing images of the prophet is prohibited, but i am assuming this doesnt really apply to the non muslims. however a little respect couldnt have hurt.

ok so they drew it, the issue here is the turban symbolised as a bomb etc.

that is utterly disrespectful...

mpacuk isnt getting defensive, how do i put it, its more stressing the need to speak against any further acts like this happening again.

Yusuf smith keep ur opnions to yourself your already a sell out to the ummah, why should any of this matter to you?

this is not the issue

Written by Toufik on 2006-02-03 09:39:11

Let them print cartoons, write books, make films, set the narrative of history, and much more.

All these are not important.

What is REALLY REALLY IMPORTANT to MUSLIMS is the fact that the west is plummeting our economic resources using dreadfull dictators.

What is IMPORTANT is the globale financial system which is designed to serve western interests and enslave the rest. Now thats important, not cartoons.

And why didn't the darn muslims create havoc after the 1 million iraqis dead because of sanctions, and the israeli daily killing of palestinians. Why no outrage about the muslims held and tortured in Guantanamo and many other prisons around the world. Why no outrage against the western companies sucking our countries dry?

Why no outrage against the dictators the west imposed on us.
Why?
Shall we forget all the important issues and focus on a cartoons ?

Regards to all

Stop attacking the Mosques

Written by Get a Life on 2006-02-03 05:17:19

There you go again, attacking the Mosques "Imagine readers if only our mosques were as vigilant and active".

I wonder whether in MPACUK's charter there is something which says that you must somehow include a line attacking the Mosques. Defend the Ummah and the sanctity of Deen, but stop knocking the Mosques.

Danes are entitled to ?

Written by Michael on 2006-02-03 20:25:59 ssalamu Alaikum, Dave, Denamrk is a European Christian country so they are entitled to Invade and take part in the massacring of Muslims or any other 'brown savages'. What else are they allowed to do? Still able to make those wonderful 'Punch magazine' depictions of 'black savages'? What a terrible disease European colonialism is.

Yusuf Smith???

Written by Leila on 2006-02-04 10:49:52

I find it funny that Yusuf smith complains that we are defending the Prophet PBUH and says we should focus on palestine, yet have been to his blog where he himself openly directs people to Zionist sites and is applauded by them as a "moderate Muslim" who Zionists can talk too.

I am appauled by some of the so called Muslims.How can any one have levy over our beloved Prophet?I have seen varies comments made by muslims over the internet and its shocking. Wake up if you are a Muslim prove your identity by standing up for our Prphet. There is no excused either youre with us or ?

You have every right to be angry.

Written by Dr. Rodrigo Al Monte on 2006-02-05 14:26:31

Dear Muslim peoples let me begin by saying that I am an athiest Buddhist. But I support you fully in your current battle against the denigration of your religion and identity by racist barbarians under strings of Zionists, made possible by most of Europe's unlimited desire for a high standard of living at the expense of their civilization, morality, and dignity.

Further, let me add that they certainly have a double standard. Just imagine the uproar if a cartoon that questioned the claim that 6 millions Jews were murdered by Nazis appeared? Let me encourage you to expose the duplicity currently gripping Europe. Maybe Europe's dumbed down people will awaken from their stupor.

Indeed, it was you who brought them to consciousness in the middle ages by handing to them the then forgotten fruits of ancient Greek civilization, and some of the great ideas of the East along with your notions of university, medicine, chemistry, just to mention a few.

The Danes have finally realised....

Written by Bilal on 2006-02-05 18:59:36

First of all I would like to congratulate the Muslims for standing up and voicing their outrage and disgust to the attitude of elements of the Western Governments & Media on this sensitive subjects. I have been following the events unfold and seen some of the interviews on the T.V where leaders from MPAC, HIZB UL TAHIR, MCB etc have defended to stace of the Ummah. Who was that stupid girl, a so called muslim academic who came onto news night couple of nights ago along side Taji Mustafa. She was trying to be the voice of free speech and reason. (what a disgrace). If we have so called academics like that we Muslims might as well shoot ourselves....

What a sad argument some try to put forward and blame us for being irrational. The Danes had plenty of oppertunity to solve the problem back in October when deligates from Muslim countries asked to speak. The Danes dismissed their concerns. We should wake up and not let this go.

Written by coolcuke on 2006-02-05 19:06:34

Those who disrespect any religion show the world their ignorance. It was wrong to disrespect the prophet of billions of people as it would be wrong to disrespect the god of Abraham or Odin or any other entity.

double standards

Written by VS on 2006-02-05 20:41:31

All the Muslim leaders seem to be making a fuss over these Mohammed cartoons, and demanding that _governments_ apologise for the actions of an _independent_ newspaper. That is not the way that freedom of the press works in a liberal, free, society.

If offensive cartoons upset the Muslim world so much, why don't Muslim leaders apologise for the countless offensive anti-American and anti-semitic cartoons published in the press in the Muslim world?

its our turn

Written by supernova on 2006-02-05 21:40:24

They are trying to do to islam what they did to Christianity. Thing is it will never work. We will always hold onto all the tenets of our faith no matter what they do.

Victory is always with the truthful.

Written by Nelly on 2006-02-05 22:07:45

The Danish prime-minister pretended that we had freedom of speech in Danemark. But what if I dare do doubt the Holocaust - or only just want to do some fact-finding on the Holocaust...? We all know what happens then.

This is what makes the comments of the Danes so ridiculous.
