Government does NOT want you to visit these 10 websites

Submitted by Rathnavibushana on Sun, 2007-06-17 11:15.

The US State Department has officially blacklisted the 10 websites listed below as sources of disinformation.

1. Rense Program www.rense.com
2. Roads to Iraq www.roadstoiraq.com
3. Vialls Investigations* www.vialls.com
4. Aljazeera aljazeera.com
5. Conspiracy Planet www.conspiracyplanet.com
6. Jihad Unspun jihadunspun.com
7. International Action Center www.iacenter.org
8. Free Arab Voice www.freearabvoice.org
9. George W. Bush - Terrorist in the White House nogw.com
10. Islam Memo (in Arabic) www.islammemo.cc

*Vialls Investigations is no longer updated as the sites creator, Joe Vialls, died in 2005.

The State Department suggests the following criteria to tell if a story is true:

- Does the story fit the pattern of a conspiracy theory?
- Does the story fit the pattern of an "urban legend?"
- Does the story contain a shocking revelation about a highly controversial issue?
- Is the source trustworthy?
- What does further research tell you?

Haha. Kind of funny. I'm not one of those people that believes the government is oppressing its people though. Sure, a few things have changed but I still feel free.

How about a list of crap sites that the public doesn't want their elected politicians to read?
