

FREE Subscription

Enter your email address

SUBSCRIBE

$75,000 Offered For MD to Publicly Drink Vaccine Additives

Jock Doubleday, director of the California non-profit corporation Natural Woman, Natural Man, Inc., has offered $75,000 to the first medical doctor or pharmaceutical company CEO who publicly drinks a mixture of standard vaccine additives.

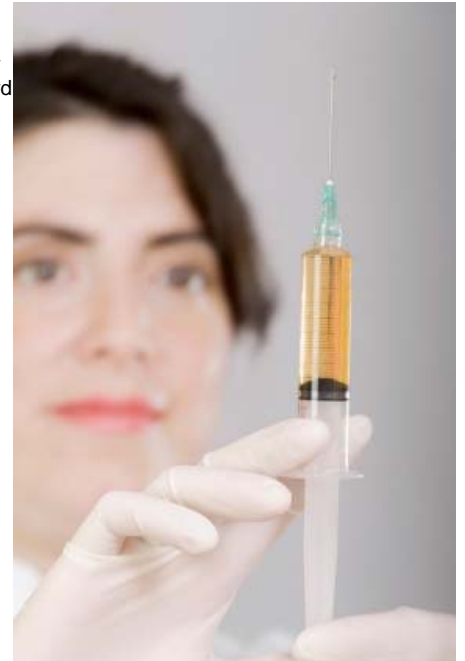

The additives would be the same as those contained in the vaccines recommended for a 6-year-old according to U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) guidelines, and the dose would be body-weight calibrated. It would include, but not be limited to:

- Thimerosal (a mercury derivative)
- Ethylene glycol (antifreeze)
- Phenol (a disinfectant dye)
- Aluminum
- Benzethonium chloride (a disinfectant)
- Formaldehyde (a preservative and disinfectant)

On August 1, 2007, if no one has taken the challenge, the offer will be increased to $90,000 and will increase at a rate of $5,000 per month until someone accepts.

Vaccination Liberation Press Release

Jock Doubleday's Vaccination Liberation

Dr. Mercola's Comments:

Not surprisingly, this offer has been on the table since 2001, but no one has been willing to take that toxic chemical cocktail -- except for the children who innocently go in for their routine vaccinations. With the average amount of loans for medical students now well in excess of $100,000 you might have thought some doctor would have tried to cash in on this so they could accelerate the payment of their student loans.

In addition to the vaccine additives listed above, others can include ammonium sulfate, amphotericin B, pig blood, rabbit brain, monkey kidney, betapropiolactone, tri(n)butylphosphate, and a laundry list of other chemicals. The mercury-based preservative thimerosal, in particular, is dangerous. Mercury is a poison and potent neurotoxin. Injecting it into a child, whose nervous system is rapidly developing, can have terrible consequences.

From the evidence I have reviewed and my own clinical experience it is clear that mercury is one of the reasons autism skyrocketed in the last 10 years. Autism has started to decrease now that some the vaccines have eliminated mercury, but be wary; many vaccines still do contain thimerosal, no matter what you may have heard.

And even those vaccines without thimerosal still contain an incredible number of dangerous chemicals. When the mercury is removed, it is typically replaced with another toxic additive that is frequently just as health-harming. The aluminum hydroxide used in many vaccines has been linked to symptoms associated with Parkinson's, ALS, and Alzheimer's. Phenols, methanol, isopropyl, and 2-phenoxyethanol are other ingredients which are corrosive or toxic.

The bottom line is, if you are a parent and are considering vaccinating your child, please read up on the potentially devastating side effects of vaccines before doing so. It could mean the difference between life and death. Avoid the fear mongering and take some time to read ALL sides of the issue, not just the propaganda conventional pediatrician will present to you. Most educated parents that I know that have done a careful analysis of the data invariably chose not to vaccinate their children.

Related Articles:

- » Vaccinations May Increase Death Toll
- » Vaccinations, Not Virus, Responsible for Spanish Flu
- » Shocking Documentary Will Convince You to Stay Away From Vaccines For Good

 mmc88121 said: July 4, 2007

View mmc88121 's Profile

Receive updated from mmc88121 by News Feed

Actually it is about 80,000 now and will go up 5,000 per month until he finds a taker. I doubt if he will though.

Mary

Reply

 annapavlova42 said: July 4, 2007

View annapavlova42 's Profile

Receive updated from annapavlova42 by News Feed

At first I thought this article was a joke. But as I read on I began to read in between the lines. I have to admit, I began to chuckle a little.

I don't know if any amount of money that is being offered will hook these murderers of man-kind in, because they know exactly what the formules in these deadly vaccines have in them.

This offer is probably to prove to these people that they are not fooling everyone.

Hope this works, doubt it, but best of luck.

Reply

 Rogway said: July 4, 2007

View Rogway 's Profile

Receive updated from Rogway by News Feed

This reminds me of the doctor I read about that offered one-million dollars to any doctor that could cure more diseases than he could. He stated, he can cure 93% of any disease you can throw at him, when the traditional doctors can only cure about 3%. He still has his million. And they called him a quack! Wow, hot wire crossed somewhere.

Wow, searching my pockets for my lighter, had it in my hand all along. Another hot wire crossed.

Reply

 katieannpc said: July 5, 2007

View katieannpc 's Profile

Receive updated from katieannpc by News Feed

I would love to see any Dr. take the challenge - and would really love to see someone from the FDA, CDC or a Pharma Exec take the challenge!

It frightens me when I look at my children's shot records. My son has 23 vaccinations and my daughter has 18 (some of course are the series of the same vaccine). Georgia has just raised the shots needed for school children to 2 Varicella. My son GOT THE POX FROM HIS FIRST VACCINE! Also, why do we really need it??? Isn't chicken pox most likely to cause serious harm in babies before they are one year old?? and they don't administer this vaccination until they are one year old! My cousin and I both had chicken pox, and we are just fine (unfortunately, my grandpa got the shingles when we had pox - oohhh he was sick)

OK- I'm done ranting for now.....it just makes me sick to think that I may have to get my children shot up again so they can go to school. The only way to refuse in Georgia is on religious grounds - my grounds are healthbased, and I won't be able to pull off sincerity on religious grounds. Homeschooling is out of the question for now as well. What's a mom to do?????

Reply

said:

 FRUMPO View FRUMPO 's Profile

July 5, 2007

Receive updated from FRUMPO by News Feed

There is no law requiring your children to be vaccinated. It is school policy ONLY! WRITE OUT A WAIVER or ask them for the standard religious form. Do it on writing. It is not their bodies. DO NOT BE lily-livered when it comes to your children's health.

said:

 Bill Smith View Bill Smith 's Profile

July 5, 2007

Receive updated from Bill Smith by News Feed

You should never allow your children to attend those government indoctrination camps (public schools). You should home school your children or send them to a private school. If you have your kids in the public system, you NEED TO GET THEM OUT NOW!!!!

said:

 A.M.E. View A.M.E. 's Profile

July 5, 2007

Receive updated from A.M.E. by News Feed

Bill,

I completely understand your statement and agree to an extent. There are those of us who, unfortunately, cannot afford it. Even with both parents working the cost is too great. On that note, with both parents working homeschooling is out.

said:

 KathieJamisonCote View KathieJamisonCote 's Profile

July 9, 2007

Receive updated from KathieJamisonCote by News Feed

katieannpc - great points - would love to be there watching when someone, if someone, ever takes this challenge on.....! They'll find some way to defame this offer.....

As far as your children go - don't ever vaccinate them. Sign the forms at your public schools and don't worry about not being able to send your children to private schools or homeschooling. The base for wonderful children comes from the home. We've had 5 children and have done the private schools, I've homeschooled, but the majority of their years have been spent in public schools.....as with most families, both my husband and I've had to work - he always had the daytime jobs, and my schedule has been after school until about 10pm teaching dance. It's not been easy, but raising our children with a great base of love, compassion, respect, tolerance and understanding while expecting and if needed, demanded respect and obedience in return has worked miraculously. Our 25yr is a Sgt on his 2nd tour in Iraq :(, our 19 yr old daughter moved to Vienna in January and is teaching dance, swim and English while our teenagers still at home are - 17, she's 2nd in her class, and our twins - two 15 yr olds, Sis is 1st in her class and her brother pretty much hates school, but thrives in other areas - concentrate on their strengths, and help them with their weaknesses.....

Fresh whole, organic foods - mostly fruits and vegetables - along with love and respect are/have given us a most "Wonderful Life."

said:

Alaskadude View Alaskadude 's Profile

July 9, 2007

Receive updated from Alaskadude by News Feed

Education of children is not a function of government.

That choice lies with the parents. I support a parent's right to send their children to whatever school they want or not. That being said, None of my children have or ever will attend a public school.

I didn't have them to give them away to be trained in who knows what by who knows who .

We have also fashioned ours lives in such a way that my wife can stay home to teach them the things WE think are important. We have given up some of the "finer things" to do that. It's all about what's important to you and what you think you need and what you really need. Hard decisions that everyone justifies in their own way. I may not agree with your decision but I support your right to make it as long as you are willing to accept the consequences.

That applies to pretty much everything. Including vaccination-I do feel sorry for the kids though.

said:

Bill Smith View Bill Smith 's Profile

July 9, 2007

Receive updated from Bill Smith by News Feed

Not to mention there are numerous scholarships opportunities for parents who cannot afford to send there children to private schools.

Plus, numerous parents pool their resources and teach each others kids, just like the country used to do before we went with the Prussian system that creates automaton factory workers. It only takes a 100 hours to learn the basics (reading, writing, and arithmetic). The rest of the time could be letting the children pursuing there own interests like music, science, literature, etc.

Try reading the book Dumbing us Down by John Taylor Gatto, a former public school teacher.

said:

jsab View jsab 's Profile

July 19, 2007

Receive updated from jsab by News Feed

katieannpc: Why don't you print this article and give it to the principle of the school, or whoever else it is that says your kids "have" to be vaccinated? I think that would probably be a very simple and powerful way to go about it. In fact, why doesn't everybody here in the same situation do the same thing? Perhaps it'll open some eyes in the school system, and beyond.

said:

JMcCandless View JMcCandless 's Profile

July 19, 2007

Receive updated from JMcCandless by News Feed

Any loving parent can truthfully say they belong to the religion NHTC (No Harm to Children). Actually you do not have to even tell the school what religion you belong to, just sign a statement that vaccines are against your religious beliefs.

said:

miss d View miss d 's Profile

July 19, 2007

Receive updated from miss d by News Feed

I know how you feel. I used to rant and rave about it myself. There is no law, though, that would make me harm my children that way. I am in total agreement with the replies here. Stand up and take action about this matter. You are not alone.

said:

momofthree View momofthree 's Profile

July 19, 2007

Receive updated from momofthree by News Feed

Don't know what your religious convictions are, but the varicella vaccine is grown in a human diploid cell line developed from an aborted baby...if you are pro-life, you have a valid contention with this vaccine...hope this helps.

said:

Stephen View Stephen 's Profile

July 19, 2007

Receive updated from Stephen by News Feed

When we lived in WV my wife home schooled. But then the kids wanted to go to school. In WV it is almost impossible to get a vaccination waiver for any reason and so the kids were expelled until they were vaccinated. We moved to Virginia where all we had to do is sign a waiver.

In Florida, we needed a religious exemption, so we joined the church of Christ The Scientist and got a religious exemption. If we had been unable to move, we would have done anything, and I mean anything, to keep our children from being damaged by these demonic injections.

Anything includes forging vaccine certificates (I don't know of any penalty for that) bribing doctors, lying to authorities, whatever it would have taken. Why do so many people have such a ridiculous need to tell the truth to the Devil? The state has no compunctions about lying. Remember the weapons of mass destruction? So-called truth is a tool used by the state and dominant minorities to manipulate the sheep.

The truth is that every parent is appointed by God as protectors of their children. Anyone and anything interfering with that God-given duty is an agent of the demonic forces, and that includes well-meaning friends, relatives, politicians, and pediatricians.

Why are parents are willing to die for their children but not deceive the Devil and his foolish appointees?

said:

Patty D

View Patty D 's Profile

July 19, 2007

Receive updated from Patty D by News Feed

From research I've been doing I'm pretty sure that you can include philosophical reasons to refuse vaccinations for your children under the "religious" grounds rules. This is in SC. Check it out in Georgia, but it should hold true there.

said:

peacerebelgirl

View peacerebelgirl 's Profile

July 19, 2007

Receive updated from peacerebelgirl by News Feed your religion is your belief system. if you do not believe in poisoning your children with vaccines that will create toxicity for your child and wealth for the pharmaceutical companies, then sign the waiver with religiosity!

From day one, when i enrolled my children in school, i would ask for the religious waiver forms with complete confidence and knowledge in what i knew to be right. As such, i was never questioned. If you are waivering in a decision, the best thing to do is to become better informed. When you fully understand the implications of vaccines, you will know what to do, without question.

said:

katieannpc

View katieannpc 's Profile

July 19, 2007

Receive updated from katieannpc by News Feed

WOW - thanks for all your replys! I have to say I am a bit intimidated, and frustrated with myself for being such a ninny. When my kids were vaccinated I truly was unaware of the harmfulness. I am aware now and want to do everything in my power to keep them safe. I will be printing, printing, printing and we are looking for a Dr. who will help us.

momofthree - might you have a website or literature that I can read about them using aborted tissues? That would shock the Ultra-conservative people down here! I want all the info in my hands I can get - best to be prepared for battle and not need it then be caught with my pants down.

Thank you all for your support - it means so very much! :-)

Katie

ozy_ness

said: July 5, 2007

View ozy_ness 's Profile

Receive updated from ozy_ness by News Feed

Well done Jack!

This needs to get out there to the public - it is a simple and basic message that shows vaccination for what it is!

I will be very interested to see if any of these people will drink such a horrible concoction - the same chemicals they happily inject into our children.

I will never forgot when I gave birth to my daughter (just over a year ago), the pediatrician who came in to do the newborn checks asked me about the vaccinations. I told him we were not interested in having our daughter vaccinated. He then went on to give me a lecture, after which I still said we declined the vaccinations. He then suprised me by saying "you are a wise women".

I have read that most pediatricians and some doctors do not vaccinate their own children.

Reply

said:

nanciesweb

View nanciesweb 's Profile

July 5, 2007

Receive updated from nanciesweb by News Feed

Unfortunately, by law in all states, they HAVE to give the "lecture". In Indiana, they made us sign a waver saying that they gave us the "info" (a.k.a. "lecture") and we still refused. It seemed, though, that the pediatrician was all for us not vaccinating.

I hope she's still there when we move back.

said:

KathieJamisonCote

View KathieJamisonCote 's Profile

July 9, 2007

Receive updated from KathieJamisonCote by News Feed

Hi nanciesweb - I understand about the "laws being set in place" and they state the "lecture needs to be said" BUT ISN'T ABOUT TIME that bravery and courage take root and these "puppets of pharma" stop reciting what many know to be wrong?

ozy_ness said: July 5, 2007

View ozy_ness 's Profile

Receive updated from ozy_ness by News Feed

Well done Jack!

This needs to get out there to the public - it is a simple and basic message that shows vaccination for what it is!

I will be very interested to see if any of these people will drink such a horrible concoction - the same chemicals they happily inject into our children.

I will never forget when I gave birth to my daughter (just over a year ago), the pediatrician who came in to do the newborn checks asked me about the vaccinations. I told him we were not interested in having our daughter vaccinated. He then went on to give me a lecture, after which I still said we declined the vaccinations. He then suprised me by saying "you are a wise women".

I have read that most pediatricians and some doctors do not vaccinate their own children.

Reply

said:

KathieJamisonCote

View KathieJamisonCote 's Profile

July 5, 2007

Receive updated from KathieJamisonCote by News Feed

Ozy Ness - the comment the doctor gave you when you refused to vaccinate your newborn - "You are a wise woman" speaks volumes for the mainstream medical industry and gave me chills. Maybe they're not as clueless as I've thought - maybe just more devious.

said:

Alaskadude

View Alaskadude 's Profile

July 5, 2007

Receive updated from Alaskadude by News Feed

I don't think the vast majority of docs are even devious...Most either believe what they are taught by people who believe what they were taught or are just trying to stay employed in a system they don't personally believe in. Personal views are not readily accepted, recommendations have to be "backed up" by "evidence". It's hard to throw away 8,10, 12 years or more of training as well as your livelihood.

Time proven ways and traditions are not given credence until our modern day "authorities" have signed off on them with ample "studies". Unfortunately, traditional ("alternative") remedies are usually simple and cheap-so, what big drug company is going to fund research on anything like that?

Most of the docs are caught in the same net as the rest of us. People like Dr. Mercola and others who have laid it all out and taken a stand against Big _____ fill in the blank, are somewhat rare and brave as are all the mothers and fathers who choose not to vaccinate their children. I worked with a pediatrician who told me it was "borderline child abuse" to not vaccinate and felt that was the most important thing she did as a doc. She knew I didn't vaccinate, she was just picking a fight. I just smiled and thought what a pity that such a smart lady was so brainwashed...

said:

PPARGammaGirl

View PPARGammaGirl 's Profile

July 5, 2007

Receive updated from PPARGammaGirl by News Feed

Alaskadude – that is so true. The last two doctors I worked with both believed in vaccinations for themselves and their children. And they and their kids were always (and I do mean always) sick. It's not like they were stupid; they have just been as brainwashed as everyone else. I guess to question one thing like vaccination would possibly lead to questioning many of their other practises like statination (Malcolm Kendrick's term) and other over-prescribing – their whole world might come tumbling down.

said:

KathieJamisonCote

View KathieJamisonCote 's Profile

July 5, 2007

Receive updated from KathieJamisonCote by News Feed

I'll concede alaskadude and PParGammaGirl that perhaps my choice of word "devious" was a bit off kilter, but.....

when ozy ness stated "He then went on to give me a lecture, after which I still said we declined the vaccinations. He then suprised me by saying "you are a wise women".

What if ozy ness hadn't completely decided about not vaccinating her newborn? His lecture may have made her change her mind..... hypocritical - devious - he was not doing the right thing when he lectured her, because had he been - he wouldn't have told her she was a wise woman when she refused the vaccines. Caught by the system or not, it is not right and it is time for those who know to be brave and speak up and not let the children who are not theirs be guinea pigs.

said:

PPARGammaGirl

View PPARGammaGirl 's Profile

July 5, 2007

Receive updated from PPARGammaGirl by News Feed

Good point Kathie. Ozy I don't know what the rate of health professionals' uptake of vaccines is over your side of the ditch, but here it is less than 50%. What peeves me is that those that do have them think those of us that don't are 'letting the side down'. I've had a number of rows with colleagues about it. They seem so sure of themselves, and even when I provide them with scientific proof that vaccines don't work and are harmful they refuse to even read them (selective ignorance).

 phooey said: July 5, 2007

View phooey 's Profile

Receive updated from phooey by News Feed

Let's not forget that any bonehead who takes him up on this proposal will still be getting off easier than the 6 year old because of how it gets into the body. The digestive system has "filters" in place, such as bile which can bind to mercury and prevent absorption, hydrochloric acid, 70% of the lymphatic system is wrapped around the small intestine to protect the inside of the body from absorbing toxins, and most anything we eat goes straight to the liver where toxins are removed. The six year old gets it straight into circulation, without a fully developed blood brain barrier, and quite possibly a weaker immune system. There is no protection coming in by needle through the skin.

Reply

said:

 melmac

View melmac 's Profile

July 5, 2007

Receive updated from melmac by News Feed

I think you are right. The offer should require that the "pacient" be injected with the mix.

said:

 cheftodd

View cheftodd 's Profile

July 5, 2007

Receive updated from cheftodd by News Feed

good point, it should be a big intermuscular needle, jam it way down in there.

said:

 PPARGammaGirl

View PPARGammaGirl 's Profile

July 6, 2007

Receive updated from PPARGammaGirl by News Feed

Yo Cheftodd - a big fat needle to bypass the natural barriers like skin and intestinal mucosa is an excellent idea.

said:

 phooey

View phooey 's Profile

July 6, 2007

Receive updated from phooey by News Feed

I thoroughly enjoy the way you all think. It almost brought a tear to my eye.

said:

 ilvsockmonkeys

View ilvsockmonkeys 's Profile

July 7, 2007

Receive updated from ilvsockmonkeys by News Feed

I'm just wondering if the dose was tinkered to fit with the adult's weight would it matter if it was injected or not. Nothing like a shot of mercury. Yum. :)

said:

 PPARGammaGirl

View PPARGammaGirl 's Profile

July 7, 2007

Receive updated from PPARGammaGirl by News Feed

Ilvsockmonkey – the bypassing of the normal immunological defence is crucial. Normally we have the mucosa in the respiratory and intestinal system to protect us from pathogens. Vaccination bypasses those mechanisms – very unnatural really.

said:

 ilvsockmonkeys

View ilvsockmonkeys 's Profile

July 7, 2007

Receive updated from ilvsockmonkeys by News Feed

Gammagirl, I'm not arguing drinking a concoction is the best way to get vaccinated. I think you are correct. If it were easy to drink instead of getting a shot the companies would do it that way because it would be cheaper :).

I think the intent of the "dare" is not to get vaccinated. It is to prove how deadly is the poison in the vaccination. Doubleday would body-calibrate the dose and it's bottoms up. That's just my opinion. I would guess it would be pretty dangerous in itself, even though your body has all these great built in ways to remove toxins. For example, mercury is in fish (some areas), in teeth fillings, etc. and it affects people. I wouldn't want to drink it outright. No one has accepted the challenge because they know it is dangerous and/or if they believe it is not dangerous the thought of the possibility scares them. As it should.

said:

garyg View garyg 's Profile

July 19, 2007

Receive updated from garyg by News Feed

Great idea! I'm thinking someone should make a similar offer to someone who will drink a small cocktail of those "harmless" chemical pesticides, herbicides and fertilizers that are routinely sprayed on conventional agriculture. Couldn't hurt, right?

A.M.E. said: July 5, 2007

View A.M.E. 's Profile

Receive updated from A.M.E. by News Feed

I sent my local news station an email to see if they would put this out there on the headlines in their healthbeat segment. I don't think enough doctors know about this let alone the public. Hopefully a good investigative journalist will probe doctors as to why they wouldn't consider doing it themselves...at least the public should be made more aware of the actual issues.

Nothing will probably get done; but, I thought I'd throw it out there to them anyway. I did this once before concerning our South Texas Blood and Tissue Center (regarding not having the charter to do therapeutic phlebotomies for hemochromatosis patients and they did do some digging and have been keeping me updated on the issue). So, who knows. I could get somebody who just really wants to stir something up...or not.

Reply

said:

cheftodd View cheftodd 's Profile

July 5, 2007

Receive updated from cheftodd by News Feed

Maybe we should send it to Rick Perry, see what he does with it?

said:

Coeli View Coeli 's Profile

July 19, 2007

Receive updated from Coeli by News Feed

AME, your awesome! That's the kind of motivation our news needs. I think I will do that with my local paper, I live in a very earthy progressive town, so there is a good chance they would be very interested in the story. Thanks for the idea!

said:

Christian Ryan D.O. View Christian Ryan D.O. 's Profile

July 20, 2007

Receive updated from Christian Ryan D.O. by News Feed

A.M.E. I also live in Texas and know the problem the state has put and restrictions they place on some jobs that are not really legal my job tries to force us yearly to get a TB TEST C RYAN DO

Coeli said: July 5, 2007

View Coeli 's Profile

Receive updated from Coeli by News Feed

This article deserves so much more attention than say Paris Hilton. Imagine if it was on the front of a major newspaper, so many parents who just don't have the info or just don't know would be exposed. They might question their doc a little more before giving in.

Reply

said:

ilvsockmonkeys View ilvsockmonkeys 's Profile

July 6, 2007

Receive updated from ilvsockmonkeys by News Feed

Why has this been so low key? I'm happy to send this article out!

said:

Katy B View Katy B 's Profile

July 6, 2007

Receive updated from Katy B by News Feed

This idea deserves world-wide publicity and the resultant lack of takers should be well publicised also. I think Merck and Squabb CEO's need to be canvassed by a reporter and camera.

said:

Katy B View Katy B 's Profile

July 6, 2007

Receive updated from Katy B by News Feed

sockmonkey, just copy and paste or send the url, I opted for copy and paste.

 Russ Bianchi said: July 5, 2007

View Russ Bianchi 's Profile

Receive updated from Russ Bianchi by News Feed

I'm unofficially nominating Jock for a Nobel Prize in Medicine for his clear contribution to the health and happiness of the planet, in exposing the OVERT corruption, toxicity, hypocrisy, and criminality of Big Pharma.

This guy, who I've never heard of, is putting his money where his mouth is, in something I believe is LONG overdue, outing the Pharma Executive Suite(s) and have suggested is the ONLY way to stop the crooked approval and regulatory process of dangerous and unneeded drug brands flooding the airwaves and population at a rate that makes the era of tobacco product commercials in the 40's, 50's and 60's look like amateur hour.

Reply

 said:
 Katy B View Katy B 's Profile July 5, 2007
Receive updated from Katy B by News Feed

This really is putting your money where your mouth is, I want to see what happens after the person drinks it, I want to see the long term [if there is one] health results.

 said:
 cheftodd View cheftodd 's Profile July 5, 2007
Receive updated from cheftodd by News Feed

can I add some money to that, and my pink glow in the dark banana! this needs to be on Springer, or a reality show

More Posts Next page »

Enter your email address

© Copyright 2005 Dr. Joseph Mercola. All Rights Reserved. This content may be copied in full, with copyright, contact, creation and information intact, without specific permission, when used only in a not-for-profit format. If any other use is desired, permission in writing from Dr. Mercola is required.

Disclaimer: The entire contents of this website are based upon the opinions of Dr. Mercola, unless otherwise noted. Individual articles are based upon the opinions of the respective author, who retains copyright as marked. The information on this website is not intended to replace a one-on-one relationship with a qualified health care professional and is not intended as medical advice. It is intended as a sharing of knowledge and information from the research and experience of Dr. Mercola and his community. Dr. Mercola encourages you to make your own health care decisions based upon your research and in partnership with a qualified health care professional.