Who controls the U.S.?...Candidates grovel before Israel

Candidates Agree to Obey Summons from Jerusalem Post for Reports Every Two Weeks

Am I alone in thinking it peculiar that a newspaper in a foreign country should think it both appropriate and possible to get all the leading candidates for the U.S. presidential nominations of both parties to compete, on a biweekly basis and in writing, in displaying the intensity of their allegiance to that foreign country -- and that all of these candidates should deem it both appropriate and essential to their hopes of remaining a leading candidate that they should participate in this degrading exercise in competitive obeisance?

Transmitted below is the first installment in the Great Group Grovel, as published in the JERUSALEM POST.

WARNING: For those living in the United States, reading these pledges of allegiance to a foreign country risks provoking hopeless depression and despair and/or an intense urge to emigrate to saner shores. The first reaction, while eminently rational in the circumstances, should be resisted. The second reactions should be seriously considered.
