Israel announces first surface-to-surface cruise missile

LONDON: Israel's main arms manufacturer, Israel Military Industries (IMI), has announced the creation of the country's first surface-to-surface missile, Jane's Defence Weekly reported on Tuesday. The new weapon, an adaptation of the air-launched Delilah cruise missile, would be able to reach all nearby capitals including Damascus and Beirut, but not Israel's main regional rival Iran, according to the military publishers. IMI said the Delilah-GL missile had a range of 250 kilometres but Israeli defence sources told Jane's that it went "well beyond 300 kilometres". The report by the British military publication, which will be published in its magazine on June 16, said Israel has long sought to acquire the capability to fire cruise missiles from land. afp
