Uruknet receives daily many hacking attempts. To prevent this, we have 10 websites on 6 servers in different places. January 20, 2006

On January 12, 2007 Google has stopped indexing Uruknet.info as a news source

(The latest Uruknet article included in the Google News index is Iraqi Children "Play" Civil War, January 12, 2007).

We wrote to Google News and this is their reply:

Hi Vincenzo,

Thank you for your message. We apologize for the confusion, we've reviewed your site again and are unable to include it in Google News at this time. We appreciate your willingness to provide your articles to us, and we will log your site for future consideration. Thank you for your interest in Google News.

They are unable? and for which reason? Of course there isn't any technical reason, because Google.news have been indexing Uruknet up to five days ago and although old pages are still available, there has been no update since then. The only "technical reason" is censorship.

We rewrote to Google.news and their reply was even more cryptic:

Thank you for your note. Although we're unable to provide

Of course, it is a lie: In our logs it seems that you still crawl Uruknet, but the articles do not appear on Google.news.

We re-wrote to Google.news and we didn't get any answer at all. We ignore the reason for which Google has manipulated the rankings for Uruknet, but we think the exclusion of alternative media through search engines results is government/corporate tactics to harness the free flow of information on the Internet. Being banned by Google.news is obviously a serious threat to a news website's existence.

This isn't the first time that Google discontinues indexing Uruknet. On February 18, 2005, Google.news removed Uruknet.info as a news source, apparently thanks to Michelle Malkin's protestations only to reinstate them - following many complaints sent in by our readers.

On June 4, 2005 both Google.com and Google.news dropped Uruknet again without explanation: and in this case too Google reinstated Uruknet only because of complaint messages from our readers.

We must add that Google's censorship unintentionally occurs in a particularly critical period for our website. Uruknet has been under hacking attacks since September 2005. These attacks increase whenever there are important events from Iraq. Since this past summer, when a great number of attacks were carried out against Uruknet, we have been moving our servers and spending lots of time, money and energies in order to prevent these attacks and to repair the damages. Since the assassination of the Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, the attacks have increased again and last week they managed to destroy our main server and other servers we use for mirroring websites.

As our readers know, we never carried out campaigns neither for fund-raising nor for any other kind of aid. Although we've been able to provide, in spite of sacrifice, for maintenance and safeguard of Uruknet and mirroring websites, and although we succeeded, notwithstanding such a great deal of problems, to face all damages caused by hacking attacks, now Google's censorship risks to be a blow too hard to ward off.

We therefore kindly request our readers to write to Google asking Uruknet.info to be reinstated as a news source.

Please, send your complaints to google.news! Click here to fill a speedy form.

A few hours ago, we asked our readers to send their complaint messages to " source-suggestions@google.com "

Now google.news claims that the address source-suggestions@google.com is no longer active. When one of our readers sends google.news a complaint letter for having stopped indexing uruknet, he receives the following automated response from google:

Thank you for your note about Google News. This is an automated response to let you know that we appreciate your interest and feedback. Please note that this email address is no longer active.

To further assist our users, we've created a Google News Help Center, where you can search or browse all of our available support information.

Our Help Center is located at <http://www.google.com/support/news/>

If you're a news publisher, please visit our Publisher Help Center at http://www.google.com/support/news_pub where you'll find extensive, up-to-date information and solutions.

But four days ago google.news did reply us from the same email address: so on 16 January 2006 the address " source-suggestions@google.com " surely was active.

We therefore strongly suspect that google.news "source-suggestions@google.com" has put a filter on the word "uruknet".

We made some test, and we made sure that if someone sends to source-suggestions@google.com an email message without the word "uruknet", google news doesn't reply that the address is inactive.

No doubt Google is USA based. I live in Australia. I am a Christian and am astounded by the excesses of the Islamic world. I am also astounded by the fanatical machinations of so called Christians in the USA. Particularly in the Southern States of the USA. The death penalty is an abomination sunk in revenge and ignorance. Now if I wish to access Uruknet for my own edification then I will. If Google chooses to attempt to deny my access, then I will judge Google accordingly. I am in charge of my life and if I choose to access a certain site in cyberspace, I will with or without Google. Google you have gone down in my opinion.

I will be mailing my complaint to google tomorrow, but wish to thank you for your much appreciated efforts to publish the news that is unavailable to me anywhere else (as an american)..

I rely on you because you have an excellent track record for printing the truth and countering some of the most blatant propaganda that I have been exposed to.

Please keep up the struggle for the world is a much darker place without the truth to illuminate our paths.

Peace to you, and my brothers & sisters in Iraq, Palestine and everywhere else there is injustice.

I would not take it to heart, that google does not want to index you. They are not the only means people search for information. I found your site with MSN, for example. I personally, do not use google. They are in it for the money only. I wonder if the people who use google are j*h, or something. This would explain their reluctance to index your news. EWJ

This banning is the sign assured me that this site is telling true news.

The freedom of world media has been jeopardized by the political and financial power and now they are trying to shape the internet in the same way of US's big media companies by telling the news that America wants to hear, not the true news.
