

He Kidnapped A Toddler In A City Park

The Park Where The Israeli Adducted The Child

A Six Year Old Boy

A Israeli soldier has been fined $1000 after he carried away a six-year-old boy from a St Kilda East park, telling the child he was a kidnapper.

Ariel Lourie, 19, said to the terrified victim that he was "going to put you into my car boot".

The Mother Sees Him Putting Her Child In The Trunk

The Melbourne Magistrates Court heard that the boy ran screaming and crying across a road as his mother confronted Lourie and demanded: "Are you crazy? What are you doing?"

The Israeli Stalked The Child

Lourie, who had arrived in Australia three days before the incident on September 15, sat with his cousin at 5.10pm as the boy and his younger brother played in Greenmeadows Gardens.

His Cousin Panicked

The six year old said the Israeli's other friend said he heard "don't do it, don't do it" before Lourie picked him up and cradled him "as you would carry a baby".

Mother Chases After Israeli

The mother saw him being "carried off" and had started chasing after them. Lourie told the boy he was going to put him in his boot.

Prosecutor Wants Jail Time

They wanted the Israeli charged with kidnapping, child-stealing struck out, but outside pressure allowed him to plead guilty to unlawful assault.

Israeli Sees Psychiatrist

The lawyer had the Judge sent the alleged molester/kidnapper to a friendly shrink.

Judge Issues Strange Decision

The man was serving in the IDF and was portrayed as a decent man with an "over-friendly nature". The Judge ordered her fellow Zionists to apologize to the mother.

Lourie was now absent without leave from the army and would return to Israel where he "still has to be dealt with by his father for this stupidity", he said. She reluctantly agreed not to sentence him so as not to "interfere with (his) continued moral, ethical and employment obligations" and rehabilitation.

That's One Lucky Toddler

Think about it. This Israeli moron grabbed an Australian kid, was putting him in a car trunk, and luckily the mother caught him. Normally in an abduction, the child is sexually abused, raped, and 99% of the time they are killed. Now add into the mix that this kidnapper is Jewish, a teenager, and in the IDF, where ecstasy and missing Arab children are an everyday event.

Was The Judge Correct With The Sentence?

- Yes - A small fine and an apology are sufficient
- No - I think a year in Baghdad defusing IEDs would be appropriate
