Iran warns it can fire 11,000 rockets in one minute if attacked
 16: 15 | 20/ 10/ 2007

TEHRAN, October 20 (RIA Novosti) - Iran has the capability to fire 11,000 rockets at enemy bases within one minute if the country is attacked, a top commander in the Revolutionary Guards Corps said on Saturday.

"Within the first minute of any attack by enemies against our country, the missile and artillery unit of the ground force is capable of firing 11,000 missiles and shells at targets that are known to us," Gen. Mahmoud Chaharbaghi, the top missile commander of the Revolutionary Guards, said on national TV.

Iran has precise data on the deployment of potential attackers' military bases in the region, he said.

"A possible war will not last long, because within days we will reduce our enemies to ashes. The enemy must ask himself what losses he is prepared to suffer for his stupidity," the commander said.

The commander's comments come four days after United States President George W. Bush's warning that if Iran's nuclear program is not stopped, World War III could break out. The United States has military bases in several countries near Iran, including thousands of troops in Iraq and Afghanistan, which share borders with the Islamic Republic.

In response to Bush's comments, Iranian Foreign Ministry spokesman Mohammad Ali Hosseini said on Thursday: "Statements of this kind reflect America's expansionist goals, which will surely weaken international security and ignite the U.S. government's militarist policy."

Washington, which along with many other Western nations accuses Iran of pursuing a secret nuclear weapons program, despite Iranian denials, has refused to rule out military action against the country in the long-running international dispute.

Bush's comments at a White House news conference came a day after President Vladimir Putin's visit to Tehran, where the Russian leader said he saw no evidence that Iran was developing nuclear weapons.

Putin's trip to Iran for a summit of Caspian littoral states, the first visit by a Russian or Soviet leader since Joseph Stalin traveled to Iran in 1943, provoked concerns in the West over increasingly close ties between Moscow and Tehran. The summit resulted in a five-way agreement that no Caspian nations would allow the use of their territories for a military strike against any of them.

That is all what needs to be done.

"Washington, which along with many other Western nations accuses Iran of pursuing a secret nuclear weapons program" is similar accusation as to Iraq prior to the invasion in 2003, and now Alan Greenscam said it is due to vast Oil and Gas reserve and Iraq will be US protectorate. Iran and Iraq combined command 40-50% world Oil and Gas reserve!!!!

...well that is the idea, but it lacks the success US thought it would have in Iraq. Iran is not on the table anymore.

Problem here is the target.

by iron_clay on 21.10.2007 [08:40 ]

Iran is addressing a US target when the attacker will be Zionist Israel.

Israel will dummy to the north but the main attack force will use Saudi air space to attack from the south.

US and UK will be attacking Iran defences so it's good to know that 11,000 missiles will already be on their way in the first minute because in the second minute these defence missile sites will not exist on this planet.

The problem is they will not make their mark in Israel because this attack can and will be stopped.

Now if Iran had a way to dump these 11,000 missiles on Israel in the first minute, the game plan has a chance to play out in their favour.

Their favour being that their first strike nation will pay a similar price they will pay ... but that isn't going to happen.

Some of these targets Iran is looking at are UK military in Iraq and Brown has said that UK WILL ATTACK with missiles if their forces are attacked by Iran.

The French will be right there ... oh not active till the gulf and oil shipments are threatened but once that happens, and it will, the French are also going to be attacking Iran defences.

Three super powers, all armed with nukes and capable of delivering them against Iran without nukes and next to no active war record.

In a world of Right justice I'd put my money on Iran.

This is not a world of Right Justice ... we're looking at another blood bath.

Since when

by djandjolic on 21.10.2007 [11:30 ]

France, Britain and US has come as the "Victor" of a war??? None since the WWII!!!!. France get kick out from all of their colonies, Britain same lost all their colonies after WWII, US not a single war, only won one war in his history with Spain in the Phillipine a century ago. But surely they can do havoc to a countries but not taking the country totally.

I really wish that Iran would stop revealing their fighting strategies to the enemy; unless they have some other unpleasant surprises in store, they need to keep their mouths shut.

Do the Iranians think that the Iraqi Resistance would have been so successful at thwarting the american takeover of Iraq if they had telephoned the american commanders every time they placed their IEDs?

NO. To forewarn is to forearm. All that is doing is allowing the enemy to refine his strategy for attacking you. I am very sure that the american military is glad to see these releases every time.

For the last time Iran: Stop telling the enemy where your strengths lie.

i agree with eureka

But I also hope that it's 5 to 10 times this number. So if they say 11000 today let the surprise be 55000 to 110000 when it really counts. The Saudis should be chased off the holy land of the prophet Mohamed. They should be smashed to smithereens them and their crazy wahabi belief.
