Former Death Rocker Azzam Pearlman Behind Osama

al-Qaeda, Corporate media, Psy Ops | 0 comments

Bin Laden's latest video, the Telegraph tells us, is not so much about an age conscious terrorist leader. It is about his youthful sidekick, Adam Gadahn, aka "Azzam the American," the heavy metal kid from California. Gadahn fits the bill as a "homegrown terrorist," the logical extension of the foreign terrorist.

Adam Yahiyeh Gadahn, "the son of California hippies," according to the New York Daily News, "dabbled in death metal music as a teen, but by all accounts had a peaceful childhood until he embraced a virulent strain of Islam to fill a void in his life," a void, if we are to believe the New York Daily News, filled by the need to stage dirty bomb attacks. "Dirty rat behind dirty bomb scare," the Daily News chants, following the neocon script calling for terrorism to hit Main Street, delivered by neighborhood homegrown miscreants, one week listening to Cannibal Corpse and Suffocation, the next preaching from the Koran and gunning for infidels and American grade schoolers.

For some reason we are not told that Azzam the cartoon Arab—excuse me, Jewish—jihadist comes from a family tainted with the terrorist stain. Carl K. Pearlman, a prominent Jewish urologist in Orange county, California, grandfather of Azzam, and a director of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai Brith, was involved in a spy scandal back in 1998. It appears the grand daddy of Azzam was violating the constitutional rights of over 10,000 individuals and 600 organizations, including Arab Americans and "progressive" organizations and publications such as the Nation. "It can be said without exaggeration that the ADL is the single most influential organization in the United States. It works closely with the Israeli intelligence agency, Mossad, and sometimes with the FBI or CIA," Dr. Alfred M. Lilienthal wrote back in 1993. "Through its multifold activities and ability to crush dissent, it is probably more responsible for American attitudes and American foreign policy toward the Middle East than any other single force."

Of course, this suspicious connection is of little interest to the corporate media, same as they are not interested in the fact Salem bin Laden, half-brother and cousin of Osama, was involved with the decider and commander guy and his Arbusto Energy by way of the Bush crime family functionary James R. Bath, former director of Bank of Credit and Commerce International (BCCI for short, aka "Bank of Colombian Cocaine Industry"), an institution famous for bankrolling the Mossad terrorist, Abu Nidal, and other murderous personages.

Instead, we get to hear about the vapid Adam Gadahn, son of Phil Pearlman, "a psychedelic rocker and farmer. In a 1975 album titled 'Relatively Clean Rivers,' he dreamed that Arabs and Jews would 'get together' and melt their weapons into sprinklers, tractors and hoes." According to the New York Daily News, the young Pearlman "was home-schooled. He also played Little League baseball but he didn't seem to enjoy it. His parents would bring goat cheese to share with others in the stands..." Gadahn rejected "his isolated lifestyle" and moved in with his JDL grand daddy, who we are told held a "hope for peace between Jews and Arabs" as a "central tenet of his life." Indeed, so peaceful is the JDL, its international chairman, Irv Rubin, planned to assassinate Arab-American Congress critter Darrell Issa and the FBI, in court testimony, has deemed the organization "a proscribed terrorist group." As we know, the CIA and Mossad, mentioned above in relation to the JDL, promote the concept of world peace, sort of like no shortage of beauty pageant contestants.

It is interesting to note that the dead Osama, in his latest video—predictably blurry, even though al-Sahab, the "media arm" of "al-Qaeda," the database, has few problems with fancy computer-generated graphics—employs the “language of Left-wing protesters.” Recall that Osama’s favorite authors include William Blum, Noam Chomsky, and even CIA author Michael Scheuer. According to CNN correspondent Kelli Arena, the Grecian formula terrorist “comes off like an angry blogger chastising Americans for electing President Bush twice and the Democrats for not doing more to stop the Iraq war.” In response to these cheap shots, Think Progress writes:

The media continue to equate progressives with terrorists, echoing the rhetoric of the Bush administration. As ThinkProgress highlighted earlier today, New York Times columnist David Brooks yesterday said that in the newest tape, bin Laden sounds like he has been “reading lefty blogs.”

Right-wing bloggers have also joined in. At Hot Air, Allahpundit claimed bin Laden sounded like a “socialist icon,” invoking many of the same passages Brooks did. At Political Vindication, Uncle Seth the Noble went further, claiming bin Laden sounded like Daily Kos’s Markos Moulitsas. Frank J, a Pajamas Media blogger, concluded “Kos has to get this guy as a diarist before HuffPo does.”

Fox News attack dog John Gibson joined the fray, basically accusing “bath tub boy” Keith Olbermann of colluding with Osama, a tactic the neocons used effectively against Saddam Hussein, an effort so successful a large number of Americans to this day cannot tell the difference between Osama and Saddam.

In other words, the Osama video is not only timed to remind Americans of the unpleasanties surrounding September 11, 2001—that is, unpleasant false flag terrorism attributed to ridiculous cave-dwelling terrorists—unpleasanties most Americans would rather forget (much to the horror of CIA boss Gen. Michael V. Hayden, speaking to the CFR). It is, as well, designed to discredit and ostracize those of us, “progressive” or otherwise, including “angry bloggers,” who are opposed to the fake and globalist choreographed GWOT and what Rumsfeld deemed the “battle of the minds.”

Expect more of this in the months ahead, especially as more and more people begin to realize the “war on terrorism” is a farce. Now that Adam Pearlman, son of a goat herder and grandson of a JDL dirty tricks op agent, is said to be behind Osama, and Osama gets his inspiration from “angry bloggers” and so-called “progressives,” expect the lines between “al-Qaeda” and those of us who believe the First Amendment of the Bill of Rights means what it says to be continually blurred by the likes of creeps such as John Gibson and corporate airheads such as Kelli Arena.

Question is, how long before the CIA dispatches UAV drones bristling with Hellfire missiles against “progressives” and “angry bloggers”?

I exaggerate, but only a little.
