So, You Think You Know All About George W. Bush?

Information concerning the activities of the Bush Crime Family is readily available on the World Wide Web

<http://prorev.com/bush2.htm>

The suspicion of murders and the odd coincidence of epidemic suicides in the Bush lineage is impressive

<http://www.lizmichael.com/bushykno.htm>

The connections to mind control, Satanism and pedophilia are also numerous and strange and to be had in abundance. Here's just one

<http://www.redicecreations.com/specialreports/sexconnection.html>

I've put just a small portion of links here because there is so much of this that you can go blind looking for it. When you go looking for connections you can be astonished by what you begin to discover; from probing in depth connect-the-dots speculation

<http://www.conspiracyplanet.com/channel.cfm?channelid=39&contentid=4506>

How can such things be? When one starts to wonder at how something like 9/11 can be covered up they need to look at the large amount of other things that are covered up. It's an international industry and a growth industry. And there is a trail of bodies all along the highway of your inquiry.

I have given you some food for wonder and rumination because of something I just discovered and it is good to have some comparative information already up and running. I just uncovered something and I can't understand why I didn't see this before. I have invested large blocks of time into trying to gain a comprehensive picture of the virtual cities that run off of the side tunnels of the rabbit hole. How did I miss this?

<http://portland.indymedia.org/en/2005/01/308911.shtml>

Not only did I not know that G.W. Bush had commuted Henry Lee Lucas's death sentence but I also didn't know this,

"SUNNYVALE, CA --- Telling reporters and critics to 'stick to the issues that matter', Republican presidential candidate George W. Bush declined to answer questions Monday concerning his alleged involvement in a 1984 Brownsville, TX, mass murder, in which 17 people were ritualistically murdered and skinned.

'I will not stoop to discussing that,' said Bush during a campaign stop at a Bay Area software-packaging plant. 'We've got people across this country without health care, a broken educational system, taxes that are way too high, and all you want to talk about is something THAT MAY OR MAY NOT HAVE HAPPENED 16 years ago? I'm sorry, but I find that offensive.' " (Emphasis added). (These people still don't have health care)

During the time of these murders,

"George Bush, son of a billionaire, was living in one of the most impoverished areas of Texas in Brownsville, living nearby to and also inside the headquarters of the El Padrino Satanic Cult of which he allegedly was a member.

Bush disappeared for three days during which ALL of the other of his fellow Cult members were slaughtered by persons unknown and after he reappeared he could not explain where he had been.

The local Prosecutor continued to pursue Bush, allegedly the sole cult survivor, on mass murder charges for six months thereafter, heavily pressured by his father, George H.W. Bush, to stop the investigation."

I'm not going to address this. It seems truly insane; however the details and proximity of our protagonist are not disputed. If this is coincidence then it is truly odd.

While Bush was governor of Texas, he didn't pardon anyone on Death Row and he didn't commute any sentences except that of Henry Lee Lucas; without a doubt- the most horrific killer to have been on 'the row' while he was governor and certainly one of the most horrific killers in American history. There's a lot of speculation about Lucas and his sidekick, Otis Toole. He did or did not kill up to 600 people with O'Toole occasionally involved. But he did kill a lot of people and in some terrible ways.

Why would Bush grant this man clemency; of all the people he could have given a pass to, why this one? It baffles the mind. Nor did he make it possible for Lucas to later be tried for so many other things or to be extradited to other states. This is the governor who laughed about and made fun of Karla Faye Tucker and wouldn't grant her clemency, or Gary Graham either. This is the governor who executed more people than anyone else.

Even stranger, Lucas's rap partner Toole, was also given clemency in Florida. What are the odds?

Henry Lee Lucas? I am dumbfounded, really dumbfounded. G.W. B. possibly involved in a Satanic mass murder in Brownsville Texas? Geddoudahere. Okay, one or two strange events in a person's life... that can happen. But what do you have when you get dozens and dozens of strange events connected to serial killers and horrific mass murder and Bobby Seal's airplane and drug cartels and voter fraud and simultaneous attacks on New York and Washington D.C. and the systematic dismantling of The Constitution and The Bill of Rights along with unending war abroad? What do you get?

No one who reads the information contained in these links can fail to be impressed by the sheer weight of damning coincidence and criminal association. Then, one day, you find out that Marvin Bush was in charge of security at the WTC and that all sorts of funny things were happening there in the weeks running up to the attack. What the heck was Marvin Bush doing in that job of all the millions of jobs on the planet?

Let me not digress. I keep coming back to this Henry Lee Lucas thing. I keep thinking about Brownsville/Matamoros. Somebody please tell me what to think here.

You wonder about the media? Can anyone be anything but mystified as to why this Lucas clemency didn't light up the airwaves like Las Vegas? Why hasn't there been any questions asked about Bush in Brownsville? It was never cleared up. There's no explanation given. It was important enough to inquire about at a certain time. Is it just water under the bridge?

I'm not maintaining that all of the things you will find in these links are true, or that what they imply indicate what they imply. Certainly I'm not trying to get you to believe that Barbara Bush is Alistair Crowley's daughter... however, it's not impossible and the basis for the speculation is legitimate.

More and more, I think g.w.b.'s childhood must have included something like this <http://www.babysue.com/abuse.html> and that we really are living in a world where the worst sort of behavior; things you probably can't even imagine, are the chosen entertainments of a great many world leaders. Pore over some of the information. A great percentage of it is not in dispute. What might be in dispute is the portion we don't know; what these things imply.

The monsters of film and literature walk among us. The laws that we think we live by are selectively employed for common crowd control. Our laws cannot be intended to keep us safe if they cannot keep us safe from the ones who make the laws and break them as whim may dictate. I'm not asking anyone to believe any of this. I'm just asking, doesn't it make you wonder?

Yes, I've been wondering about this for several years now, since reading "The Biggest Secret" by David Icke.

Whether the apex of the pyramid is really shape-shifting reptilians I don't know, but apart from that one feature of David's presentation, everything in the book made total sense to me.

As I was reading today's post I thought, "This sounds just like Visible's novel." As I was reading the novel some months back, I kept thinking, "This story about actual (i.e., real) satanic magic sounds just like our current world of drugs, money, politics, war, and false-flag everything."

Greetings and thanks from New Orleans...It`s great to have you back Les, though you never really left. Dogpaddling in the substanceless bullshit, your raw meat and fresh air help the ambiance for sure. Humanity seems headed for a full on meeting with God. Cheney/Bush are indeed dangerous...but they represent the twitchings of a dying animal. Again, Thanks and Love, Hunter

Hi Les, Check out the book "The Anatomy Of Human Destructiveness" 1973., written by Eric Fromm (1900-1980). The Bush Crime Family and Criminal Regime are no doubt: hard-core and pure necrophiles. S.A. Homes

Fromm was always interested in trying to understand the really evil people of this world -- not just one's who were confused or misled or stupid or sick, but the one's who, with full consciousness of the evil of their acts, performed them anyway: Hitler, Stalin, Charles Manson, Jim Jones, and so on, large and small.

All the orientations we've talked about, productive and non-productive, in the having mode or the being mode, have one thing in common: They are all efforts at life. Like Horney, Fromm believed that even the most miserable neurotic is at the least trying to cope with life. They are, to use his word, biophilous, life-loving.

But there is another type of person he calls necrophilous -- the lovers of death. They have the passionate attraction to all that is dead, decayed, putrid, sickly; it is the passion to transform that which is alive into something unalive; to destroy for the sake of destruction; the exclusive interest in all that is purely mechanical. It is the passion "to tear apart living structures."

If you think back to high school, you may remember a few misfits: They were real horror movie aficionados. They may have made models of torture devices and guillotines. They loved to play war games. They liked to blow things up with their chemistry sets. They got a kick out of torturing small animals. They treasured their guns. They were really into mechanical devices. The more sophisticated the technology, the happier they were. Beavis and Butthead are modeled after these kids.

I remember watching an interview on TV once, back during the little war in Nicaragua. There were plenty of American mercenaries among the Contras, and one in particular had caught the reporters eye. He was a munitions expert -- someone who blew up bridges, buildings, and, of course, the occasional enemy soldier. When asked how he got into this line of work, he smiled and told the reporter that he might not like the story. You see, when he was a kid, he liked to put firecrackers up the backside of little birds he had caught, light the fuses, let them go, and watch them blow up. This man was a necrophiliac.

Fromm makes a few guesses as to how such a person happens. He suggested that there may be some genetic flaw that prevents them from feeling or responding to affection. It may also be a matter of a life so full of frustration that the person spends the rest of their life in a rage. And finally, he suggests that it may be a matter of growing up with a necrophilous mother, so that the child has no one to learn love from. It is very possible that some combination of these factors is at work. And yet there is still the idea that these people know what they are doing, are conscious of their evil, and choose it. It is a subject that would bear more study!
