Was the sinking of the South Korean Warship a False Flag?

SATURDAY, 07 AUGUST 2010 02:31

UK, August 4, 2010 (Pal Telegraph, by Peter Eyre) -

So many times we hear or read about conspiracy theories or false flag operations whereby the CIA, Mossad or other secret service operatives create an incident and then conveniently point the finger at a country or organisation with whom that have a bone of contention.

I actually have a special interest in this particular incident having spent much time working with submarines both operationally and also whilst working onboard a torpedo recovery vessel (TRV). During my time in the navy I also worked on minesweepers and so got to understand all aspects of underwater warfare. One certainly has to keep an open mind on the sinking of the Cheonan as several methods could have been used.

The possibilities are endless ranging from torpedoes, to limpet mines to many other types of mines – Acoustic Mines – Magnetic Mines and Contact Mines all of which can either be moored to the ocean floor or just sit on the bottom. Some mines can actually release a homing torpedo when an enemy vessels approaches.

One should also keep in mind that there are also options as to how this incident occurred that resulted in yet another “False Flag” incident hyped up by the US. It could have been a friendly fire incident or an intentional act by using an ally torpedo or a moored mine both of which have the ability to split the ship in two.

Maybe many of you are convinced and happy to accept the South Korean version of this event but you must all fully understand those that carried out the inquiry were all allies of South Korea and no independent analysis was ever carried out. I therefore hope that when you have read this article you may be totally convinced or maybe have some doubt in your mind as to the true facts behind this incident.

One must fully understand that this particular area is a very sophisticated training ground for Anti Submarine Warfare (ASW) and accordingly would be extremely well protected against any intrusion by other vessel and or submarines. It is also important to keep in mind that this same area is also carefully monitored by China and Russia who have some very sophisticated equipment and apparatus to watch over every aspect of the Korean Peninsular.

The sinking of the South Korean Corvette Cheonan took place on the evening of March the 26th 2010 at 2122 local time in total darkness. The location was just offshore on the southwest corner of Baengnyeong Island which sits very close to the border with North Korea. The island is a hub for the South Korean military and is also a very active area for war games with many other nations, especially the United States Navy which I will explain below.

Baengnyeong Island is a Secret Joint US-South Korean Naval Base for anti-submarine warfare (ASW) operations. The surrounding waters are relatively void of any civilian vessels making it a perfect location for a multitude of naval exercises. What is more important is the solitude and silence in its waters making it a good location to install sonar listening devices which one normally associated with areas used for submarine training and anti submarine training. One could also assume that it would also be a good location for mine laying and mine sweeping activities as well as regular exercise in submarine hunting by both surface craft and submarines. Add to this both surface and subsea training by the US Navy Seals

It is very important to fully understand that this location would be very heavy protected by Land Sea and Air. The lack of en route traffic would also make it a perfect listening ground for approaching vessels, submarines or any other craft as well as any weapons that were release by a submarine such as a torpedo or underwater launched missile. The joint US-South Korean naval base is staffed by American and South Korean naval special operation force personnel and accordingly uses extremely sophisticated weapons and apparatus.

Obviously one would first ask the question that if the US and South Korean Navy monitor the North Korean Navy at all times and knew that certain vessels had left their base how is it possible for any vessel to sneak into a highly protected zone undetected. In this case it was in relatively shallow water and well within the sonar listening zone. One should also remember that the local US Naval Commander himself declared that there was no North Korean activity in the area.

Let's just read some comments from experts who know this area extremely well and who also believe this was certainly a "False Flag" as I do:

The March attack on the South Korean Navy anti-submarine warfare (ASW) corvette, the Cheonan, was a false flag attack designed to appear as coming from North Korea.

One of the main purposes for increasing tensions on the Korean peninsula was to apply pressure on Japanese Prime Minister Yukio Hatoyama to reverse course on moving the U.S. Marine Corps base off Okinawa. Hatoyama has admitted that the tensions over the sinking of the Cheonan played a large part in his decision to allow the U.S. Marines to remain on Okinawa.

The Cheonan was sunk near Baengnyeong Island, a westernmost spot that is far from the South Korean coast, but opposite the North Korean coast. The island is heavily militarized and within artillery fire range of North Korean coastal defenses, which lie across a narrow channel.

The Cheonan, an ASW corvette, was decked out with state-of-the-art sonar, plus it was operating in waters with extensive hydrophone sonar arrays and acoustic underwater sensors. There is no South Korean sonar or audio evidence of a torpedo, submarine or mini-sub in the area. Since there is next to no shipping in the channel, the sea was silent at the time of the sinking.

However, Baengnyeong Island hosts a joint US-South Korea military intelligence base and the US Navy SEALs operate out of the base. In addition, four U.S. Navy ships were in the area, part of the joint U.S.-South Korean Exercise Foal Eagle, during the sinking of the Cheonan. Investigations of the suspect torpedo's metallic and chemical fingerprints show it to be of German manufacture. There are suspicions that the US Navy SEALs maintains a sampling of European torpedoes for sake of plausible deniability for false flag attacks.

Germany does not sell torpedoes to North Korea, however, Germany does maintain a close joint submarine and submarine weapons development program with Israel and as we know these submarines passed through the Suez Canal some time ago. The Republic of Korea Navy also just happens to operate type 214 submarines, also built and exported from Germany. These submarines use 533mm DM2A3 torpedoes that have a striking resemblance to the parts that were recovered from the sea bed in the vicinity of the Cheonan sinking.

The presence of the USNS Salvor, one of the participants in Foal Eagle, so close to Baengnyeong Island during the sinking of the South Korean corvette also raises questions. The Salvor, a civilian Navy salvage ship, which participated in mine laying activities for the Thai Marines in the Gulf of Thailand in 2006, was present near the time of the blast with a complement of 12 deep sea divers.

Beijing, satisfied with North Korea's Kim Jong Il's claim of innocence after a hurried train trip from Pyongyang to Beijing, suspects the U.S. Navy's role in the Cheonan's sinking, with particular suspicion on the role of the Salvor. The suspicions are as follows:

1. The Salvor engaged in a seabed mine-installation operation, in other words, attaching horizontally fired anti-submarine mines on the sea floor in the channel.
2. The Salvor was doing routine inspection and maintenance on seabed mines, and put them into an electronic active mode (hair trigger release) as part of the inspection program.
3. A SEALs diver attached a magnetic mine to the Cheonan, as part of a covert program aimed at influencing public opinion in South Korea, Japan and China.

The Korean peninsula tensions have conveniently overshadowed all other agenda items on Secretary of State Hillary Clinton's visits to Beijing and Seoul.

What is also remarkable about the sinking of the Cheonan was the fact that the Director of the South Korean National Intelligence – Won See-hoon told the South Korean Parliamentary Committee in early April, less than two weeks after the incident that there was no evidence linking North Korea to the sinking.

South Korea's Minister of Defence Kim Tae-young also backed him up by saying that the crew of the stricken corvette had not detected a torpedo.

It was also interesting to learn that the Head of the Marine Operations Office at the South Korean Joint Chiefs of Staff agreed that "No North Korean Warships have been detected in the waters where the accident took place."

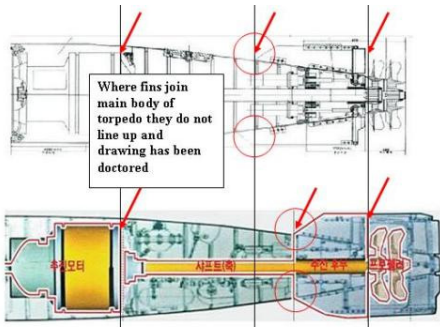

Defense Ministry officials added that they had not detected any North Korean submarines in the area at the time of the incident

When speculation persisted that the Cheonan had been sunk by a North Korean torpedo, the Defense Ministry called another press conference to reiterate "there was no unusual North Korean activities detected at the time of the disaster."

A ministry spokesman, Won Tae-jae, told reporters that "With regard to this case, no particular activities by North Korean submarines or semi-submarines...have been verified. I am saying again that there were no activities that could be directly linked to" the Cheonan's sinking.

Rear Admiral Lee, the head of the marine operations office, added that, "We closely watched the movement of the North's vessels, including submarines and semi-submersibles, at the time of the sinking. But military did not detect any North Korean submarines near the country's western sea border."

The black and white diagram at the top is the one produced by the South Korean Government after the full size colour diagram (taken from the so called North Korean Governments export brochure for the CHT0-02D torpedo) was originally first produced. It was evident that this was a concocted story with no comparison between the parts on display and the diagram. They then produced the black and white diagram which as you can see does not match the North Korean brochure diagram (if it ever existed). Note that in the coloured brochure the propeller is shrouded and sits within the fin and steering mechanism and in the black and white picture there is no shroud. Also note the lines that I have drawn in the two diagrams do not line up! Rather strange don't you think?
 Peter Eyre - Middle East Consultant - 2/8/2010

So, a North Korean submarine is now said to have fired a torpedo which sank the Cheonan, but in the immediate aftermath of the sinking the South Korean navy detected no North Korean naval vessels, including submarines, in the area. Indeed, immediately following the incident defense minister Lee ruled out a North Korean torpedo attack, noting that a torpedo would have been spotted, and no torpedo had been spotted.

Finally we have the statement made by the South Korean Coast Guard Captain Go Yeong-jae who rescued 56 of the stricken warship's crew, he "received an order ...that a naval patrol vessel had run aground in the waters 1.2 miles to the southwest of Baengnyeong Island, and that we were to move there quickly to rescue them."

The Cheonan incident certainly indicates yet another US, South Korea or possibly Israel concocted story that resembles another false flag incident that occurred during the Viet Nam War in the Gulf of Tonkin, in which the US fabricated a story about North Vietnam sinking the USS Maddox. This was used as an excuse to attack North Vietnam. Now we see America, South Korea and possibly Israel fabricating evidence in order to carry out an aggressive strategy towards North Korea under the pretext of "self-defense." What is also another most important part of this cover up was Clinton visit to Japan re the possible closure of a US Marine air base.

Let's now turn to the evidence and prove that the South Korean Government with the help of the investigation team from the US, Sweden, Australia and the UK tried to deceive the international media into believing their analysis was correct.

When the South Korean Government did their first major press conference they very carefully created a full sized copy of the CHT-02D (which they say was used by the North Korean Navy in this incident). They just happened to obtain a copy of a brochure for this torpedo which they say is used to promote sales of the torpedo to overseas customers.

They even went a stage further to show a full scale drawing that was held up above the recovered parts to show that it was this actual torpedo that sank the Cheonan.

However, many people noticed that this certainly was not the case as the scale and design of the rear part of the torpedo did not match the drawing (which you can see in the above picture).

After some time the South Korean Government then produced another black and white detailed diagram that resembled the actual parts located and made a statement that they had rushed the original drawing to show the media and accordingly had made some mistakes. My question would be "How is this possible if the brochure was the actual brochure produced by the North Korean for their export market"?

I then decide to put the two drawings together and compare both with the actual recovered parts and again we can see that not only do the diagrams not align but also the propeller on the parts recovered is a much more sophisticated design in the aero dynamical sense. Also note the corrosion of the metal and prop which would indicate a longer period of time in the water and also longer period of oxidization once taken out of the water. The maximum time the remnants of the actual torpedo hat they claim sank the Cheonan was seven weeks.

The actual weapon used to sink this vessel was either a German manufactured torpedo or a moored submerged mine of possible US design both of which were capable of splitting the Cheonan in two as you can see in the video:
http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=_oUNt47G-08

One can also see an alternative view of this incident: <http://www.nowpublic.com/world/new-gulf-tonkin-south-korean-torpedo-sunk-rok-warship>

When one looks at the more modern German DM2A3 you can see a striking resemblance, not only in the design of the tail and propeller but also in its colour. You will note that the base colour of the German torpedo is the same as the parts that were put on public display

I have to say that yet again we see a classic US generated "False Flag" operation that in this case could take South Korea, US and allies to yet another war!

It is time that the people of the world, in particular those that live in the US, see through this false façade and stop these tyrants in their tracks. The axis of evil is not in some distant land but in minds of such people as Kissinger, Bush, Rumsfeld, Cheney, Clinton and all those that have and continue to surround them. The ultimate responsibility for these evil actions must clearly rest on the shoulders of the Presidents and Prime Ministers of those countries who participate in such actions.

I will close off this article with a famous saying by Gandhi that adds meaning to this particular article:
"When I despair, I remember that all through history the way of truth and love has always won. There have been tyrants and murderers and for a time they seem invincible but in the end, they always fall -- think of it, ALWAYS."

Is the United States a Israel's computer game

Dictatorship

SATURDAY, 07 AUGUST 2010 02:31

UK,

July 28, (Pal telegraph – By Peter Eyre)
Unfortunately for some decades now the past Presidents and key members of the US Government have been on one continuous war footing. They have embarked on an extremely aggressive foreign policy and taken over the role of policing the world in place of the United Nations. It is clearly evident that as far as the United States is concerned you had better “Do as I say or else.”

This aggressiveness is so advanced it is no longer possible to negotiate with them on a fair and balanced playing field. This policy is not only confined to the US but also extends over in the UK, France, Germany and Israel which has basically made each of their leaders and respective governments very unpopular with the people.

It is a known fact that when a leader or government reaches an all time low it is time to assert your authority, spread fear or mass hysteria amongst your populations and then take your country to war, all of which in on false pretenses.

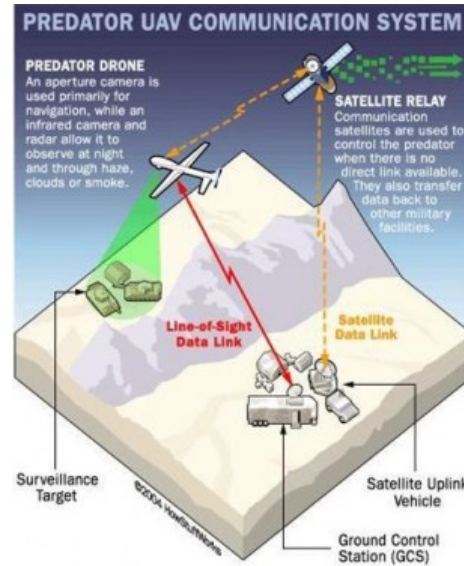

We have seen this time and time again with the wars in the Balkans, Iraq, Afghanistan, Lebanon, Gaza, Pakistan and now Yemen and Somalia. One can now see two other wars on the horizon as a direct result of their big bully tactics.

What gives the US and its allies the right to police the world and say who should be allowed to develop nuclear energy or nuclear weapons when they themselves remain unchecked? What gives these countries the right to dictate what any country can or cannot do when they themselves are carrying out a massive programme of deceit? What allows them to hide behind this so called Non Proliferation Treaty in reducing the amount of WMD's when they are not only developing them but also using them on a daily basis?

It is clearly evident that the US, UK, NATO Members and Israel are using their weapons of “Mass Destruction” totally unchecked in all the past and current areas of conflict. The aftermath of this totally irresponsible action has basically contaminated the entire Middle East and the world beyond.

decides Palestinians' fate

July 18, (Pal Telegraph – By Peter Eyre)
There isn't a day goes by where every Palestinian is not under the watchful eye of the Israeli Military. The IDF can eliminate (assassinate) anyone at anytime without putting any of their own forces in danger. It's all done by the technology of using satellites, airborne drones or elevated cameras at strategic locations along the border. Maybe you would find it hard to believe that they can almost read your book, newspaper or magazine from space as you walk along the road or sit in your garden reading.

The technology is now so advanced that a military operative many miles away can control a drone on the other side of the world, select a target and fire a missile, bunker buster or gun. You may also be surprised to learn that this technology is going a stage further by being able to focus a beam of energy onto you as you walk along the street and then having the ability to interact with your mind and disable you etc. This technology really does add new meaning to the term Microwave or Laser. We must also not forget high frequency sounds or other form of energy and mind control techniques currently under test and it literally becomes, dare I say, a “Mind Blowing Experience.”

Imagine an operator sitting in an easy chair, with a large computer screen and maps, zooming in on you with a joy stick control and then at the press of a button deciding your fate. Add to this the many international double agents who join a charity or activist group and who appear to show support for the Palestinian cause.

To prove that this is not just hearsay we have to look at the gallant efforts of a small group of dedicated people who put themselves at great risk to reveal the truth to the world.

On such person is Dr Chris Busby, a visiting professor at the University of Ulster who recently compiled a report on a survey carried out in the Iraqi city of Fallujah.

The city of Fallujah as we all know received a bombardment of WMD weapons by the US and coalition forces resulting in an horrific rise in birth defects and many forms of cancer. One could go well beyond Fallujah to learn that as a direct result of the use of these weapons, almost every location in the Balkans, Kuwait, Iraq, Afghanistan, Pakistan, Lebanon, Gaza and the entire Middle East and beyond have been severely contaminated with weapons that contain uranium components.

Let's just take a look at some comments made in the UK's Independent newspaper on Saturday as written by Patrick Cockburn: Dramatic increases in infant mortality, cancer and leukemia in the Iraqi city of Fallujah, which was bombarded by US Marines in 2004, exceed those reported by survivors of the atomic bombs that were dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki in 1945, according to a new study.

Iraqi doctors in Fallujah have complained since 2005 of being overwhelmed by the number of babies with serious birth defects, ranging from a girl born with two heads to paralysis of the lower limbs.

Dr Busby, Malak Hamdan and Entesar Ariabi are the authors of a report titled: "Cancer, Infant Mortality and Birth Sex-Ratio in Fallujah, Iraq 2005-2009"

The survey was carried out by a team of 11 researchers in January and February this year who visited 711 houses in Fallujah. A questionnaire was filled in by householders giving (4,800 individuals) details of cancers, birth outcomes and infant mortality. It was interesting to note that the Iraqi Government tried to encourage people not to take part in this survey!

The report revealed evidence of a sharp rise in cancer and congenital birth defects. Infant mortality was found to be 80 per 1,000 births compared to 19 in Egypt, 17 in Jordan and 9.7 in Kuwait. The report also stated that the types of cancer are "similar to that in the agents infiltrate into the West Bank and Gaza, befriend key Palestinian activist and then at an appropriate time give Mossad a detailed profile of the activist i.e. location and movements etc. It is then left to Mossad to carry out an assassination or arrest the activist. Sometimes some of these internationals became the sacrificial lamb and would get shot which added even more drama to the charities cause. One could clearly see that this was the case with the Turkish ferry incident this year and there had to be insiders operating onboard the ferry

Israel is at the forefront of this technology and accordingly allows the government to maintain its apartheid control of each and every Palestinian in the most inhumane way. So let's take a look at this vast web of technology and its evil covert operations.

Satellites have many applications and can be used as a collecting point for receiving spy data, relaying that data to another point on the planet or military unit or just simply sending images back to earth and navigational information etc

Drones on the other hand have a different application when they fly over such places as Gaza (on a continuous basis) and are truly an invasion into to their privacy! The operator can sit in his command centre and when you leave your house or get into your car you can be followed for the entire day if necessary (day or night).

drone operator once they have located a potential victim then highlights that person or vehicle or building with a spot laser. Once the beam is locked onto the target the drone can fire its own Hellfire missile or bunker buster which will then very accurately hit the Hiroshima survivors who were exposed to ionising radiation from the bomb and uranium in the fallout.”

Researchers found a 38-fold increase in leukemia, a ten-fold increase in female breast cancer and significant increases in lymphoma and brain tumours in adults. At Hiroshima survivors showed a 17-fold increase in leukemia, but in Fallujah Dr Busby says “what is striking is not only the greater prevalence of cancer but the speed with which it was affecting people.”

findings also revealed dramatic changes in the sex ratio between newborn boys and girls. In a normal population this is 1,050 boys born to 1,000 girls, but for those born from 2005 there was an 18 per cent drop in male births, so the ratio was 850 males to 1,000 females. The sex-ratio is an indicator of genetic damage that affects boys more than girls. A similar change in the sex-ratio was discovered after Hiroshima.

What we are looking at in Fallujah also applies to the City of Basrah and many other locations around the region. I am convinced that the amount of weapons used in Afghanistan for instance is much higher than those used in Iraq. These same weapons are also being used by the US in Northern Pakistan and as we have seen so many times before the contamination does not identify any borders. The radioactive nano particles drift on the wind and carry out their deadly work well beyond the fields of battle.

I would like to take this opportunity to point out that the Israeli Government allowed both US and Israeli made “Weapons of Mass Destruction” to be used in and around the Gaza Strip with exactly the same projected outcome. This contamination also crossed over the border into Israel itself, West Bank and all adjacent countries such as Jordan, Egypt, Lebanon and Syria etc.

This now brings us back onto the topic of the US/Israeli threat currently being made against Iran. We can clearly see that they are both geared up for conflict with the doubling up of the weapons stockpile in both Israel and Diego Garcia. In the Persian Gulf there are several US Carrier groups with supporting vessels armed with Tomahawk Cruise Missiles including US Marine amphibious vessels and attack submarines. As one would expect the US are supported assigned target. Alternatively the operator can keep the laser beam on target and call in Israeli jet fighters or helicopter that again will use the same beam to guide their weapons to target.

All of this technology is carried out automatically without the necessity for any Israeli being in the conflict zone. One can clearly see that with this type of operation many Palestinians can be killed or injured without the loss of one single Israeli.

You may be shocked to learn that the Israelis are now working on fully robotic armed vehicles/vessels for both land and sea. This will allow them to send an armoured vehicle into the West Bank or Gaza and open fire as required without any risk to the IDF.

can clearly see in this series of photographs Israel’s future remote control vehicles that will be used against Palestinians or any other nation who may become involved in any conflict with Israel. Unfortunately as we have seen in Pakistan one can expect a much higher death rate from such robots that do not have the ability to decide if the target is friend or foe. This obviously just adds to the deteriorating relationship between Israel and Palestine. Even the bulldozer can now be remotely controlled by some off location operator. It is also evident that the US and Israel are currently working on the next generation of weapons which will add to the misery of all the people of Palestine.

Finally we have the ground surveillance system that operates from cameras located in towers or poles along the Palestinian border which feed information back to a military control room. The operator is normally a female owing to the shortage of combat troops. This level of surveillance is appalling as it gives no opportunity for the operator to distinguish between good or bad and will lead to many innocent deaths. It was interesting to note that the headline for this aspect of ground surveillance was “Killing by remote control.”

by other NATO vessels and also the Israeli Navy with its Dolphin Class Submarines that are armed with nuclear missiles.

There is also another large battle group in the Eastern Mediterranean, consisting of a large US Carrier group from the 6th Fleet, A French carrier and several other naval vessels from Germany, Bulgaria, Turkey, Greece and Spain etc. One could also expect a carrier group to be operational in the Red Sea all of whom are capable of a united strike on Iran.

we have seen before this build-up is not only significant but would appear to be an indication of some pending action. In the case of the War in Iraq and Afghanistan it's now a matter of waiting for the right time.

One can expect a significant "False Flag" incident to take place in the near future in order for the US to justify an attack on Iran.....this could be at any location within the US, UK or other NATO partner country and obviously this will then be blamed onto Iran. As we have seen so many times before any US led plan will implicate all other NATO countries based on "An attack on one is an attack on all."

This strategy by the US of manipulating all NATO countries is done so as not to tarnish the US too much as being the instigator and immediately allows the US to control the conflict as well as demanding that all NATO countries provide suitable forces to combat the problem.

The current US Foreign Policy towards Iran is not only heavy handed but is also operating outside of the United Nations. Any attack on Iran would be considered catastrophic to say the least and would involve thousands of weapons that contain depleted uranium components as well as real nuclear weapons. Should this attack take place it will spread radiation charged nano particles around the entire Middle East within 2 days and the rest of the world within 1-2 weeks.

What makes this US intimidation of Iran so absurd is the fact that it is secretly assisting Israel to develop its own nuclear programme. Israel is not a signatory to the NPT and therefore this is a very clever way for the US to assist in nuclear development and use that to its own advantage. This evil and

The article stated the following: Spot and Shoot, as it is called by the Israeli military, may look like a video game but the figures on the screen are real people – Palestinians in Gaza – who can be killed with the press of a button on the joystick. The female soldiers, located far away in an operations room, are responsible for aiming and firing remote-controlled machine-guns mounted on watch-towers every few hundred metres along an electronic fence that surrounds Gaza. According to Giora Katz, Rafael's vice president, remote-controlled military hardware such as Spot and Shoot is the face of the future. He expects that within a decade at least a third of the machines used by the Israeli army to control land, air and sea will be unmanned.

The demand for such devices, the Israeli army admits, has been partly fuelled by a combination of declining recruitment levels and a population less ready to risk death in combat.

The women are supposed to identify anyone suspicious approaching the fence around Gaza and, if authorised by an officer, execute them using their joysticks.

The Israeli army, which plans to introduce the technology along Israel's other confrontation lines, refuses to say how many Palestinians have been killed by the remotely controlled machine-guns in Gaza.

According to the Israeli media, however, it is believed to be several dozen.

The article went on to say that the system was phased-in two years ago for surveillance, but operators were only able to open fire with it more recently. The army admitted using Sentry Tech in December to kill at least two Palestinians several hundred metres inside the fence.

sinister under the table deal will allow Israel to increase its stockpile and at the same time allow the US to share that stockpile in much the same way it has done when Obama allowed the US military to double the US arms stockpile in Israel. This extremely clever covert operation now allows the transfer of arms from military to military without going through Congress in the normal way (US Department of Defense Transmittal Notice).

on the other side of the world we have the same situation developing between the US/South Korea and North Korea with a massive military build up on both sides. What makes this entire scenario absurd is that it has nothing to do with nuclear development or towing the line but rather a Geo Political stance by the US in attempting to control the world's natural resources or to acquire world markets for its own companies etc.

So the big showdown looms on the horizon and all are on full standby waiting for the US to find justification to attack one or both locations. We could also assume that because of the sensitivity of such an attack China would be pulled into the conflict as well as possible support from Syria, and Lebanon etc. Either way it again reveals the total arrogance of the Obama regime who now has the full support of the US, France, Germany and Israel.

It is my opinion that the West has miscalculated the military might of Iran and could well regret such an attack. Iran is very well prepared and is likely to respond with a significant retaliatory attack that could be extremely devastating for Israel in so many ways.

Environmentally speaking it would be catastrophic for the entire Middle East and the world leading to mass genocide in many countries. From the New World Order perspective this type of depopulation is what they have been working on for some considerable time. No doubt the likes of towers are designed to create a 1500-meter deep "automated kill zone" along the Gaza border. Each unit mounts a 7.62 or 0.5" machine gun, shielded from enemy fire and the elements by an environmentally protective bulletproof canopy. In addition to the use of direct fire machine guns, observers can also employ precision guided missiles, such as Spike LR optically guided missiles and Lahat laser guided weapons."

It is clearly obvious that the IDF are now becoming robots being fed information from Satellites, Drones and remote control vehicles with no physical contact with its potential enemy or victim. This is just another obstacle for the struggling Palestinians to overcome in dealing with this evil and satanic regime. It is obvious that Israel has now crossed the line in its attempt to reach a two state solution with only one intention....."To remove all Palestinians from their homeland."

Israelis dump toxic waste over vital water supply for the region

SATURDAY, 07 AUGUST 2010 02:31

July 25, (Pal Telegraph – By Peter Eyre) Israelis waste that is disposed of in the landfill at Abu Dis (the West Bank), which is under Palestinian territorial authority is in contradiction to international law which prohibits the transport and disposal of wastes across borders without mutual consent. Moreover, the landfill is near capacity, and additional landfill sites are still undesignated. This fact further emphasizes the urgent need for a comprehensive solid waste policy for the area (Solid Waste Management Policy in the Jerusalem District – September 2008)

An Israeli company - The Ma'ale Adumim Planning and Development Company Ltd has been managing the Abu Dis landfill, near the neighborhood of Abu Dis, since 1998. The site receives waste from Jerusalem and the surrounding localities. The 430-dunam site receives huge amounts of waste every day, from Jerusalem, Ma'ale Adumim and the surrounding localities. This same company is also vigorously selling off industrial land development which also sits over the top of the water aquifers that are so vital to the region. The combination of the landfill site and industrial development over such a precious resource will have devastating effects on the population. When both landfill waste and industrial run off are added together the toxic plumes that radiate out from such locations will not only contaminate the public water supply but will also eventually be picked up by submersible pumps that water vast tracts of agricultural land.

July 13, 2010 (Pal Telegraph, by Peter Eyre) - I was shocked to read the following headlines the other day from an Associated Press article: "Former British Prime Minister Tony Blair received a hero's welcome Friday on a visit to Kosovo from nine boys named after him. "Who in their right mind would name their son after this war criminal"?"

Blair was on one of his "Mr Nice Guy" tours in Central Prestina, Kosovo where he was met by a large crowd of Union Flag waving followers and a group of young boys who carry his name.

I get the impression that with the Chilcott enquiry about to get back into full swing and all the PR work in the Middle East and previous areas of conflict he's trying to impress the people of Europe that he's the right candidate for the EU Presidency which has been on hold for him for some time.

He was accompanied by his wife Cherie Blair with the backdrop of a huge poster which read "a leader, a friend, a hero".....I find this very repulsive to say the least and does not portray the true person behind this false façade.

The AP report went on to say: All of Kosovo's Tony Blairs were born after the 1999 war between ethnic Albanian fighters in Kosovo and Serbian strongman Slobodan Milosevic's forces. The conflict ended after a NATO air campaign ousted Serbian forces and established a UN protectorate over the territory.
