Turkey move deters Netanyahu from nuclear meet
Fri, 09 Apr 2010 05:09:02 GMT

Israel's Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu

The Israeli Prime Minister has decided not to partake in the forthcoming Nuclear Security Summit in Washington over Egypt and Turkey's plan to file a motion demanding that Tel Aviv open its nuclear facilities for international inspection.

According to a report broadcast on Israel's Army Radio on Thursday, Benjamin Netanyahu has called off the trip to the US capital and is sending Deputy Prime Minister Dan Meridor instead.

American sources have notified Israel that a group of participating Arab countries led by Turkey and Egypt plan to use next week's Nuclear Security Summit in Washington to pressure Israel join the Nuclear Non-proliferation Treaty (NPT) and give international inspectors "unfettered access" to its nuclear facilities.

Israel is the sole nuclear-armed power in the Middle East.

The total Israeli nuclear stockpile consists of several hundred weapons of various types, including boosted fission and enhanced radiation weapons i.e. neutron bombs, as well as nuclear artillery shells.

Truth agaenst lies. And it is a dificult struggle. Lies are fighting the truth shoulder to shoulder with hipocricy.

Let me submit here with utmost modesty

My doctorate thesis on relationships pertinent to this case.
And I invite all academics to contest it.

The relationship:

The Israel is the owner.

AIPACK is the leash.

The stock market is the whip.

And US administration is a Rothwiler (not too smart) capable to distinguish only two orders "Attack" and "Sit."

Very good thesis. I am sure you have tons of material to support everything to succesffully defend that thesis at any respectable university except in zionist led institutions such as those in the US

One small correction if I may suggest. The owner is actually the secret 'bankers' led by the rotschilds. I guess you could reconstruct the thesis with only the following addition: World secret bankers (Rothschilds) are the supreme owner
