Chavez and the Russian Fleet: U.S. Used "Earthquake Weapon" On Haiti

Earlier this week, a Spanish newspaper quoted Venezuelan leader Hugo Chavez as saying the U.S. Navy caused the Haiti earthquake with a tectonic weapon. The Venezuelan media reported that the earthquake "may be associated with the project called HAARP, a system that can generate violent and unexpected changes in climate," Press TV reported on January 21.

Chavez cited a report from Russia's Northern Fleet. According to the report, the U.S. Navy made a mistake with a secret "earthquake weapon" and the result was the Haitian earthquake. The Russians believe the intended target was Iran. "Though Russian Northern Fleets' report was not confirmed by official sources, the comments attracted special attention in some US and Russian media outlets including Fox news and Russia Today," writes Pragmatic Witness blog. "Russia Today's report said that Moscow has also been accused of possessing and utilizing such weapons."

"Speaking on his weekly television show, Chavez opined that the U.S. mission in Haiti was a ruse to initiate military occupation," the New York Daily News said.

Venezuelan media "added that the U.S. government's HAARP program, an atmospheric research facility in Alaska (and frequent subject of conspiracy theories), was also to blame for a Jan. 9 quake in Eureka, Calif., and may have been behind the 7.8-magnitude quake in China that killed nearly 90,000 people in 2008," Fox News reported on Thursday.

In 1997, former U.S. Defense Secretary William Cohen made the following statement:

Others terrorists are engaging even in an eco-type of terrorism whereby they can alter the climate, set off earthquakes, volcanoes remotely through the use of electromagnetic waves... So there are plenty of ingenious minds out there that are at work finding ways in which they can wreak terror upon other nations...It's real, and that's the reason why we have to intensify our counterterrorism efforts.

Cohen was talking about longitudinal EM wave interferometers (LWI) technology (also known as "Tesla howitzers"). LWI waves can effortlessly pass through the ocean and earth. Experts claim LWI waves can in fact pass through the earth and emerge on the other side. The United States and Russia have possessed this technology for decades.

Cohen would have you believe it is a technology that only terrorists would use. It depends on who you would call a terrorist.

In 1966, Professor Gordon J. F. MacDonald, associate director of the Institute of Geophysics and Planetary Physics at the University of California, Los Angeles, was a member of the President's Science Advisory Committee. MacDonald published papers on the use of environmental-control technologies for military purposes, including "earthquake engineering" (he also wrote about weather manipulation, climate modification, polar ice cap melting or destabilization, ozone depletion techniques).

"The revealed secrets surprised legislators," writes Dr. Nick Begich. "Would an inquiry into the state of the art of electromagnetic manipulation surprise lawmakers today? They may find out that technologies developed out of the HAARP experiments in Alaska could deliver on Gordon MacDonald's vision because leading-edge scientists are describing global weather as not only air pressure and thermal systems, but also as an electrical system."

Jesse Ventura detailed the HAARP program on his popular truTV show Conspiracy Theory:

Of course, we have no direct evidence the Pentagon used HAARP to touch off a massive earthquake in Haiti.

The U.S., however, has exploited the earthquake to send the military to the stricken island nation. "They brazenly occupied Haiti without consulting the UN or the OAS (Organization of American States)," said Chavez earlier in the week. Bolivian President Evo Morales said Wednesday he would request an emergency UN meeting "to repudiate and reject this military occupation of the United States in Haiti."

"It's not right the United States should use this natural disaster to invade and militarily occupy Haiti," he told a press conference.

"The unspoken mission of US Southern Command (SOUTHCOM) with headquarters in Miami and US military installations throughout Latin America is to ensure the maintenance of subservient national regimes, namely US proxy governments, committed to the Washington Consensus and the neoliberal policy agenda," writes Michel Chossudovsky. "While US military personnel will at the outset be actively involved in emergency and disaster relief, this renewed US military presence in Haiti will be used to establish a foothold in the country as well pursue America's strategic and geopolitical objectives in the Caribbean basin, which are largely directed against Cuba and Venezuela."

The objective is not to work towards the rehabilitation of the national government, the presidency, the parliament, all of which has been decimated by the earthquake. Since the fall of the Duvalier dictatorship, America's design has been to gradually dismantle the Haitian State, restore colonial patterns and obstruct the functioning of a democratic government. In the present context, the objective is not only to do away with the government but also to revamp the mandate of the United Nations Stabilization Mission in Haiti (MINUSTAH), of which the headquarters have been destroyed...

Prior to the earthquake, there were, according to US military sources, some 60 US military personnel in Haiti. From one day to the next, an outright military surge has occurred: 10,000 troops, marines, special forces, intelligence operatives, etc., not to mention private mercenary forces on contract to the Pentagon.

In all likelihood the humanitarian operation will be used as a pretext and justification to establish a more permanent US military presence in Haiti.

Is it possible the Pentagon would kill 100,000 or more Haitians to realize such a project?

The U.S. killed well over a million Iraqis, why not a 100,000 or so Haitians?

Some education?

E = mc<sup>2</sup> = h x f..... this simple equation, if you have proper technology can make tectonic plates tremble

using high frequency magnetic wave

$h$  – Planck' constant =  $6.62606896(33) \times 10^{-34}$  Js
 $f$  – frequency of electromagnetic wave (1/second)
 $c$ - speed of light in vacuum 299,792,458 metres per second,
 $m$ -mass in kg
 $h$  ... Plank's constant

Energy is expressed in two forms, particle and wave energy.

significance is due to it being the solution to the differential equation describing forced resonance!!!!

resonance

Rapid amplification of a vibration when the vibrating object is subject to a force varying at its natural frequency. In a trombone, for example, the length of the air column in the instrument is adjusted until it resonates with the note being sounded. Resonance effects are also produced by many electrical circuits. Tuning a radio, for example, is done by adjusting the natural frequency of the receiver circuit until it coincides with the frequency of the radio waves falling on the aerial.

Resonance has many physical applications. Children use it to increase the size of the movement on a swing, by giving a push at the same point during each swing. Soldiers marching across a bridge in step could cause the bridge to vibrate violently if the frequency of their steps coincided with its natural frequency.

Frequency at which a mechanical system will vibrate freely. A pendulum, for example, always oscillates at the same frequency when set in motion. More complicated systems, such as bridges, also vibrate with a fixed natural frequency. If a varying force with a frequency equal to the natural frequency is applied to such an object the vibrations can become violent, a phenomenon known as resonance.

Why the border between Haiti and Dominican Republic wasn't opened up immediately, and aid transferred in through one of the International airports.

Innocent human life must come before politics under such circumstances.
