Or would it be the Sam7?

Project for the new American century.

by ILYANA_ROZUMOVA on 26.04.2010 [15:44]

How much misery and blood it already did cost.
How much blood and misery it still will cost.
Will the ideal of new American century win in the end?
I did not know! (I have a small mind!)
But I knew where to go to ask for the wisdom!
I went to see Confucius!
And I have asked him.
Will the ideal of new American century win in the end?
.....
He said no!
.....
And stop bothering me with such a trivial questions.
.....
So I left him! Beeing humiliated and feeling a shame.

Groovy

Maybe if they put 12 or 14 people on board they would have survived the missile attack! Now they are nothing but graphite.

...the new American century has started with them in trouble. It appears it will end with them not even in existence anymore!

Or at least...

by Kamau_Ajamu on 26.04.2010 [18:10]

...they will be so watered down as a 'superpower', that it won't even be worth speaking about them!

13 Americans killed as US Apache helicopter shot down in Farah

by djandjolic on 26.04.2010 [23:09]

This "13 childs sodomizer" must be perished riding Blackhawk helicopter not Apache which carry only two (pilot and gunner).

Not an Apache, rather a Chinook Helicopter

by LittleHelper on 27.04.2010 [05:02]

It is impossible to cram 13 people into an Apache helicopter. Apache helicopters are attack helicopters and have only space for a maximum of 4 people, 2 of them being the pilots.

Most probably it was a Chinook transport helicopter. Reportedly there were some high ranking staff of the US Department of Defense on board, which all were killed in the incident.

Farah: At least 13 Americans were killed when a low flying US Apache helicopter was reportedly shot down by Taliban militants while flying over Afghanistan's Farah province.

The helicopter was hovering over Khak Safid district on Sunday morning, when it caught fire and fell on the desert of Nal, The Nation reports.

It is the second incident of a helicopter being shot down in two months. Earlier in February, an Apache helicopter was shot down near the airfield of Farah province.

Earlier this month, a Taliban spokesman had claimed responsibility of shooting down three NATO helicopters in Afghanistan's Zabol Province, Maidan Wardak and Kunduz.

The crashes had injured several NATO servicemen and three members of the Afghan security forces.

Just to add: Gunner has an auxiliary controls of the aircraft.

In case pilot is disabled.

war criminal invader/occupier pilots are disabled. They are disgraced in this world and disgraced on the day of judgement.

Maybe they can plead temporary insanity?

to wholetruth123

by Iron_Clay on 27.04.2010 [07:41]

temporary insanity ... with Americans that started 300 years ago and 400 million of them are still practicing strongly ... what does temporary mean to you??

Those comments are not niece...

by gmmonko on 27.04.2010 [08:11]

...those Americans are the heroes while they are going around the World and free humans from bad dictators and they kill only a few million innocent civilians.

Buhu..

by Lima-P on 27.04.2010 [09:52]

Neal your disgust over the word "temporary" went straight to the heart. God, if this is "temporary", how should one define "permanent"?

@ Ilyana...

by Kamau_Ajamu on 27.04.2010 [14:07]

...I'm not a child, I'm old enough to be your son (lol)!

@ Kamau

by ILYANA_ROZUMOVA on 27.04.2010 [20:05]

I stand corrected:

You are absolutelly right my son.

@ wholetruth

by ILYANA_ROZUMOVA on 27.04.2010 [20:29]

You are so right.

There will be a day of judgment.

There will be a great rejoicing for some, and great sorrow and desperation for others.

Do not believe "evangelists" who say that God is all forgiving.

Not true!

God will separate those who obeyed his commandments and those who did not.

Particularly the commandment "You shall not kill" (and invade other countries.)

Yes there is God.

I know.

I have seen him.
