excerpt from: Interview With Israeli Ambassador to United States

CNN web site, 16 August 2009

We were greatly comforted during the Israeli prime minister's visit here in May, when the US president told the Israeli prime minister that there would be a serious reassessment of the engagement policy before the end of the year.

And we are further reassured now that that end-of-the-year deadline has been moved up to September. We actually have a date when it's going to occur.

We are comforted by the fact that the Obama administration, in the aftermath of recent events in Iran, has exhibited greater willingness to consider formulating a package of serious sanctions against Iran, even now in advance of the reassessment.

excerpt from: 'Iran nuke could wipe Israel off map in seconds'

Haaretz, 4 July 2009

Michael Oren, Israel's ambassador to the United States, on Friday warned that an Iranian atomic bomb could "wipe Israel off the map in a matter of seconds," and that the Iranians could "accomplish in a matter of seconds what they denied Hitler did, and kill 6 million Jews, literally."

Oren made his comments in a conversation with journalist Jeffrey Goldberg at the Aspen Ideas Festival in Colorado.

The newly appointed ambassador warned, "There are clocks ticking all around," with regard to the Iranian nuclear issue. "One of those clocks is the uranium enrichment clock, which will show that by a certain date the Iranians will have sufficient, highly enriched uranium materials to create a bomb that could literally wipe Israel off the map in a matter of seconds."

excerpts from: IAF to train overseas for Iran strike op

by Yaakov Katz and AP, Jerusalem Post, 5 July 2009

... The Jerusalem Post learned that the IAF Israeli Air Force plans to participate in aerial exercises in the US and Europe in the coming months with the aim of training its pilots for long-range flights. ...

IAF planes will take part this year in a joint aerial exercise with a NATO-member state that cannot be identified.

In addition, later this month, the air force will send F-16C fighter jets to participate in the Red Flag exercise at the Nellis Air Force Base in Nevada. At the same time, several of the IAF's C-130 Hercules transport aircraft will participate in the Rodeo 2009 competition at the McChord Air Force Base in Washington state.

Defense officials said the overseas exercises would be used to drill long-range manoeuvres. ... Israel has a number of defense pacts with countries under which the air force is allowed to fly in foreign airspace. ...

Last summer, more than 100 IAF jets flew over Greece in what was viewed as a test-run for a potential strike on Iranian nuclear facilities. ...

In May this year, the French newsweekly L'Express reported that the IAF had staged military exercises over Gibraltar ... in which 83 jets drilled live bombing runs under a simulated surface-to-air threat environment.

Zionist Barking that is leading them no where by cosmo on 17.08.2009 [11:25]

They ziobastards are so shit scared that they cannot stop ziobarking.

This is way beyond the stage of bullying and the zioUS and the zioWest will lose the whole middle east and start begging if any war breaks out, be it in Lebanon, Syria or Iran.
The time for complacency with the zioentity is over and its long due to get it erradicated.

I just wonder if the September

by chestergimli on 17.08.2009 [13:08]

deadline has anything to do with Bob Chapman's assessment that US banks will be closed in September and that the US currency will be devalued. I believe that monetary and political decisions go hand in hand. I know that the US government is monetarily desperate so they will turn to military means as an out.

In addition

by chestergimli on 17.08.2009 [13:10]

The Obama White House may be doing this to turn the US citizens anger and attention away from his Euthanasia Health Plan

Lets take care of our own backyard???

by bernie22 on 17.08.2009 [13:59]

How about a deadline like now, of stopping all USA aid to israel???????
