US Missile Defense Halt Is First Signal that War With Iran is Near

The recent announcement that the Obama Administration has canceled plans for a missile defense system in Central Europe is causing careful observers to sit up and think about the global ramifications.

Keep in mind what those who were paying attention knew back in March. Ewen MacAskill at the U.K. Guardian summed it up best back then. He wrote on March 3:

Russia today signalled that it is ready to accept a secret offer made by Barack Obama to drop US plans for a European missile defence system in return for Moscow's help in dealing with Iran. Friends say the help is going to be Russia just staying out of the picture when the bombs land on Iran.

Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu made a clandestine trip to Russia this past Monday, September 10. This is the second sit up and take notice chess move signalling that serious non-public planning is in the works, that needs the cooperation of Russia.

Speculation by careful outside observers is now on what trip wire has been designed to justify the attack. Do the players think they have enough to go in now, or will some type of false flag operation be launched to bring the boobie on board cheering at their television sets when the inevitable pics of smart bombs falling in Iran make it to network television.

for the zios , they will keep on zioBarking from now until eternity.

The ziowest cannot afford a war in the Persian Gulf and also risk the existence of their little gullible creation, the bloody zioentity.

"Friends say the help is going to be Russia just staying out of the picture when the bombs land on Iran. "

Yeah, like Hell Russia gonna stand and watch it's southern front collapse. Rather Russia will make sure that as many stormtroopers and aggressor planes as possible will be plowed down into the sands.

And to imagine that Russia gonna stand back because of a virtual phony shield the yankee can't afford today? HA HA HA HA is all I say.
