It was the highest number of American casualties recorded in a single incident in the decade-long war. President Hamid Karzai sent his condolences to President Barack Obama, according to a statement issued by his office. "A NATO helicopter crashed last night in Wardak province," Karzai said in the statement, adding that 31 American special operations troops were killed. "President Karzai expressed his deep condolences because of this incident and expressed his sympathy to Barack Obama." The Taliban claimed to have brought the helicopter down with a rocket attack, but they have been known to make exaggerated claims in the past. NATO confirmed the overnight crash and said there "was enemy activity in the area." But it said it was still investigating the cause. The alliance was conducting a recovery operation at the site, it said, without releasing details or a casualty figure. "We are aware of an incident involving a helicopter in eastern

Afghanistan," said U.S. Air Force Capt. Justin Brockhoff, a NATO spokesman. "We are in the process of accessing the facts." The helicopter was a twin-rotor Chinook, which are used for transport, said an official at NATO headquarters in Brussels, speaking on condition of anonymity because he was not authorized to talk to the press.

The helicopter crashed in the Sayd Abad district of Wardak province, said a provincial government spokesman, Shahidullah Shahid. The volatile region borders the province of Kabul where the Afghan capital is located and is known for its strong Taliban presence.

Taliban spokesman Zabiullah Mujahid said in a statement that NATO had attacked a house in Sayd Abad where insurgents were gathering Friday night, killing eight fighters. The Taliban then downed the helicopter. he said.

In June 2005, 16 American troops were killed when a U.S. helicopter crashed in eastern Kunar province after apparently being hit by a rocket-propelled grenade.

Aircraft crashes are relatively frequent in Afghanistan, where insecurity and difficult terrain make air travel essential for coalition forces transporting troops and equipment.

There have been at least 17 coalition and Afghan aircraft crashes in Afghanistan this year. Most of the crashes are attributed to pilot errors, weather conditions or mechanical failures. However, the coalition has confirmed that at least one CH-47F Chinook helicopter was hit by a rocket propelled grenade on July 25, injuring two crewmembers.

Meanwhile, NATO troops attacked a house and inadvertently killed eight members of a family, including women and children, in the southern Helmand province, an Afghan government official said Saturday.

NATO said Taliban fighters fired rocket propelled grenades and small arms at coalition troops during a patrol Friday in the Nad Ali district. The troops fired back, and as the fight escalated an airstrike was called in against the Taliban position, said Brockhoff, the NATO spokesman. He said NATO sent a delegation to meet with local leaders and investigate the incident.

Nad Ali district police chief Shadi Khan said civilians died in the bombardment but that it was unknown how many insurgents were killed.

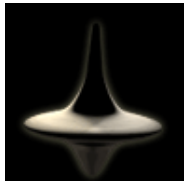

Helmand, a Taliban stronghold, is the deadliest province in Afghanistan for international troops.

NATO has come under harsh criticism in the past for accidentally killing civilians during operations against suspected insurgents. However, civilian death tallies by the United Nations show the insurgency is responsible for most war casualties involving non-combatants.

Also in the south, NATO said two coalition service member were killed, one on Friday and another on Saturday. The international alliance did not release further details.

The deaths bring to 334 the number of coalition troops killed this year in Afghanistan, and 11 this month.

What is the old expression, "Dead men tell no tales"???

Part of the Dark Arts 101 play book . . . you always have an assassin to kill your assassin after the job is done.

	From "Jubala, Jubalo, and Jubalum" . . . the three assassins in King Solomon/Freemason mythology that kill Hiram Abiff so he could never disclose all the secrets of the temple he designed . . . who are quickly put to death before they can reveal who they were really working for . . . . . . to those Clinton body guards that may have known too much about Vincent Foster's death that miraculously ended up dead at Waco . . . . . . the song remains the same . . . 😊 Looks like ObamaCo is cleaning house . . . Of course, like many on the Zionist "S.H.I.T List" (Self Hating Israel Threatening), I can't help wondering every time I hear of another Zionist "hit" . . . how far up "the list" my name gets pushed in priority . . . 😊 peace. incident. I spent 6 years with this unit and was deployed over the years as a primary participant as well as a support element. I raised a red-flag shortly immediately after the bin Laden "death" news was released, and I'm raising another one now with this event.

OFFLINE Newbie	Greetings all! Allow me to begin by saying I was a member of the 160th Spec Ops unit that is mentioned in some of the original reports of this Navy SEAL team

First, it's clear something is being covered up. I can't be sure what, but let's ID the anomalies so far. Initial reports claim that Team 6 had 20+ bin Laden raid members killed while traveling on a 160th Chinook helo. (My experience says this is legit) It also goes on to say they were shot down. (Hmmm, this unit has the most sophisticated countermeasures in the world.) Reports state this was an RPG attack. It's plausible, but I would have to know more on the flight profile.

After viewing Ryan's video and reading the AP report, I attempted to look it up for myself. The original article was ammended and included to following interesting details:

- 1- The aircraft was piloted by a "regular Army" crew. This appears counter to the norm, but is not impossible.
- 2- The aircraft was now carrying SEALs, but NOT the ones that carried out the bin Laden raid. (We can't have the enemy ego being boosted, right?)
- 3- The original shoot-down was now a crash. Maybe it's a play on words or maybe we are only describing the events after the aircraft being impacted, but either way, this is being manipulated to influence people.

Some of this is typical for all Army Ops. Take for Instance the Saddam Hussein capture. This was done by units that don't exist, but the credit was given to the convential unit-10th Mountain Division. This becomes interesting when we reflect back to the final demise of bin Laden and the associate mission. You might recall that new "stealth" helo that was used and susequently "crashed". If this were pilot error and this crash left an intact tail section in the compound, this event would have been incredibly violent. I would suspect that injuries ranged from severe to death. Could these deaths be why the recent crash is being reported? Is this an more subtle way of explaining their deaths? (Not sure)

In any event, the story will continue to morph until the lies are explaining lies and people have absolutely no clue what really happened. The war has never been about terror, but rather a plausible (for the semi-retarded flouridated people) explanation to funnel wealth to multi-national corporations and the power-elite and a slow, steady decline of the US and all nation-states.

Slow, steady, CONTROLABLE (meaning, how they want it, when they want it....but it's going to fast already), decline...
