Not Guilty. The Israeli Captain who Emptied his Rifle into a Palestinian Schoolgirl

This is the funeral of Iman al-Hams. That man stroking her hair to tell her goodbye is her father.

An Israeli army officer who fired the entire magazine of his automatic rifle into a 13-year-old Palestinian girl and then said he would have done the same even if she had been three years old was acquitted on all charges by a military court yesterday.

The soldier, who has only been identified as “Captain R”, was charged with relatively minor offences for the killing of Iman al-Hams who was shot 17 times as she ventured near an Israeli army post near Rafah refugee camp in Gaza a year ago.

The manner of Iman’s killing, and the revelation of a tape recording in which the captain is warned that she was just a child who was “scared to death”, made the shooting one of the most controversial since the Palestinian intifada erupted five years ago even though hundreds of other children have also died.

After the verdict, Iman’s father, Samir al-Hams, said the army never intended to hold the soldier accountable.

“They did not charge him with Iman’s murder, only with small offences, and now they say he is innocent of those even though he shot my daughter so many times,” he said. “This was the cold-blooded murder of a girl. The soldier murdered her once and the court has murdered her again. What is the message? They are telling their soldiers to kill Palestinian children.”

The military court cleared the soldier of illegal use of his weapon, conduct unbecoming an officer and perverting the course of justice by asking soldiers under his command to alter their accounts of the incident.

Capt R’s lawyers argued that the “confirmation of the kill” after a suspect is shot was a standard Israeli military practice to eliminate terrorist threats.

Following the verdict, Capt R burst into tears, turned to the public benches and said: “I told you I was innocent.”

The army’s official account said that Iman was shot for crossing into a security zone carrying her schoolbag which soldiers feared might contain a bomb. It is still not known why the girl ventured into the area but witnesses described her as at least 100 yards from the military post which was in any case well protected.

A recording of radio exchanges between Capt R and his troops obtained by Israeli television revealed that from the beginning soldiers identified Iman as a child.

In the recording, a soldier in a watchtower radioed a colleague in the army post's operations room and describes Iman as "a little girl" who was "scared to death". After soldiers first opened fire, she dropped her schoolbag which was then hit by several bullets establishing that it did not contain explosive. At that point she was no longer carrying the bag and, the tape revealed, was heading away from the army post when she was shot.

Although the military speculated that Iman might have been trying to "lure" the soldiers out of their base so they could be attacked by accomplices, Capt R made the decision to lead some of his troops into the open. Shortly afterwards he can be heard on the recording saying that he has shot the girl and, believing her dead, then "confirmed the kill".

"I and another soldier ... are going in a little nearer, forward, to confirm the kill ... Receive a situation report. We fired and killed her ... I also confirmed the kill. Over," he said.

Palestinian witnesses said they saw the captain shoot Iman twice in the head, walk away, turn back and fire a stream of bullets into her body.

On the tape, Capt R then "clarifies" to the soldiers under his command why he killed Iman: "This is commander. Anything that's mobile, that moves in the [security] zone, even if it's a three-year-old, needs to be killed."

At no point did the Israeli troops come under attack.

The prosecution case was damaged when a soldier who initially said he had seen Capt R point his weapon at the girl's body and open fire later told the court he had fabricated the story.

Capt R claimed that he had not fired the shots at the girl but near her. However, Dr Mohammed al-Hams, who inspected the child's body at Rafah hospital, counted numerous wounds. "She has at least 17 bullets in several parts of the body, all along the chest, hands, arms, legs," he told the Guardian shortly afterwards. "The bullets were large and shot from a close distance. The most serious injuries were to her head. She had three bullets in the head. One bullet was shot from the right side of the face beside the ear. It had a big impact on the whole face."

The army's initial investigation concluded that the captain had "not acted unethically". But after some of the soldiers under his command went to the Israeli press to give a different version, the military police launched a separate investigation after which he was charged.

Capt R claimed that the soldiers under his command were out to get him because they are Jewish and he is Druze.

The transcript

The following is a recording of a three-way conversation that took place between a soldier in a watchtower, an army operations room and Capt R, who shot the girl

From the watchtower "It's a little girl. She's running defensively eastward." "Are we talking about a girl under the age of 10?" "A girl about 10, she's behind the embankment, scared to death." "I think that one of the positions took her out." "I and another soldier ... are going in a little nearer, forward, to confirm the kill ... Receive a situation report. We fired and killed her ... I also confirmed the kill. Over."

From the operations room "Are we talking about a girl under the age of 10?"

Watchtower "A girl about 10, she's behind the embankment, scared to death."

A few minutes later, Iman is shot from one of the army posts

Watchtower "I think that one of the positions took her out."

Captain R "I and another soldier ... are going in a little nearer, forward, to confirm the kill ... Receive a situation report. We fired and killed her ... I also confirmed the kill. Over."

Capt R then "clarifies" why he killed Iman

"This is commander. Anything that's mobile, that moves in the zone, even if it's a three-year-old, needs to be killed. Over Sure. That's why you can recognize courageous Arab soldiers. They are so bold as to hide amidst civilians...

A lot of army history is apparently unknown to those who can't read – and consequently they rely upon what they are told more than what the actual truth is.

Most of the Arab countries that were under colonial (European) powers in the 19th and 20th centuries liberated themselves with own soldiers who were poorly armed compared to the Europeans. One example, is Algeria that lived under the brutal french occupation for 132 years (1830 to 1962) and paid a heavy price (1.5 million Algerians killed) during the war for independence from (1954 to 1962). In the west, they do not teach history, they teach pr altered history. That's why you will not hear a single positive thing about Arabs. Most of the Americans don't even know that Arabs represent the majority of the Semite people (more than 90%). Therefore anti-Arab is anti-Semetism. I laugh when I hear some people say "anti-semetic Arab"... but the word anti-semetic has been corrupted, even in the western dictionaries. We have to understand that only justice will bring peace.

Chickasaw Chief, I don't know where you get your information from but the word "antisemitism" was first used by a European who hated Jews because he said they were semitic people and that therefore to hate Jews on "racial" rather than religious grounds is to be antisemitic. The guy probably never knew any Arabs or any other people from the middle east. He knew Jews and didn't like them and he invented the word "antisemitism" to describe his belief.

I don't know why you want to play silly games over the meaning of a word especially in a reply to a supporter of the people responsible for killing a 13 year old girl who was standing alone when she was killed.

As it happens, the word "semitic" is meaningless as it is derived from the 19th century European idea that humanity is sub-divided into races based on descent from the sons of Noah. Under this ludicrous idea, "semitic" people are said to be the descendants of a son of Noah called Shem. So antisemitism isn't a very good word for what it means but what it means is what the man who invented the word said it means, the hatred of Jews on racial grounds. I prefer the expression "anti-Jewish" because it avoids time-wasting contributions like yours. By the way, the Websters dictionary does have a bogus definition of antisemitism but most English dictionaries define it in line with what its inventor said.

The idea that there is such a thing as a Semite is simply wrong. It is meaningless. It owes its origin to 19th century racial mythology and should have been left in the 19th century. Unfortunately it persisted into the 20th century and even beyond. Have you ever considered what "semitic" actually means? I think you have fallen for western thinking more than you realise.

There is another problem with your definition of antisemitism. When zionists accuse critics or opponents of Israel of antisemitism they are lying because people tend to oppose Israel, not because it is Jewish but because it is based on colonial settlement, ethnic cleansing and racist laws. There is also the relentless violence and the expansionism to consider. But according to you, you are not antisemitic because Arabs are semitic. You are not denying being anti-Jewish. But if Palestine is to be a country for all of its people and not just for Jews, then what becomes of Jews if supporters of the Palestinians can only deny antisemitism by re-defining it? This kind of thing engenders support in the west (and elsewhere) for the racist war criminals of the State of Israel.

It's far better to be sensible and accept the limitations of language rather than make things up. You make yourself look silly, dishonest and racist and you discredit the Palestinian cause.

There is another thing you have got wrong. It is not only justice that brings peace. Sound arguments for justice are a pre-requisite. If you play silly word games it looks like you don't have a sound argument even against a guy (Henrik Blunck above) trying to justify Israel's murders of children.

Sorry to be harsh but you've tried to be clever and simply shown yourself to be a rather stupid paranoid conspiracy theorist. You need to focus on what is relevant and don't be making things up.

Chickasaw Chief Reply:
September 25th, 2010 at 11:34 am

Semitism is related to languages, not race, religion or ethnicity. Aren't Arabs the majority of the Semite people? If yes, then anti-semitic must mean anti-Arab. Isn't his logical? How hard is it to understand? We have to use our brains, not what others say. It's not because everybody does something wrong that it's OK to do the same, it's still wrong.
Conspiracy theorist? that's funny. Nowadays, there are so many conspiracies: Irak's incasion was a conspiracy. Remember how the Bush administration sent Colin Powell to the UN? He showed the whole world "material evidence" that Iraq had WMD. 911 was another one: How did Building 7 collapse without being hit by anything? Wake up.

Mark Elf Reply:
September 25th, 2010 at 2:11 pm

I'm wide awake in spite of you trying to send people to sleep with your stupidity.

Zion refers to a hill in Jerusalem, that does not mean that zionism is about hills. You said that western dictionaries lied about antisemitism but where is there a dictionary that defines antisemitism as you do? The guy who invented the term "antisemitism" defined it just like the man who invented the word "quiz" defined that unless you want to argue with him too. And what has this got to do with the racist war criminals of Israel killing children anyway? We have a word for the ethnic cleansing of Palestinians from Palestine and their replacement by Jews. It's called zionism. Not antisemitism. Also, if you insist on defining antisemitism by logic, it is not against Arabs or Jews but against "semitism" and what on earth does semitism refer to? Er, nothing. It's a stupid word but its inventor defined it as opposition to Jews. He could not have logically have been referring to Arabs because there were none in his experience. Perhaps you will say that there is no such thing as anti-black racism since there is no such thing as race and no one is actually black, or white for that matter.

If you are trying to say that opposition to the State of Israel is anti-Jewish but not antisemitic then there may be a point to what you are saying. But that would simply bring discredit to a worthy anti-racist cause. I think you trying to smarter than you are.

Semitic used to refer to languages until it was discovered that so-called "Hamitic" languages were closely related to so-called "Semitic" ones. And anyway, you are confusing etymology with meaning.

I well remember Colin Powell's address to the UN. I know, as almost everyone does, that there was no justification for the Iraq war. We don't need far flung conspiracy theories to know that. The UN was not persuaded by Colin Powell's dishonesty and still the US went ahead with the invasion of Iraq. So why go to such extraordinary lengths to frame an enemy when the US as the sole hyper-power can do what it wants anyway?

There is enough straight evidence in the public domain to demonstrate the sheer wrong-doing of the USA and its allies and the illegitimacy of the State of Israel without playing silly word games. All the evidence is on the surface so no need to be digging.

Stop digging and work with what we have.

Chickasaw Chief Reply:
September 27th, 2010 at 9:40 am

You still have not answered my question: Are the Arabs Semites people or not? The illegal and inhumane invasion of Irak was a conspiracy. The US foreign policy is terrible: always messing with other countries (especially the third world countries with natural resources). Do you know how many governments the US have overthrown with conspiracy.... (from the queen of Hawaii to Irak).

If you listen to the US corporate media (CNNFOXNBCABCCBS@#%&*^!..) you will never learn anything real or true. It's just propaganda. Stay cool and best regards 😊

Mark Elf Reply:
September 27th, 2010 at 8:36 pm

Oh dear CC, you seem to have degenerated from stupidity to dishonesty. I answered your question before you even asked it. I made it clear from my first comment in this sub-thread that I believe the whole notion of "semitic" people to be tosh, rubbish, bollocks. Both "semitic" and "antisemitic" are 19th century European inventions. Semitic is based on the idea that there is a race of people descended from Noah's son Shem. Hamitic, from his son, Ham. All a load of bollocks. (I'm sure I said all this already) Go look them up.

If you can find evidence to support your own assertion that antisemitism had some other meaning than anti-Jewish and that western dictionaries lied about that then I'll be sure to apologise. But of course I won't be apologising because you simply made it up because you confused etymology with meaning and for some reason you think it's important. I think it's important that principled anti-racists not waste their time on stupidity.

But you have refused to answer my question about where you read that "antisemitism" means hatred of people known as "semites".

I am no friend of American imperialism or of Israel and you have no reason to suppose that I am. I have said that US foreign policy (and domestic policy for that matter) is bad enough without getting into far flung conspiracy theories. You certainly have no grounds to assume that I believe the mainstream media. I know that America has overthrown many governments and that conspiracies have been involved. But these are facts, not theories.

I have said that when zionists accuse their opponents of antisemitism, they are lying by accusing legitimate critics, opponents and even their victims of subscribing to some kind of racism against Jews. If they lost the argument over the word antisemitism then they could simply move on to using the expression "anti-Jewish racism" and, of course, sometimes they do. They would still be lying. You are so stupid you don't think to deny their allegation of racism. You get into a semantic argument about a word you have unilaterally attributed a new meaning to.

I still say, the best way to proceed is to appeal to public opinion on the basis of demonstrable facts, not theories. And don't get drawn into semantic arguments.

Palestinians moving towards peace and not relying on Hamas. I think peace will only come when zionists stop occupying more and more land that does not belong to them. Jews were given a homeland (Europeans, Local Jews lived happily in Palestine), rightly or wrongly, and that should have been enough but it wasn't, the Zionists moved in and have continued with an illegal, brutal land grab ever since. If I came to your house with a big gun and started to move your fence line so your property got smaller and smaller how long would it be before you pushed back?

Moving toward peace and a "one-state solution" CANNOT be done "in cooperation with Israel", at least not if you mean the present-day State of Israel, because it, by definition, is a State that is not the "State of all its people", but rather purports to be the State of "the Jewish People" instead. Now, I'm Jewish by birth, and I celebrate the major Jewish holidays and have absorbed a degree of Jewish culture, but I am as appalled by the killing of the Palestinian schoolgirl referred to in this article as anyone else. I don't want the "State of Israel" to represent me. Hamas and Likud are opposite numbers, counterparts of each other if you will. Both have been chosen democratically by a majority of their respective populations, and both are equally opposed to genuine peace. Peace will come when majorities on BOTH sides stop "relying on" these organizations, and instead decide to live with each other as equals. Until then, there will be no peace.

Time to form up a U.S. Grand Jury, and present 9/11 truth facts for them to consider indictments against the ZIONISTS in the U.S. Government who aided and abetted the TREASON on Sept. 11, 2001.

Following their conviction, for criminal conspiracy both before and after the fact, they should be remanded to the Military Brigage at Ft. Leavenworth, KS, for summary execution.

Considering the nature of their crimes, the only fitting punishment is Death by HANGING or FIRING SQUAD.

this goes for IDF personnel who constructively aided and abetted these murders on Sept. 11th., 2001.

There is no shortage of Israeli atrocities since this particular one so what has made this story make such a comeback? I'm guessing a lazy blogger googled "Israel" or "Israel kills child". If they had followed through they would have seen that the story actually got worse. The soldier that killed Iman was actually compensated for what the army had put him through. The media does not report the barrage of rockets poured into Israel every day and those killed by them,, WHY not??? why do they not report the aid and medical supplies that Israel send out to those who want them dead???, why do they only report distortions??? and why should they give back to the Arabs the land which much of which they brought or the land that they won in

When Israel was formed in the late 1940's they were given land that did not belong to them in the first place. The Zionists then continued to take even more land by force from Palestinians that were not ready for (or expecting?) any trouble. You can check that out, the Zionists committed ethnic cleansing and murdered whole families (why not read Blood Brothers by Elias Chacour, a Christian Minister). In Europe even during the 1990's people were arrested for war crimes for doing this. In this case the US (and Europe) allowed this to happen. Today even more land is being taken illegally (look at the security wall in the West Bank, I say "in" because it does not follow the border) with settlements. I am not against Israel, I am against a Zionist secular state that hides behind the Jewish religion and commits crimes of hate. What would you have the Palestinians do under such provocation? Again I do not agree with violence from either side but I think the US supplied IDF (defence force, that's another good one!) does a fair bit more damage to the Gaza strip than the rockets fired at Israel. The reason very little mention is given to these attacks is because very little damage is done.

As for Iran, well it is not the greatest place on earth but again do not get mixed up between Jews and Zionists, Iran hates the Zionists.

Israel is a professional terrorist state. Because Israel has nuclear weapons and the most sophisticated weapons (provided by Europe and US), Israel commits atrocities and genocides with no worries. The Palestinians do not have a single warplane or tank to fight back. Even the extremist settlers have more weapons than the entire Palestinian population. Give the Palestinians some good weapons (nuclear weapons, F-16 and nuclear submarines etc ...) like Israel and they will liberate themselves from the Holocaust. The West is too afraid of Israel.

The Zionist criminal network that spans across the world protects its demonic foot soldiers, in any civilized country, this man would be executed for a brutal child murder.

Talmudic indoctrination makes them insane murderers without conscience.

90% of any other war killings are ok from the point of view of governments..but when you openly say that a 3 yr old needs to be killed is where i draw the line,i understand its a base yes,but to open fire even when the watchtower openly says shes just a 10 yr old girl whos scared to death and you still open fire..you need court marshaled i purpose the father of the child gets to unload a full clip in old capt r. i know i would if i was the parents..war or not id kill everyone one of them i could without thinking twice

March 16th is the anniversary of the brutal murder of the American Rachel Corrie.

Protest in front of Israeli Embassy, consulate and businesses and write your elected leaders.

Rachel Corrie and the USS Liberty will never be forgotten.

Long Live America !!

Thank you, we need to make the distinction between Jew and Zionist, Israel has a mostly secular, and by its actions facist, government, Jewish by birth nothing more.

I feel very sad for the little "Imam." No child should have to be subjected to this kind of hate. My heart goes out to her dad and her family. God protect the little children.

Like it's some big shock these, Zionist aren't held accountable for anything they do. Israelis have no moral conscience, hell, they barely have any thought-process unless it's involved with stealing something of worth

All this talk about the true meaning on Semite & anti Semitic is just useless rhetoric. The bottom line is a little thirteen year old girl was shot down & killed, the only excuse for this perhaps is if she was running toward you with a grenade in her hand, personally i would still have a hard time living with it. In Vietnam I remember seeing a little boy around 4yrs old squatting on the side of the road taking a crap when a mortar round fell. All that was left were his boots still on the side of the road. This haunts me after 45 years. no excuse for deliberately killing children.

Captain R committed a war crime by his actions, "This is commander. Anything that's mobile, that moves in the zone, even if it's a three-year-old, needs to be killed." UK, you fought the NAZIs because of their war crimes and land grabbing. Why don't you see that Israel is doing the same thing? Children are to be protected, not murdered.

I was a soldier, the thought of killing a child is just incomprehensible. I think any soldier who is comfortable shooting an innocent child is in need of help for his pschopathic tendencies, he should not be given a gun and certainly not be given command of men. This officer should have been made an example of. I am sure many Israeli soldiers will feel uncomfortable about the outcome of this case.

As for the UK, well it saddens me that my home country accepts and supports Israel (when it is beyond doubt that it is a state that sponsors terrorist acts), and yet condemns others for the same kind of acts. Do we still feel shame over historical treatment of Jews? well if we do we need to get over it and get over it fast. Israel should be facing sanctions not subsidies.

The US has a long history of working with with terrible, even insane, leaders and armies, whenever it suited their economic interests. The US speaks democracy but practices greed, at nightmarish levels. Both Israel and the US have a lot of very bad karma coming.
