WASHINGTON – It's an issue that has been dismissed, ridiculed, scoffed at and demeaned by the media and political establishment.

Yet it never dies. It never goes away. In fact, it keeps getting stronger and gathering more adherents.

It's the issue of Barack Obama's constitutional eligibility for office and his steadfast refusal to release even the most basic documentation that would support his claim to the presidency.

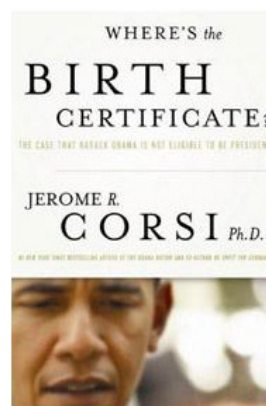

It took a new sympathetic, Democrat governor of Hawaii, Neil Abercrombie, to raise the stakes – suggesting he would get to the bottom of the controversy and deliver the birth certificate. Then he mysteriously changed his mind.

Next, Donald Trump, a prospective presidential challenger, got up and boldly declared there was something "fishy" about Obama's birth certificate. And now the debate rages hotter than ever.

There is another shoe about to drop.

It's a blistering exposé of all the evidence calling into question Obama's eligibility for office – some of it familiar to followers of the story and some of it brand new.

It is written by a two-time No. 1 New York Times bestselling author and published by the company that has done more investigation into Obama's eligibility than all other news sources combined.

While the book does not officially release until May 17, TV commercials for the book are already airing all over the Internet, prompting financial donations by the tens of thousands that secure autographed copies of the first edition as soon as it rolls off the presses in about a month. The donations will be used to secure TV air time for the commercials and to ensure there are enough books to meet the demand of a runaway best-seller.

While Corsi, a Ph.D in political science from Harvard and a senior staff writer for WND, is under wraps until the release of the book, Joseph Farah, editor and chief executive officer of WND and WND Books, is responding to media requests about the issue.

Farah calls "Where's the Birth Certificate?" a "game changer" on the controversy that has plagued Obama throughout his first term and one, he believes, will end his "questionably legitimate presidency."

"Imagine how this book and discussions about it will change the character of the debate on this critical constitutional issue," says Farah. "Therefore, we have a strategy for promoting this book far and wide – going right over the heads of the hopelessly biased and politically correct press and the political establishment that turned a blind eye to a scandal of epic proportions. But we need your help to pull it off."

Farah is putting out the call for help.

"WND needs to raise hundreds of thousands of dollars to air these commercials on television networks and stations throughout the country," he says. "You can view the first TV spot right now and help us spread it across the Internet long before the book is even available. Put it on your websites, your Facebook pages, send it to your friends by email and make sure they know how to donate to the cause – the cause of truth in the matter of Barack Obama's eligibility for office."

Go to Wheresthebirthcertificate.com to get the word out now.

"We need to make this the biggest publishing event of the year," said Farah.

Farah also urges everyone concerned about the cover-up to make a donation in any amount – from $5 to $5,000. (Bigger donations can be accepted by special arrangement by emailing Farah personally jfarah@wnd.com.) Anyone who donates $25 or more will get a first-edition, autographed copy of "Where's the Birth Certificate?" by Jerome Corsi as soon as it is available in May.

You can place an advance order for the book, but a $25 donation to this cause is a better deal. It ensures you get the book first, autographed and actually at a lower price than an advance order when shipping is included.

WND intends to further expand its 2-year-old, highly successful national billboard campaign asking the simple question, "Where's the birth certificate?" Radio ads are also in the planning stages. Your donations now will help us gear up for that second phase.

"There's no time to lose," says Farah. "The book debuts in bookstores across America May 17! Make sure everyone in America gets a chance finally to read the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth about the case that Barack Obama is simply not eligible to be president."

Please try to donate at least $25 today, ensuring you get your autographed first-edition copy of "Where's the Birth Certificate?" by Jerome Corsi as soon as it is available in May. Help us to change the terms of the debate on the issue of eligibility – as only this book and this media campaign can.
