More US scrap metal headed for Persian Gulf

USS Ponce joins USS Enterprise in Persian Gulf

Contributor: "YYC"

How much clearer could it be that a false flag event is planned?

Further to our earlier discussion about the US having found a way to dispose of its scrap metal and at the same time create a pretext (with the help of Israel?) for WWIII, here is the latest news report (bolding mine):

Pentagon deploys 'mothership' to Persian Gulf as tensions with Iran escalate

The Pentagon is rushing a "mothership" to the Middle East to be used by commando teams as unrest in the region heightens, reports The Washington Post.

*The U.S. Navy is planning to refit the USS Ponce, an amphibious transport docking ship, which was about to be retired and decommissioned.

The Ponce was commissioned in 1971 - it's now over 40 years old. Wikipedia reports:

On 2 December, 2011, Ponce came home to await decommissioning on 30 March, 2012, when she would be towed to Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and be placed with the mothball fleet

And now "she" is headed to the Gulf. How much clearer could it be that a false flag event is planned?
